Wednesday's (Aug. 20) sudden wind storm combined with heavy rain uprooted or snapped a number of trees in Woodbury, including (above) a tree that nearly smashed a propane tank at 207 E. High St. The big tree also split a wooden shed into in the back yard of this home. Rain fall totals equalled 1.28 inches during the outburst caused by a front moving through the area.

The storm snapped two Bradford Pear trees on Hill Street. One blocked the street completely forcing a Town of Woodbury crew in to remove it. The high winds also snapped a silver maple tree, left, atop the hill at Brown Spurlock Park. Doolittle Road, outside the Woodbury city limits, was also blocked by fallen trees.

Rachel gets 'Mo Rowdy'

It only made sense that Rachel Dorris would develop a fondness for horses since she grew up in a family with a background in the industry.

Through the years Dorris' fondness developed into a passion and she has proven to be one of the best in the business as evidenced by winning the International Grand Championship for Weanling Fillies in Murfreesboro in July.

In fact, Dorris won two blue ribbons at the International while showing "She Mo Rowdy." She not only won the Open Class, which includes professionals, but she also won the Youth Class for Weanling Youth Champion.

"I was totally surprised," Dorris said of her victory in the Open Class. "I went in thinking maybe I could finish third and that would be great to finish in the top three. When they called my name I totally busted into tears. It's a huge honor. The other people showing dropped their reigns and clapped for me. The respect they showed for me was just

Monument honors Joe Wimberly

Shares his dedication to Clayton Glenn Arena

Former Cannon County Commissioner Joe Wimberly loved the Clayton Glenn Arena and even played a part laying it out.

A monument has been erected on the property of the horse arena in memory of Wimberly, who served 20 years as District 4 Commissioner and worked for the Cannon County Litter Control Program until his retirement in 2008.

The monument is a beautiful marble stone set on bricks that were laid by Daryl Fisher. The bricks were donated by Preston Bros. Construction. It reads, "In loving memory of Joe Wimberly. Joe was instrumental with the planning of this arena. He worked tirelessly to ensure equine lovers of Cannon County would have a permanent show ring to exhibit their beloved horses. His dream was to provide a location for the cherished and honored tradition of horsemanship in Cannon County."

Wimberly's wife of 50 years, Baunita, said her husband would be honored by such recognition.

"I am proud of the monument and dedication to Joe," Baunita said. "Joe would love it and would be honored. I was so excited when they called to tell me about this. Joe worked the inmates at the jail and they did such a wonderful job. They were down there (at the arena) daily and did so much work on that. Joe loved horses and horse shows. He and Clayton

A Tribute to A Man

In his ragged overalls to his Sunday's best, this man preached Jesus.

From sitting in his Bible class to standing in the rain, this man preached Jesus.

From the mansions on the hill to behind the bars of the jail house, this man preached Christ.

From the kitchen tables to the horse lots, this man taught his children and others about what God offers to mankind.

From the top of Short Mountain Bible Camp to the flatlands, this man preached Jesus.

From the backroads of Cannon County to Main Street and beyond, Gayle Rains preached Jesus.

Souls are saved because this man loved and cared.

His work is finished now and no great work could this man have done.

Let us all be like this man - preach Jesus.

A few men like this man (Gayle Rains) have passed through this world.

He shall see his reward. 2-Tim. 1:12

Courier Columnist Whittle turns 80, oops make that 70

Mark Twain marked his 70th birthday by declaring he no longer had to behave, as in abide by polite society rules.

I'm more like the late gracious Minnie Pearl, the Grand Ole Opry's luminary philosopher of life from Grinder's Switch, when she emphatically declared: "How-dee! I'm so happy to be here!"

As milestone No. 70 birthday arrives (Aug. 22), I wonder about the wonder of life.

While toddling and sometimes stumbling along life's path for 70 years, one can accrue a list of detractors. And to what do I credit living longer than what some detractors forecast?

A mischievous sense of humor helps.

It all started Aug. 22, 1944, when Bootheel of Missouri country doctor Sam Sarno and nurse Kate McBain walked a mile on rural railroad tracks to deliver my parents perfect newborn. That's my story, since I was the third and last child born to hard-working farm parents.

For years, Nurse Kate bragged about being "first to whack Little Dannie's fanny."

What's funny about that?

"Dannie," as spelled officially on my certificate of birth, is a girly name? If Nurse Kate had looked REAL close, she could have told Little Dannie Whittle wasn't a dainty delicate sissy female.

What's been learned in 70 years?

Learning to read and write words came easy and early for me. For example, knowing how to spell brassiere before I got to first grade got me a hickory stick whooping from Momma Whittle.

I had learned the word out in the cold old shack out back at the end of the path by associating words and pictures in the Sears-Roebuck catalogue.

Ironically, it was learned neighbor farmer A.J. Neel, as opposed to an educator, who first recognized Little Danny's penchant for words.

Before I began first grade at our little country school of advanced thinking and higher ciphering, A.J. prophesied: "Little Danny, one day words will take you around the world."

While covering the war in Bosnia and the plight of orphans in Romania in the 1990s, I recalled my beloved old farm neighbor's prediction.

At age 6, I learned life can be scarred with tragedy, when Daddy Whittle, a farmer, perished in a grinding car crash in front of KSM Radio Station at Sikeston, MO. That's the night older brothers' nightmares began, and tormented him throughout his life.

At Daddy's funeral in my birth town of Canalou, MO., I also learned about respect ... when all seven of the little town's grocery stores and three blacksmith shops closed.

Plus, as Daddy's hearse and grieving family rolled slowly from the church, cotton gin workers lined up along the town's mile-long Main Street, with lint-covered caps placed reverently over their hearts. Although sad, that somber scene became a treasured childhood Kodak moment.

After Daddy's loss, I observed Momma Whittle learning to use a new-fangled contraption called the telephone while taking over the difficult business of farming.

Another milestone moment of early life came as a teen-ager when doctors, due to a somewhat rare bone disease, predicted I would never have a career, and that my young life would not go past age 25. That disease explains why I walk funny due to modern-day medical miracle of hip implants, plus my neck and spine are permanently stiff.

But I've always strived to show a soft, pliable heart toward folks ... except to crooks and politicians, and sometimes there's not a definitive difference between them.

And I've made it a firm policy to not hang around gripe grunts of life.

Upon getting home from the big Memphis hospital, I prayed probably my first gut-wrenching sincere adult prayer behind the old chicken house on our family farm: "Big God, this is Little Danny Whittle, I'm just a teen-aged boy and not strong enough to become an invalid, so if you don't mind, I'm going to get up and go."

When leaving my kneeling position, I looked back at the prayer scene and declared: "Death, catch me if you can, I'm out of here!"

You can hardly tell it, but now I'm well past 25.

During a recent lecture, a young university student asked: "Did God give you the talent for writing?"

"Yes, and God has marvelous sense of humor," I replied. "For example, with no college training in journalism, I walked into my first newspaper office at age 17, thinking I was applying for the janitor's job. Thus, I thought it unusual when the publisher asked if I knew how to use a typewriter?"

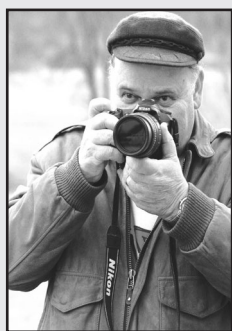

"I recalled thinking: 'Man, this must be a classy janitor's job, having to know a little typing.' So when the publisher asked: 'How long have you wanted to write sports?' I instantly lied: 'Sir, I've wanted to write sports all my life!'"

I was hired fresh out of high school, over three applicants who had college training in journalism.

Later, the publisher advised he hired me because of my audacity and voracity. With all those "acity's" in those two big words, I had to look up their meaning, thinking the publisher might have been cursing me.

"I also pray for the gift of listening to others as a writer," I concluded to the inquiring student, "I count my lifelong word career as truly a 'God Thing!' It's been a marvelous, exciting ride around the globe multiple times!"

I think A.J. Neel would be proud. And I'm thankful. Amen!

Courier Columnist 'Revelation' or REVOLUTION

The headline on page 1B of the August 19, 2014 edition of USA Today read: "Seeking a path to peace in Ferguson."

The headline was accompanied by the following subtitles with photos: "New Jersey Riots 1967"; "Los Angeles, May 1, 1992"; "Ferguson, MO, Monday."

The one subtitled "Ferguson, MO., Monday" (August 18, 2014) featured a photo of a young black man, hands behind him, being escorted by a white police officer. The black man wore a T-shirt with the inscription: "REVOLUTION—NOTHING LESS!"

To ensure all are on point, I'll give a brief overview of the ongoing racial turmoil in Ferguson, Missouri:

The shooting death of Michael Brown, an 18-year-old, black male, took place August 9, 2014, in Ferguson, Missouri, a suburb of St. Louis, Missouri. Brown died after being shot a reported six times by Darren Wilson, 28, a white Ferguson police officer. According to mainstream news reports, Brown was a suspect in a strong-arm robbery of cigars from a store allegedly committed minutes before the shooting, though the initial contact between Wilson and Brown was unrelated to the alleged robbery. Wilson has served four years with the Ferguson Police Department, after serving two years with another local police department. He had no disciplinary history.

According to The Washington Post, "the shooting of a black male by a white police officer sparked the ongoing unrest in Ferguson, due to longstanding racial tensions in a region that is 'among the most segregated metropolitan areas in the nation.' Peaceful protests, vandalism, and other forms of social unrest have continued for more than a week, with night curfew being imposed and escalated violence. Widespread media coverage examined the trend of local police departments arming themselves with 'military-grade weapons' and responding in a military fashion when dealing with protesting civilians and journalists covering volatile current events."

August 16, following looting and violence, Missouri Governor Jay Nixon declared a "state of emergency." After curfews failed to control the violence, Nixon lifted the curfews and "activated the Missouri National Guard to support police operations."

are involved.

At the core of the "racial mess" in Ferguson is this question: Did Michael Brown instigate the shooting by aggressing policeman Darren Wilson, putting Wilson in fear of his life?

Or did Wilson snap—"go off"—and needlessly pump six rounds into Brown? While there has been an overabundance of outcry over Brown's death, Wilson is gaining mass support with each tick of the clock. Where you have liberal black activists such as Reverend Al Sharpton and Jesse Jackson attacking the Ferguson Police Department, you have FOX news anchor Bill O'Reilly, white, accusing Reverend Al and Jesse of being "race baiters" and "agitators."

For the past 17 years, I have heavily researched the assassination of Reverend Martin Luther King Jr., a black clergyman from Atlanta, Georgia. Arguably the greatest voice ever for the Civil Rights Movement, King was killed by a single sniper's bullet in Memphis, Tennessee, April 4, 1968. King's assassination sparked a riot that threatened to morph into a full-scale civil war.

April 18, 1968, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced it was looking for James Earl Ray, a white, 39-year-old, career criminal, in connection with King's murder.

James Earl Ray was arrested June 8, 1968, at London's Heathrow Airport. March 10, 1969, in a Memphis courtroom—having been jailed for approximately 9 months under highly questionable conditions—Ray entered a "guilty plea" in the King assassination and received a 99-year sentence. Ray died from liver failure April 23, 1998, going to his grave proclaiming he did not shoot Reverend Martin Luther King Jr.

I bring up my research into the Martin Luther King assassination for one reason, and one reason only: I can state with absolute certainty that one can't believe everything the mainstream media reports.

Hopefully, justice will be served in the shooting death of Michael Brown.

Letters to The Editor

Chris Blackburn explains the reasons behind his resignation

To the Cannon Co. voters of District 2:

I'd like to express my thanks for your confidence in me serving as your school board member for the past 8 years. You continued to show your support, when on August 7th, you re-elected me to a third term, even though I had resigned this position on June 18, 2014.

My reason for resigning, was due to the fact that over the past 8 years I've gone from being an employee of a family business, to now also being an owner of this business. My job responsibilities have increased over the past 8 years and I feel I no longer have the time to adequately serve as a school board member. Once again, I thank you for your support, but must let this letter serve as my resignation from the school board. I wish my successor the best as they served as District 2 school board member.

Sincerely,
Chris Blackburn

Do you know someone who's depressed? Reach out to them

To the Editor:

Just read a Letter to the Editor in Sunday's newspaper. I too, am a suicide survivor. My mother committed suicide when I was 20. For about a year before she actually succeeded I found her three times where she had attempted; overdosing, drinking, rat poison in a piña colada and cutting her wrist.

She was in deep depression for years, but in denial. Back then if you admitted if you had a problem, people thought you were crazy. People would distance themselves from you. One would end up all alone and suffering by themselves. The devil preys on depression. If he can jump on your back while you are down, he will ride you til you break. I too battle depression. I tried counseling years ago. They usually just put you on a drug and tell you to come back. The best help came from God.

I have been going to my church for 14 years now. That has been the best counseling I ever had. My children have also been the best medicine for me. I can be so sad, due to someone breaking my heart, and just hugs from my daughters (and grandchildren) give me all the reason to live. And I thank Jesus everyday for putting them in my life.

Depression is a real disorder. It's caused by a chemical imbalance in the brain and the depressed can't make rational decisions. Robin Williams' death prompted me to write about what I went through with my mother's suicide. I would like to help someone going through what I have.

Hopefully, more people will recognize and get help when they get overwhelmed by this disease. There is hope! Someone loves you and needs you! We that suffer depression have to know that we are worthy, and God will make the sun come up tomorrow for us to live. We have a purpose on earth. For our family and friends, we have to know what it would do for those left behind.

I beat myself for years over my mother's death. I had to accept she was sick and did not know what she was doing.

Depressed people can't see the sun for the clouds, but every storm runs out of rain! And we can find a rainbow at the end of our hardships. What doesn't kill us makes us stronger. I should be a heavy-weight champion by now! I want my family and friends to know how much their love means to me and how they make my life so wonderful. And I want to be here for all of them when they need me, for the good, bad and the ugly.

If you suspect a loved one is struggling with depression, please let them know how loved and needed they are. Be encouraging to them to get the help they need.

Hopefully, with all the publicity of Robin Williams' suicide will help others to seek help. Depression hits everyone's home at some point. The rich, the poor, the pretty, the smart, the famous, the young and the old. God help us. We need to love and help our fellow man.

Last school year, the first ever statewide bookmark contest was held by the Tennessee Association of School Librarians. Students from around the state were invited to participate in the contest. Entries were to be hand drawn or digitally created illustrating the theme "Picture THIS in your library".

Judges for the bookmarks included a professor from the University of Memphis, the director of UT's School of Library Science and a professional illustrator.

Applicants were split into four grand divisions according to age, with only two state winners per division in the state. Earning a spot in her category was Addie King from Cannon County's West Side School.

Addie is the daughter of David and Karen King of Readyville, and is in Second Grade.

Tennessee Community Organization Awards of Excellence ceremony held

Two Woodbury natives were honored at a statewide awards ceremony in Nashville on Wednesday for their long-time support of Murfreesboro nonprofit Journeys in Community Living.

Anne McBride and Faye Northcutt Knox, the mother and aunt respectively of Patrick McBride, a person supported by Journeys, were awarded the John Henry Family Award at a Tennessee Community Organizations Awards of Excellence ceremony at the Preston Hotel in Nashville.

The family was nominated by Journeys in Community Living Executive Director Betty McNeely for the huge impact they've had on Patrick and other people with intellectual disabilities served by Journeys and other organizations.

They won out against several other deserving nominees from other TNCQ organizations across the state.

"Ann every year donates a quilt to Journeys for our silent auction, which raises money for the people served by our organization," McNeely explained. "She has also served on our Human Rights Committee since its inception."

Knox has been on Journeys' board of directors twice, and lobbied for changes in state laws that benefit people with intellectual disabilities at the Tennessee Legislature for several years.

"She has also tirelessly represented us in various social circles around town, as well as promoted us to the United Way," McNeely said.

Ann's husband, John, and Faye's brother, Richard Northcutt, showed what a supportive family they are by attending the event with Ann, Faye and Patrick.

The family was also awarded $500 in addition to receiving the TNCQ award, and immediately informed McNeely they would be turning the money over to Journeys for its mission.

"We are very lucky to have such quality individuals associated with us here at Journeys," McNeely said.

TNCQ is a statewide trade association for service provider organizations like Journeys that support people with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

Wasps are building like crazy

The last holiday of the summer season is upon us and everyone will have to wait until Thanksgiving to get another one of those long official weekends. Labor Day is one of those holidays I have never really gotten caught up in over the years, other than it being time for a lot of dove hunting in my part of the country. As a child, it usually meant that it was time for school to start back up, but now a days school starts back about the time the ink dries on the kid's report cards from getting out for summer vacation. I guess that is one reason Labor Day is still sort of on the downhill side of lonesome for me. As a child, it implanted a feeling of dread within my psychological thought patterns knowing that summer was over and school was starting up. That dread is still there when I hear the sound of crickets doing their fall chirping, announcing school start up is near and backwoods fun is over.

Labor Day has really been around for a while. It was first celebrated on September 5, 1882, with a parade put on by the Central Labor Union in New York City to honor the achievements of the working class, so says the Old Farmers Almanac. The Almanac goes on to say, "The holiday's popularity spread, and on June 28, 1894, President Grover Cleveland made it a federal holiday, to be observed on the first Monday in September. It is thought that the U.S. holiday was inspired by Canada's labor movement, which was started by Canadian trade unionists in 1872, and resulted in the first official Labor Day in 1894. Although the day's focus on organized labor has diminished over the years, the legal holiday still marks the end of summer and the traditional time for children to return to school."

Most folks today use the holiday to go to the lake, take an extended trip to the mountains, camp, fish or just fire up the grill one more time for the gang before colder temperatures settle in later in the month. And, I promise those temperatures will come a calling before you know it. Just the other day, I saw a solid black wooly worm cross the road and you all know what that means. If he is any sign of what winter may be like, this winter's cold and snow may be the reverse of what this summer's heat and rain have been for us the past few months. It wouldn't hurt to cut a little more firewood and to fluff up that insulation in the attic if you have any confidence in Tennessee wooly worms. Of course, I've only seen that one and I'll have to be watching for more as the season goes on, but the first one out does bare paying special attention to.

When it comes to weather predictions, I only trust Uncle Sid to give me the real facts. Those guys in Nashville do a great job, but Uncle Sid has experienced more weather changes in his lifetime and his bones than those fellows will ever see on their radar screens.

Thus, the best predictor of weather in these parts is my Uncle Sid. He has seen his fair share of cold and hot spells, plus being trained by his mother Floramai. She could predict weather by every part of her body, as well as every varmint located in the woods near their farm. All of her talents she passed down to her son and Uncle Sid even has added some of his own.

I asked him the other day what he thought this winter's weather would look like and he said, "Tomato skins were extra thick this year at our place which always means a real cold winter. I think it's going to be a cold one for sure because the squirrels are growing thick coats of fur and Aunt Sadie has run out of canning jars from stocking up our pantry. And, as of today, Aunt Sadie bought herself a brand new pair of flannel pajamas and that is a sure sign of a cold winter at our house. Yeah, it's going to be a real snowy and cold one for sure."

There you have it! The first winter's forecast from Uncle Sid and myself. The squirrels have thick coats, Aunt Sadie has done got her some new flannel PJs and the wasps are building like crazy. Sounds like you had better enjoy this Labor Day holiday because Thanksgiving should be a perfect time to kill hogs this year. Of course, that last sentence will only be understood by you old timers and I suggest you youngsters ask some of them to explain it to you. You do understand that Uncle Sid is also allowed the same error ratio as our TV weather folks of missing it by 95 percent. Have a good fall!

Landscape Paintings By Meg Garrett Through Sept. 10

Arts Center of Cannon County

Meg Garrett is a landscape painter taking inspiration from the natural and rural landscape of Middle Tennessee. Meg is a self-taught artist, who started painting seven years ago. Though she came to painting late in life she has dedicated herself to her art. Meg takes great pleasure in the process of painting and in that process captures a moment in time from the observation of an old barn to that of a quiet creek. She works exclusively in oil paints. Highlights from the show include images from Raven Point on the Fiery Gizzard Trail, the Great Falls on the Caney Fork, the Harpeth River, and rock outcroppings in Woodbury.

Books from Birth tour coming to Woodbury

The Governor's Books from Birth Foundation (GBBF) will launch its "Books from Birth 10th Anniversary Tour" on Aug. 26 in Johnson County and conclude at the Tennessee State Capitol in Nashville on September 30, visiting some 50 counties across the state in a 45-foot long decorated touring coach.

The tour bus will visit Woodbury on September 23 at 1 p.m. at Dillon Park.

The "Books from Birth 10th Anniversary Tour" is being made possible in part through the generous support of the program's bus tour partner, Delta Dental of Tennessee.

The purpose of the "Books from Birth 10th Anniversary Tour" is to celebrate the 10th anniversary of Dolly Parton's Imagination Library in Tennessee and the more than 20 million books mailed to children since the program began. Bus stop activities will include; enrolling children, recognizing the work of volunteers and donors and engaging communities in support of the program. The GBBF will provide reading-themed giveaways for children at each stop.

"This is truly an amazing state-wide outreach effort that will celebrate and build awareness for Books from Birth," said First Lady Crissy Haslam. "It is critical that our children are exposed to books and reading at the earliest possible age. Tennessee's Imagination Library program, supported by the Governor's Books from Birth Foundation, is a proven and essential component of our state's early childhood development initiatives."

"This program has made a significant impact in Tennessee over the past decade, especially due to the loyal support of hundreds of dedicated volunteers in each county," Gov. Bill Haslam said. "The First Lady and I encourage communities across the state to celebrate their hard work, which has made the program's 10th anniversary possible."

The Governor's Books from Birth Foundation (GBBF) was created in 2004 to give every child in Tennessee from birth to age five access to receiving Imagination Library books at no cost to families, regardless of income. With funding support from the Tennessee General Assembly, foundations, individual donors and corporations, the GBBF matches all funds raised by each county's Imagination Library affiliate - a public-private partnership unique to Tennessee.

"We are thrilled to visit over 50 counties in late

August and September to thank everyone who has contributed to this program's success," said Theresa Carl, president, GBBF. Statewide impact studies show that children who have received these books are better prepared for kindergarten, have increased reading skills, and develop a love of reading."

Thank You

Thanks to everyone in the 5th district who voted for me in the August 7th Election. It means more to me than I can possibly tell you.

I have always loved and cared for Cannon County and it's citizens. As we move forward into the next 4 years, I look forward to serving as your County Commissioner and giving back to the community that has supported me for over 40 years.

Gratefully,
RICHIE HUNTER

Cow-calf management tips for August

Some parts of the state are experiencing some level of drought. Most intense is in the Eastern part of the state. The drought covers a lot of the country and has impacted the beef industry for several years.

Late Winter-Early Spring Calving Herds

Producers should consider weaning the calf crop. There are several reasons and the primary one is the lack of availability of forage to maintain performance. The second reason is that the calves can be weaned, put on a higher quality feed and make excellent gains and do it economically compared to "running" with their dams. Weaning and feeding the calves is a big step in the "preconditioning" process and along with a health program. It will "add value" if marketed in an alliance or a feeder calf sale where a large number of "like kind" are marketed. The third is the dry cows can get along well on lower quality forage (if available) and gain both weight and condition and will experience improved reproductive performance.

Research with dams of calves weaned at 170 days of age (5 months) showed that the dams picked up 100-125 lb. over days compared those still suckling calves. This amount of weight gain could improve body condition scores (BCS) scores from 1.2 to 1.5. It takes about 82-85 lb. of gain to improve BCS score in beef cows. This might be a challenge under drought conditions.

First calf heifers will be negatively affected by the limited forage supply and may need to be fed an energy supplement in order to regain the condition lost. If the heifers were selected for increased milk production; this will create greater stress on the young females than the older, mature cows.

Open cows are a "big expense" and are "profit takers." They are expensive to maintain and produce no return unless culled and marketed. Pregnancy and culling open cows will pay more this year than ever before. Maintaining one open cow in the herd for a year will take the profit of 2.50 other cows.

Producers should be knowledgeable about the performance of the cows in their herd to make plans to cull and market cows that are less productive and have physical problems.

Due to the forage supply, let the open cows "ride". Definitely cull those cows that are likely to develop physical problems and will experience both price and performance reduction throughout their remaining life.

A suggested procedure for culling cows follows. Cull cows that have physical problems such as feet and legs, udder and eye problems. The second tier would include open females. The third culling criteria would be those cows with poor production records. Cows with poor disposition should also be candidates for culling. These are in no order of hierarchy.

Late Fall Early-Winter Calving Herds

These cows should be dry and pregnant and have the lowest feed requirement than during any other time in their production cycle. Their nutrient needs are minimal and if forage is available they can get along well and gain both weight and body condition. They can do well on the dry pasture.

Wean calves in pens that have good fences. Lack of fencing in most cow-calf operations limit weaning. If not already completed, calves from these herds should be marketed within the next thirty days.

Are the pregnant cows in the appropriate body condition for their next calving? Mature cows should be in at least a BCS of 5 and first-calf heifers in a BCS of 6. With the current drought situation, their BCS might be lower than what is needed to ensure profitable reproductive performance in subsequent years.

Suggestions for Both Calving Groups

Then environment has been extremely hot and the forecasts are for dry and warm weather to continue. Both groups of cows will be affected by the weather.

Evaluate the potential for "stockpiling" fescue for fall and early winter grazing. Stockpiling should be done between August 15 and September 15 for fall grazing. The big factor in the success of stockpiling is adequate moisture. Do not expect plants to grow without water.

Cattle need a source of clean drinking water. Cool water aids in keeping the animal's internal temperature in a range to ensure optimum production.

Be silent no more; talk about it

Losing someone special to death, no matter the circumstance, is never easy. Hearing about the passing of a beloved public figure like actor and comedian, Robin Williams can be equally tough too...especially when the cause is 100% preventable.

According to the TN Department of Mental Health Services, an estimated 850 people die by suicide in Tennessee every year. It's the third leading cause of death among youth and young adults in our State in across the nation (http://tn.gov/mental/mentalhealthservice/s/sp_child_suicide.shtml). While deeply saddening, hearing about a person's apparent self-inflicted death provides parents and families opportunities to have open conversations about difficult topics like death and suicide. Conversations will vary depending on beliefs, culture, and children's ages.

According to Dr. Matt Devereaux, children ages 11 and younger (elementary age) should be guarded from exposure to media coverage focused on the cause of Robin Williams' death. However, if asked about suicide and death Dr. Devereaux says that "honesty is the best policy". Devereaux notes the importance of short and simple responses to children's questions, while ensuring that they always have a safe person to talk to if they ever have such thoughts or feel sad in a way that's different than just stubbing your toe.

Dr. Devereaux adds that parents and caregivers should seize this opportunity to talk openly and honestly with youth who are middle- and high-school age about the signs and symptoms of depression and suicidal thoughts. You will not cause a person to become suicidal just by talking about it. Communicate clearly that you are a safe person that he/she can always reach out to for non-judgmental and honest conversations about mental health.

Here are some of the signs and symptoms of suicidal thoughts/planning, along with resources to guide conversations, and where to turn for help.

Signs of Suicidal Thoughts and Plans
- Looking for a way to kill oneself, like searching online or buying items to assist suicide.

- Preoccupation with death
- Talking about: (any of these)
- wanting to die or to kill oneself,
- feeling hopeless or no reason to live,
- feeling trapped or in unbearable pain,
- wanting to sleep and not wake up,
- being a burden to others.
- Increasing the use of alcohol or drugs.
- Acting anxious/agitated; being reckless.
- Sleeping too little or too much.
- Withdrawing or feeling isolated.
- Showing rage or talking about revenge.
- Displaying extreme mood swings.
- Sudden sense of calm and happiness after being extremely depressed.
- Giving away personal items for no apparent reason.

Members of Prosperity Baptist Church hosted a surprise retirement reception Sunday night for their pastor, Don Rigsby. He officially retired from public work the last day of June.

Many of our community (especially of the young generation) were in Nashville Tuesday night to attend the One Direction concert. Of course, it took some "more mature" (like moms, dads, etc.) to accompany them.

Don't forget - you can enjoy a delicious meal without the hassle of cooking and cleaning afterwards. Come to the Community Center Wednesday, (tomorrow), between 3:30 and 7:00 p.m. to either get a takeout or a sit-down-and-enjoy meal of fish, chicken strips, fries, beans, slaw, dessert and drink. Chef is Tim Reed. The cost is $8.00 for adult plates, $5.00 for children ages 4-10 and free to 3 and under. You will be "killing two birds with one stone" by enjoying the meal and contributing to the Auburn School fundraiser.

Whew! It sure was a trying time for lots of folks Wednesday afternoon. Students were kept at school due to the stormy weather and when it finally cleared, there were flooding and road blocks due to fallen limbs to deal with. School buses were not able to run their entire route and parents weren't able to get to their children - some until around 6:00.

There were also lots of trees blown down in yards and some power lines were affected but praise the Lord, no one injured (at least that I know of).

Jeremy Whited and Nathan Wright celebrate their birthday the 27th. The 29th it will be Jeff Fletcher, Jacob Pursell, Chase Bogle, Bridgett Dodd, Dustin Mears and Bre'Anna O'Neal who get to eat cake and ice cream. Kim Fleming, Laura Reed Cooper, Burton Moulder, Curtis Davenport and Tommy Shehan ends the month of August birthdays. Lily Hughes begins the month of September when she turns 7 on the 1st. Happy birthday to all of you.

Have a safe Labor Day weekend.

on them and their students and many opportunities to share a student-focused perspective and represent thousands of classroom teachers across the state."

The Tennessee Educator Fellows were selected from more than 350 applicants. The class includes teachers of nine different subjects who work in urban, suburban, and rural schools and traditional and charter schools in East, Middle, and West Tennessee.

Four of the Tennessee Educator Fellows teach elementary school students, 10 teach middle school students, and nine teach high school students. The teachers are affiliated with many different professional groups, including the Tennessee Education Association, Professional Educators of Tennessee, Teach Plus and Teach for America.

"SCORE has always emphasized the importance of including diverse voices in discussions of how best to ensure Tennessee students are fully prepared for success after high school," SCORE President and CEO Jamie Woodson said. "The first class of Tennessee Educator Fellows includes incredibly talented teachers with a combined 188 years of experience in the classroom."

The teachers in the Tennessee Educator Fellowship will continue to work in their classrooms while in the one-year program, which will provide the opportunity to learn about, reflect upon, inform and communicate about policies, practices and systems that impact educator effectiveness and student achievement.

Fall Creek Falls to host folk fest

PIKEVILLE - Fall Creek Falls State Park's 36th Annual Mountaineer Folk Festival will be held Sept. 5-7, 2014.

The family-friendly event celebrates the heritage of the Cumberland Plateau with a presentation of music, food and pioneer skills.

The festival kicks off Friday, Sept. 5 at 7 p.m. with the official cannon firing, followed with music and square dancing. Saturday's activities will include pioneer demonstrations, music, storytelling, crafts and food booths. Pioneer demonstrations will include a sorghum mill, blacksmithing, a Civil War encampment in addition to broom making and chair bottoming.

Sunday will include gospel music, storytelling and pioneer skills demonstrations. The festival weekend will include over 100 craft booths with items such as woodworking, wrought iron, folk art, soaps, candles, leatherworks and basketweaving.

The Friends of Fall Creek Falls will collect donations at the gate to support future festivals. For more information call 423-881-5708.

Vol fire stations receive new U.S. flags

Each of the 10 volunteer fire stations in Cannon County recently received a new United States flag to fly at their facilities compliments of Sons of the American Legion Squadron 279.

According to Commander Charlie Harrell, the Hilton Stone American Legion Post 279 is made up of 80 legionnaires. The Post also has Sons of the American Legion Squadron 279, made up of 28 members.

Unlike the legionnaires, members of this elite group have no military service. They are the sons of a military father or mother, grandfather or grandmother or even great grandfather or grandmother.

The Post has three areas of priority - community, youth and veterans. The Commander of the Sons Squadron 279 proposed a project for the Sons to play honor and tribute to the volunteer firefighters in Cannon County. The Sons decided they wanted to present a new United States flag to each of the 10 volunteer fire stations in Cannon County, in appreciation of their outstanding service to Cannon County.

Tyler Stone serves as the Commander of the Sons Squadron 279.

Members of the local volunteer fire stations in Cannon County recently received new United States flags from Sons Squadron 279 to fly at their facilities. Representing the various communities were firefighters Jesse Laxton, Chris Blackburn, Jason Barrett, Paul Simon, Mike Buchanan, Tyler Stone (commander, Sons Squadron 279); Michael Underhill, Charlie Harrell (commander, American Legion Post 279), John Naylor and Tim Bell.

Senior Judge Don Ash, right, did the honors as Cannon County's Circuit Judges took the oath of office at the Courthouse. From right are Judge Royce Taylor, Keith Siskin and David Bragg. Taylor, Siskin and Bragg were re-elected during the Aug. 7 General Election.

great. It meant so much to me. I'm still ecstatic over it."

Dorris, the daughter of Vivian and John Dorris, didn't have too much time to bask in her International glory. The senior at Cannon County High School began competition at The Celebration in Shelbyville last weekend and will show, "She Mo Rowdy," in different classes there this week.

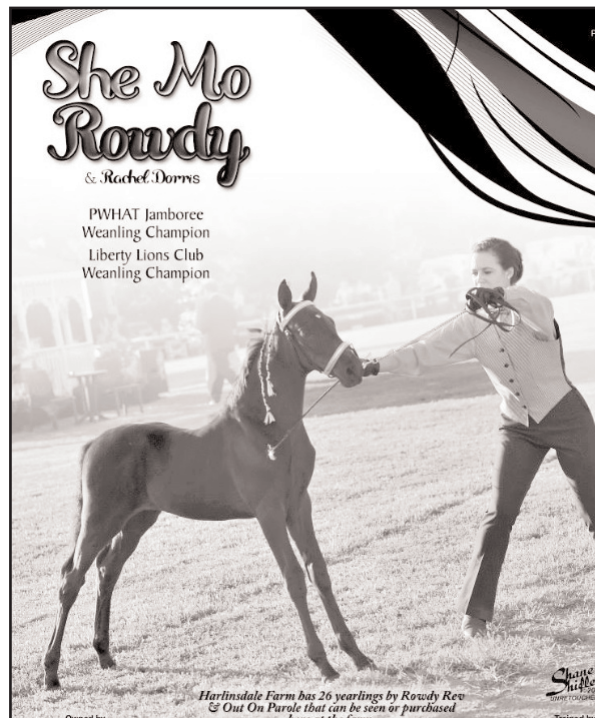

Dorris began showing colts four years ago and admits she is surprised at her sudden success. Her dad is one of Rachel's biggest fans but even he is somewhat taken back by his daughters rapid success.

"I am surprised at how well she has done," John Dorris said. "This is something you may have done for 15 years before you really can get in there and compete, and I mean really compete. Rachel has had good colts and she is good at it."

Rachel has ribbons to prove how good she is.

In addition to winning two blue ribbons at The International, she also has won the Weanling Champion at the PWHAT Jamboree and at the Liberty Lions Club, showing "She Mo Rowdy."

"I like competing and bonding with the horse," Rachel said. "They have

John Dorris says his daughter, Rachel, is a natural in the show ring. No job is too small or too dirty for the fourth generation trainer.

such great personalities. When you win it's great. If you lose you just go home and try harder the next time. I enjoy getting dressed up and showing the colts. I am really surprised at the success I've had. I mainly started showing to get extra youth points. When I started doing well and winning I liked it that much more."

"She Mo Rowdy" is owned by the legendary Bill Harlin of the famed Harlinsdale Farm in College Grove. In recent years Rachel Dorris has had the opportunity to show colts owned by some of the biggest names in the industry, including Harlin.

Her passion was derived from spending time on the farm and at shows with family.

"It has been a family thing for a long time," Rachel said. "Both sides of the family are into horses, both grandparents. Everyone always had walking horses and raised colts. I always enjoyed it and being around it. Dad showed and it was always so fun to go and do it with dad and spend all the time with him learning."

Evidently, John is a good teacher or Rachel is a fast learner, or maybe both.

"I had shown horses for 30-to-35 years and won one blue ribbon at The International," John said, adding "and she won two blue ribbons in one night. Showing horses has been a family affair. You are talking fourth generation with Rachel. She's good, she's a natural. She will do anything that needs to be done."

Dad says there is no job too dirty or too small for Rachel.

"From the time she was 6 she watched me and she would go to the barn and walk behind me and wanted to do everything I did," John said. "There were things I didn't want to do that she would. Nothing was too dirty or tough for her. Her mother and I are very proud of her. We are proud of all of our children."

Showing horses is not all fun and games. There is much more involved than dressing up and going into the show ring.

"With colts it is hours and days and many miles of walking," Rachel said. "In the summer we are up every morning at 5:30 and working the horses until 8 (a.m.) You wash them every day and make sure their hair is growing and getting ready for August and The Celebration."

"She Mo Ready" is ready for The Celebration. So is Rachel Dorris.

HONORS---

Glenn did so much out there."

The dedication took place Aug. 10 and was attended by several family members. County Executive Mike Gannon came up with the idea for such recognition.

"Joe was a special friend to me," Gannon said. "When Joe became a county commissioner he and I served together for several years. When the (old) football field became available due to the new high school, Joe and I presented an option to the County Commission to make that a permanent horse arena."

Upon the Commission's approval, Wimberly and Glenn came up with a lay out for the arena.

"At that time Joe was over litter control and worked the inmates," Gannon said. "He spent a lot of time laying it out and keeping it up, just making sure everything went well. If anybody deserves recognition for what he did, Joe Wimberly does."

Baunita Wimberly said the monument was a fitting tribute for her husband, who died Dec. 9, 2010.

"(Joe) loved his county and the people in it," Baunita said. "He enjoyed doing for others. He was a people person and wanted what was best for the people of Cannon County."

The monument is located at the entrance of Clayton Glenn Arena. It says in part:

I, Joe Wimberly ... have been married to Baunita for 50 years and we have two children, Sandy Alexander and Randy and Terri Wimberly. We have one grandson, Dan Wimberly and we are members of the Church of Christ.

I retired in 2008 from the Litter Control Program, which consists of using the inmates to pick up litter over Cannon County.

I promise to continue to serve Cannon County to the best of my ability to help make it a safe and prosperous place to live.

I am proud to have served as the 4th District Cannon County Commissioner for 20 years...

Kids for the Cure set for September 21

Calling all Upper Cumberland Kids! You are invited to attend Susan G. Komen Upper Cumberland's Kids for the Cure®. Kids ages 5 – 12 are encouraged to register for the day's activities. We are excited about our Super Hero themed event and know you will have a great time! Join us on Sunday, September 21st at Tennessee Tech's Hooper Eblen Center. On Race Day, we will have a One Mile Fun Run, games, free prizes, crafts, face painting, and so much more! Every child who registers will receive a Race t-shirt and a goodie bag. Activities begin at 11:00 am, 1 Mile Fun Run at 1:00 and 5k Race at 2:00. Register online:

www.komenuppercumberland.org

Kids for the Cure® was initially created to educate children from kindergarten through sixth grade about breast cancer and to support children affected by breast cancer. Many children know someone who has been touched by breast cancer -- a parent, grandparent, teacher or friend. Kids for the Cure can help to open the lines of communication between children and adults about breast cancer and foster a compassionate understanding of cancer and its effects. The program has grown to include family friendly activities on Race day.

Rogers announces bid for Re-Election to DTC Communications' Board of Directors

Greg Rogers announced today his bid for re-election as a member of DTC Communications' Board of Directors, representing the Woodbury exchange. Rogers has served in this position for the past nine years. For seven of those nine years, he has served as Secretary to the Board.

During this time the cooperative has been faced with changes affecting all aspects of the communication business. "From dealing with revenue loss due to declining land lines to major wireless enhancements, we've had our hands full," Rogers states. "Understanding the issues and making "business minded" decisions has been my approach. We must be equipped with the knowledge to make the most effective decisions," he concludes. This knowledge base will come from being engaged and learning from industry courses provided through the National Telecommunications Cooperative Association. Rogers has recently completed the course work necessary to earn the NTCA's Director Core Curriculum Certificate, which is a 14 credit course including 4 areas of study-Policy, Technology, Business and Governance.

In conclusion, Rogers states, "Even though we live in a much different communications world, our cooperative continues to be a very important part of our rural lives. Serving DTC, in the capacity of Director, is an honor, one I wish to continue. I thank you for the past opportunity and ask for your continued trust, vote and support in this election."

Greg and his wife Lisa live in Woodbury. They have two grown children, Wes Rogers and Erin Emlen and a grandson, Eli Rogers. Greg is President/CEO of Bird Song Adhesives, Inc., a 30 year member of the Woodbury Lions Club and serves as a Deacon at the Woodbury Church of Christ.

Trading Post Chat

BY SAVANNAH CUNNICK

Okay, what do say we bottle up this heat and use it this winter...honestly, it's gonna be a HOT one this week! Up until now, the weather has been pleasant and no humidity. Kinda having a hard time making up it's mind!

Regardless, we had a lovely time at the Trading Post this past week end. Still a lot of people from out of state and visiting family. Several folks had purchased cabins on the Lake and were buying up decorating items for their country flavor in their places. Nice crowd. Now, I know why the craftspeople and vendors at the Post carry such a variety of things...something for everyone and it certainly proves true all year long.

Speaking of vendors, I have some recent news in that department. We have opened up another booth featuring handcrafted glassware. JD will be also working on large porch benches for fall. If you have a certain size of outdoor bench that you want for your garden or on your porch or entry way or kitchen inside your home, please come into the Trading Post and place your special order. JD makes gorgeous benches and prices them reasonably. Measure the area you wish to place your bench and it WILL be made to order!

Another new vendor will be added gorgeous antique pieces to the Barn. She will be in the booth with Karen Brackman, who is our woodburning artist and painting expert. Our famous gourd lamp artisan, Jai Sheronda, will be featured in the upcoming art show at the Cannon County Art Center. Make sure you visit his display and also meet him at the Short Mountain Trading Post where he works on his special craft on Saturdays.

The Short Mountain Distillery will be hosting their Music Jam at the end of this month. It's supposed to be a real ZINGER! Don't miss out! Tickets can be purchased on their Website or at the event. The new Restaurant is also soon to open with a menu like no other! Short Mountain has really taken off and we are all so happy to be part of it!

Remember the Halloween event coming up at the Trading Post on October 11th. FREE SPACE offered to those who wish to vendor at the flea market part of it. Along with those who wish to sell baked goods, foods, fresh produce, etc. A lot going on that day...so call me, Savannah to reserve your free space or further information: #615-464-7824.

The other day when my preacher was visiting me, he said that as we grow older we need to really be thinking about the hereafter. I told him, Oh, I do, all the time. No matter where I am, in the parlor, upstairs, in the kitchen, or down in the basement....I ask myself: Now, what am I HERE AFTER?

Gonna run for now, Folks, Just remember that kindness is a universal language: one that even the blind can see and the deaf can hear.

Take care of each other, Smile and think happy thoughts. Chat with you next week.

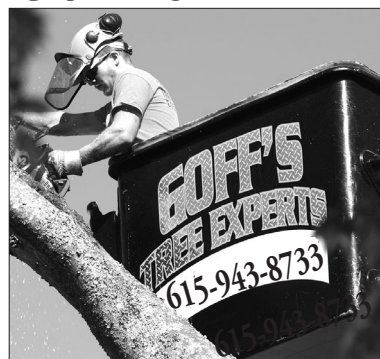

Hugs, Savannah

Long-lost Civil War diary returns to Tennessee

The long-lost diary of a prominent Nashvillian has been returned to Tennessee by a California woman. Andrea Shearn, a retired science teacher, found the diary while helping her parents move into an assisted living facility.

Shearn found the diary in a wooden box on a closet shelf in Cincinnati, where her grandmother had evidently put it in 1963. Neither Shearn nor her parents realized it was there.

Examining the diary, Shearn learned that it had belonged to R.M. McGavock, a Confederate officer with beautiful handwriting. Under McGavock's name was written: "Captured at Ft. Henry Stewart Co. Middle Tennessee Feb 6th 1862 by Capt. M Wemple Co H 4th Ill Vol Cav Presented to Ms. Lue Wemple."

Delving into her own genealogy, Shearn discovered that Capt. Myndert Wemple of Illinois was her ancestor. He evidently found the diary after McGavock and his troops evacuated Fort Henry in a battle that was a disaster for the Confederates. Wemple's descendants preserved the diary and handed it down through the family for the next 100 years, until it disappeared into that closet in Cincinnati.

Shearn transcribed the diary, becoming ever more interested in the writer and his experiences. She was surprised to learn that Randall McGavock was a Harvard-educated lawyer who was elected mayor of Nashville at the age of 32. He was a lieutenant colonel of the 10th Tennessee Regiment of the Confederate Army.

Shearn got in touch with State Librarian and Archivist Chuck Sherrill.

"This nice lady from California called and said, 'I wonder if anyone in Tennessee would be interested in this diary,'" Sherrill recalls. "When she told me it was Randal McGavock's diary, my first thought was to fly to California and get it before it disappeared again."

Sherrill and others at the State Library and Archives had long been aware of Randal McGavock and his diaries, as eight volumes of his diary have been housed at there since 1960.

"We had this great set of diaries, but the volume from the beginning of the Civil War was missing," he said.

Shearn eventually flew to Nashville to visit Two Rivers Mansion, Carnton and other sites associated with Randal McGavock and his family. She and her husband brought the diary with them and generously donated it to the archives.

Secretary of State Tre Hargett said: "We are extremely grateful to Andrea Shearn for returning this diary to Tennessee. I know that scholars and McGavock descendants will enjoy the opportunity to read it and fill in the blanks in this soldier's history."

Thank You Cannon County Voters

I want to take this opportunity to thank you for the confidence you placed in me by re-electing me as your Circuit Court Clerk for the next four years.

Your trust and support will always be appreciated and I will continue to manage the office in a fair and impartial manner.

A special thanks to my children, Kevin, Katina, Cole and Cassie George and Mike, Karla, Kallie and Foster Kemp for all their hard work campaigning for me. A special thanks to my wonderful staff for hanging in there with me during this stressful time.

Thanks to my wonderful sister-in-law, Helen Davenport, for being my taxi and driving me from pole to pole. Also thanks to Mildred for spending the day in the hot weather campaigning for me.

A very special thanks to everyone that helped with signs, stickers and the words of encouragement given to me.

I know my late brother and prior Circuit Clerk "Hoppy" and my late husband "Med" would be very proud of me.

Thanks again from the bottom of my heart.

more housework done than I really wanted, since I can't do any work outside. If you have read in the column about how I dislike housework, then you know I'm really praying the rain lets up and simply goes away - the sooner the better with me.

Our community extends its deepest sympathy to the family of Jewel Lawson age 70, who passed away August 10th at his residence. Funeral services were held August 13th in the Chapel of Love-Cantrell Funeral Home with Brother Charles Stanton officiating. He was laid to rest in the Banks Cemetery.

Left out a very important birthday for August in the last column: Carlon Melton 18th. Do uplift Carlon in prayer as he hasn't been feeling too good for a while now. Also, Mai Nell his wife needs prayer as well as she is taking care of him. It is always hard on the person who is taking care of someone as they usually do not get enough rest for themselves. Some others needing prayer: Donna Lawson, Edith Miller, Chloe Evelyn Bogle, Denise Stanton, and Bobby Taylor.

Weather people already talking about the winter season this year. Really I don't want to think about it as last winter almost froze me out like several of my flowers. On Channel 2 the guy said could be somewhat colder this winter and maybe more moisture possible as in snowfall. No one doesn't want to hear that do they? Only the school kids relish such a weather prediction like that. Maybe a snow on Christmas Eve would be okay, though, as the kid in me would love that. Would seem like it used to be in Christmas past wouldn't it? We had some huge snowfalls way back then when I was growing up, and oh my the precious memories not to ever be forgotten by me but only to be treasured. I think most everyone can relate to what I am talking about.

Gunter Reunion just around the corner - Sunday, August 31st - and the countdown is on to get everything ready at Aubrey's shop for a beautiful day of family and friends being together and just simply having fun and most of all enjoying each other's company. Of course, no one eats too much - sort of like at Thanksgiving and Christmas - and you know how much is not eaten at those special occasions. Naturally, Clyde and his talented crew will be supplying the bluegrass music for our event. I told him to take good care of himself as in not having anything to do with the little green people, that invisible cow, or who knows what else maybe an armadillo. We all want him in top form and not in a body cast from falling in trying to get away from any or all of the above creatures.

For the person who has asked me about the invisible cow every now and then, I personally have not seen it but Clyde seems to think he has but really he's not sure as it could just be a figment of his imagination. Only with Clyde and for all those that know him, could that statement hold merit. I'll just leave any more discussion about it alone.

Got to see and talk to Betty Keaton, or Mama Mouse as Aubrey nicknamed her, and the other half Jeff is Mouse. I do address their Christmas cards Mouse and Mama Mouse. One more tradition we just have to keep going as we know our big guy would definitely want us to do. Betty brought me some honey and I finally got her covered bowl back to her from last year's reunion. Since we live so far from each other, I guess that is the reason I hadn't returned it. So glad to see her and sure hope her and Mouse get to come to the reunion. Love you guys.

Sister Fay and I had one more terrific time at Glenda's (DeKalb Market) last Friday. The catfish divine just like the great conversation we had. Deb, Spider, and Skeeter enjoying us all cutting up. Hunter, Deb's son, I guess thought us kids having way too much fun but enjoying life is what living is all about. Take the time to spend some wonderful moments with your loved ones whenever you can.

If you have any news for the column, just give me a call at (615) 563-4429. Have a great day!

He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds.

BARBARA FORD
The Easy Way Gourmet

This is the season when every gardener is seeking friends. Enthusiastic gardeners planted their zucchini and summer squash a few months ago, dreaming of squash blossoms and healthy green and yellow vegetables. Now they have their bounty-and it may overtake them if the rest of us don't help. People are coming up with some amazing ways to use extra summer squash and zucchini. It can be a delicious "fresh from the garden" addition to almost any meal. But some of my gardening friends seem to be literally nearly buried in the harvest this year. I have heard desperate comments like "it was great a few weeks ago, but now I am just sick of squash!"

If you don't already have your own ocean of vegetables from the garden, I urge you to befriend a gardener. Be a peach and help them enjoy one of the great blessings of living in our area-fertile ground for great summer vegetables-and enjoy it yourself. Take a few zucchini off their hands, embrace some succulent summer squash. I guarantee you won't be sorry!

Think of the possibilities if you are lucky enough to have a pile of squash or zucchini adorning your kitchen counter. Just by slicing it up and frying it with some fresh basil, a bit of garlic and a chopped tomato you have a great side dish in minutes. You can add eggs and cheese to make zucchini frittatas for a weekday dinner. You can use a julienne peeler and make squash noodles-just microwave them for a few minutes with some spaghetti sauce and you have an awesome fast supper. Other folks will make cookies, breads and even cakes with their extra squash. It is all a matter of what you like. Consider, if you will, adjusting your carrot cake recipe with a touch of extra flour and adding shredded fresh squash to the mix. Another innovation I recently enjoyed is a filled squash cookie, much like a whoopee pie with a cream cheese filling between two moist, chewy cookies.

If you were really lucky, you might have scored some squash blossoms. These can be washed and dried, then stuffed with cheese or even a ham and cream cheese mixture. Then you can fry them in butter or batter them and lightly fry them for a crispy, delicious fritter.

You get the idea-don't let this season pass you by. There are just too many ideas for using fabulous fresh squash and too much squash to ignore! One of my recent favorites is a quick and easy mixed summer squash casserole. It has all the requirements for a people pleasing recipe-fresh flavor, crunchy topping and cheese, glorious cheese. It takes about ten minutes of active time and a half hour in the oven, but I recently took it to a potluck and got some rave reviews.

Mixed Squash Casserole

- 3-4 medium summer squash and/or zucchini
- 1 medium onion
- 3 Tablespoons butter, divided
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground pepper
- 1 Tablespoon fresh herbs, minced (I used thyme and oregano, but you can use what you like)
- ¼ cup cream

- 1 cup shredded sharp cheese (cheddar is my favorite for this)
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 cup Panko bread crumbs

Preheat the oven to 350°F. Slice the squash into ¼ inch rounds. Chop the onion. Butter a medium sized casserole or baking dish. In a large skillet, melt a tablespoon of butter over medium heat and add the onion, squash, salt, pepper and herbs. Cook just until the squash is tender and the onions are translucent. Drain the pan if there is any liquid in it. Transfer the squash mixture to the baking dish and toss it with the cream and shredded cheese. Mix the Parmesan and panko bread crumbs together and sprinkle the mixture over the entire top of the casserole. Dot with the remaining butter and bake for thirty minutes or until the top is golden brown.

No home advantage

MTCS deals Lions 22nd straight home loss

TONY STINNETT
Courier Sports Editor

There was no homefield advantage for Cannon County when it faced MTCS in the season opener for both teams Friday (Aug. 22) at Schwartz Field.

The Cougars (1-0) jumped out to a 28-0 halftime lead and cruised to a 48-6 thumping of the Lions (0-1). It marked the 22nd consecutive home loss for Cannon County dating back to the 2009 season.

Ethan Smith provided the only offensive highlight for Cannon County when he broke free for a 57-yard touchdown run in the second half. It was the Lions' only score. They missed the 2-point conversion attempt.

Smith finished with 67 yards to lead the Lions' offense.

Cannon County's defense was exceptional for the better part of the first half.

Eldon Resko's sack of Cougar quarterback Justin Winn to close MTCS' first drive was a defensive highlight and seemed to set an early pace.

MTCS managed to score on its second possession to take a 6-0 lead. The 2-point try failed.

From there, Cannon County's defense slowed the high-octane Cougar offense until a botched snap on a punt and an interception on back-to-back possessions in the second half turned the tide.

The score was 6-0 MTCS with less than seven minutes remaining in the half. Six minutes later the Cougars had turned two miscues into a 28-0 halftime lead.

field and extreme heat.

McReynolds was the only Lion to crack the Top 20.

Devin Gilpatrick finished second on the squad and 125th overall with a time of 19:26.48 Austin Duggin performed well in his first high school match. The freshman was third on the team and 166th overall with a 20:17.15.

Cannon County most likely would have had a higher finish but senior standout Jake Burdick was sick but still competed. He turned in a 20:21.38, good for 168th overall. Burdick was followed by John Frazier (171st, 20:26.46), Sam Sissom (190th, 20:58.25) and Tristan Morten (230th, 21:46.38).

The Lionettes had a strong showing at the Voyles Classic, finishing 16th out of 44 teams.

Hannah Whited led the way for the Lionettes with a 45th-place finish out of 363 runners in the 5K event.

Whited posted a time of 22:01.4. Erin McReynolds and Elva Magana were also in the Top 100. McReynolds was second for Cannon County and 84th overall with a 23:19.64, followed by Magana at 99th with a 24:00.73.

Hannah Faulkner was 114th overall with a 24:23.94.

Cannon County boasts experience at the top of the lineup as three of the top four finishers at the Voyles have state tournament experience. Whited, Magana and Faulkner have all competed at the TSSAA event.

Kristen Hale was 127th with a 24:50.40, followed by Alyna Reed (158th, 25:49.46) and Sara Hickman (161st, 25:54.78).

Cannon County's boys junior varsity also competed and had several individuals turn in strong performances.

Corey Seymour turned in a Top 50 finish out of the 301 competitors in the field. Seymour was 44th overall with a 20:50.73. Reece Wisdom was second for Cannon County and 57th overall with a 20:50.73.

Tyler Bailey was third for the Lions and 116th overall with a 23:33.59. All of Cannon County's runners finished in the top half of the field. Walker Hatfield (120th, 23:51.47), Arron Smith (139th, 25:22.35), Jacob Bentley (142nd, 26:51.47) and Caleb Sissom (143rd, 27:01.92) all turned in respectable showings in their first meet.

Cannon County Hoops Clinic set

The Cannon County High School Booster Club is conducting the second Cannon County Hoops Clinic beginning Tuesday (Aug. 26).

Registration will take place at 5:30 p.m. with practices beginning at 6 p.m. on assigned days. All Clinic sessions will be held at Cannon County High School's Harris Gym.

Cost of the camp is $50 and all campers will receive a tee-shirt.

The camp is boys and girls in grades K-8. It is designed to enhance and instill good fundamentals, techniques in shooting, ball handling, passing, defense, hand-eye coordination, rebounding and footwork.

Camp will also include group instruction and station work. Players will be divided into groups by grade levels.

Skills camp will run one hour, twice a week, from Aug. 26 through Oct. 2.

Nave leads Lions

Golfers sting Bees in win

TONY STINNETT
Courier Sports Editor
 Jacob Nave has produced some strong efforts against Upperman on the basketball court.

He turned in a stellar performance against the Bees on the golf course at Will Brook Thursday (Aug. 21).

Nave shot a season-low 40 to help lead the Lions to a tri-match victory. Cannon County shot 170 to turn back Upperman (178) and Gordonsville (228).

Nave enjoyed his best all-around game of the early season, including chipping in two shots from off the green to earn low medalist honors in the match.

Cannon County enjoyed its most consistent scoring of the early season with three players shooting 42 or better and all four players who counted toward the team score were in the 40s for the first time this season.

"We seem to be playing better as a team each time out," Lions Head Coach Ronny Burks said. "We were more consistent against Upperman and Gordonsville and that's a big part of the game. We have some players with experience and you hope that shows as the season progresses because it is a short season."

Hunter Vickers and Briar Jakes had their best most complete performances. Each shot a 42 to bolster the team's victory.

Josh Ruehlen is bouncing back from a leg injury well and shot a 46, followed by Nick Vassar with a 47.

William Parker finished with a 48 and Bradly Vickers shot a 60.

Walker starts strong

Soccer splits two games

TONY STINNETT

Walker produced a hat trick with three goals as the Lionettes turned back Huntland 5-4 in the season opener Tuesday (Aug. 19). She followed that effort with two goals in a 5-2 setback against White County Thursday (Aug. 21).

WALKER

WILLIAMS

Walker scored a school-record 18 goals last season and the strong-legged left-footer appears to be well on her way to besting that in 2014.

Walker was not the only source of offense in Cannon County's exciting 5-4 win against Huntland.

Hannah Taylor scored on a penalty kick to open the scoring. Walker struck for back-to-back to stake the Lionettes (1-0) to a 3-0 lead but Huntland battled back to tie the game, 3-3, early in the second half.

Walker's third goal proved to be the game-winner but Molly Williams provided what proved to be a pivotal score to put the Lionettes on top 5-3.

Huntland added a goal to close to within 5-4 but Cannon County's defense held in the final five minutes to earn the win.

Keeper Jessica Elmy had three saves in the close win.

Defenders Jylian Jones, Kendra Maynard, LeeAnn Scott, Bailey Sims, Autumn King, Kallie McCrary and Baylee Nemeth were key down the stretch in the defensive rotation. Hannah Haley provided critical support at midfield.

"It was a tough game," Lionettes Head Coach Zach McAllister said. "It was back-and-forth and we had to battle. It was an exciting game to start the season."

Cannon County dropped a 5-2 decision at White County in its second game of the season.

Walker scored two goals. Both scores were assisted by forward Molly Williams, who is off to a strong start with two assists and a goal in two games.

White County led 4-1 at the half with one of its goals coming off a penalty kick.

Cannon County managed three shots on goal in the first half but came away with just one of those opportunities when Walker scored her fourth goal of the season.

Walker took a crisp pass from Williams and scored early in the second half, cutting the deficit to 4-2, but Cannon County had just one shot on goal the remainder of the half.

Keeper Jessica Elmy was busy with 10 saves for the Lionettes.

 If anything the first boys cross-country meet of the season indicated the race for a state berth should once again be close.

The Lions compete against Central Magnet, Merrol Hyde and Signal Mountain, among others, in the always tough Region 4-AA. Last season the Lions finished one spot out of the state with all three aforementioned teams edging them.

In Saturday's first meet of the season the Lions finished 23rd out of 57 teams in the Voyles Classic at Sharp Springs Park in Smyrna. The Lions finished three places behind Central Magnet and two behind Merrol Hyde in the overall standings.

Jonah and the Fish

Jonah 1, 2, & 3

Jonah was thrown into the sea and the wind subsided and the sea was calm. The Lord sent a great fish to swallow Jonah. Jonah was inside the fish for three days and three nights. While inside the fish Jonah prayed unto the Lord. He said that although God had banished him, he would still look toward God's holy temple. When he was near death, Jonah remembered the Lord and offered his prayer. The Lord directed the fish to vomit Jonah onto dry land. Then the Lord spoke to Jonah and directed him again to go to Nineveh and give them the message that God would give him. Jonah obeyed God and went to Nineveh and told them of the coming destruction of their city. The Ninevites believed Jonah, declared a fast and put on sackcloth as a sign of repentance. The king also covered himself with sackcloth and sat in the dust and called on the people to call on God, give up their evil ways and their violent acts, all in the hope that God would spare them from destruction. When God saw their repentance, He had compassion and spared the city from destruction.

CANNON CRIME & COURTS

Man tries to strangle woman then runs into woods

Clayton Cochran was arrested on multiple charges including aggravated domestic assault following an incident at a home on McMinnville Highway.

Deputies Joshua Thomas and Randy Wildes were dispatched to the home where they were met by a woman who said, "He tried to kill me." She told the deputies that her attacker had ran into the nearby woods after the assault.

Thomas and Wildes went into the woods and announced who they were and asked Cochran to come out.

"After several attempts I heard a male voice say, 'who is it?' I announced again, 'Sheriff's Department come out,'" Thomas said.

The suspect said he needed a light to see, so the deputies told him to "stay put and we would come to him," the deputy said.

Officers discovered Cochran across the street hiding in a ditch. He tossed away a knife and got on his knees with his hands on his head.

After detaining Cochran, the deputies began to explore the crime scene beginning with the woman's car. All four tires were slashed with a knife blade still stuck in the rear tire of the driver's side. The driver's side window was pulled off track and was hanging from the door frame. The dash was broken and torn from its mountings. The rear view mirror was pulled off and the windshield had been broken by a small barbecue grill which had dumped ashes all inside the vehicle.

The woman said Cochran strangled her until nearly lost consciousness, but she managed to escape outside where she hid in a creek bed.

Cochran told the officers he couldn't remember what happened. "Everything gets blurry."

He was charged with aggravated assault (domestic) and vandalism over $1,000 for the damage to the car.

DUI, Third Offense

Ian Lucas Mitchell was charged with DUI, third offense, driving on a revoked license and reckless driving following a traffic stop on John Bragg Highway.

Mitchell told Deputy Joshua Thomas that he thought he was on Lascassas Pike in Murfreesboro and that he was nearly to state Route 96.

Fourth offense

John Helms was charged with driving on a revoked license (fourth offense) and with violating the financial responsibility law.

Helms was stopped by Sgt. Tommy Miller, who was working traffic control on an overturned vehicle at the corner of Iconium and Eugene Reed Road.

Too noisy to sleep

Theodore Judkins was charged with assault after he hit Kenneth Felts several times in the face and head. Judkins had grown angry because he was trying to sleep and the other residents on this home on Charley Lewis Road were making too much noise. Judkins was charged with assault.

Charged on multiple warrants

James Allen Presley was charged with citation warrants on criminal trespass, theft over $1,000, criminal trespass, burglary, theft over $1,000, theft over $500, vandalism and aggravated burglary.

Warrants served

Howard Odell Walls, domestic assault.

Anthony R. Gentry, harassment

Julie D. Ray, passing a worthless check.

WWII living history event coming to Linden

On Saturday, September 27, WWII re-enactors, antiques vendors, musicians, vintage vehicle owners, and spectators from across the country will gather in historic Linden, Tennessee to remember the Second World War and honor WWII veterans, at a community event called Remembering WWII: Living History, Education, and Honor.

This all-day event will feature four WWII veterans who will be sharing their stories (besides numerous other vets who will be in attendance), two WWII re-enactments, a WWII-era swap meet, antiques vendors, a vintage vehicle display, an army encampment, live music from the Merchants of Cool big band and others, a recreation of a 1940s canteen, and more. Admission is free. Food and drink will be available for purchase from local volunteer fire departments as a fundraiser. The entire family will find much to enjoy at this interactive, hands-on living history experience.

Attendees will get a special opportunity not only to hear the veterans share their stories, but will be able to speak with them, have a photo signed, and express their appreciation in person.

"These men will not be around much longer," noted event host Anthony Courter. "Their lives are significant, and we must make every opportunity to learn all we can from them, and to express our gratitude for their sacrifices." This is the primary reason for the event: to provide a way for people to connect personally with their history.

"My philosophy is, if we cannot love the men who have already lived, then we'll never love the men who are yet to be born," remarked Courter. "If we understand our past, then we can understand where we are headed as a people. Our hope is that those who join us on September 27th will gain both understanding about our past and a fresh perspective on the future, while enjoying experiencing a piece of life as it was in the 1940s."

More details about the event can be found here:

www.dominionskills.com/remembering-wwii/

Anyone interested in getting involved as a sponsor, reenactor, swap meet vendor, vintage vehicle owner, member of the press, or volunteer should contact jessicacourter@gmail.com.

THP urges extra caution in school zones

The Tennessee Highway Patrol (THP) is urging motorists to utilize extra caution in school zones, around school buses and in neighborhoods during the 2014-15 school year.

State Troopers will work to raise school safety awareness, and target traffic violators, specifically those who speed in school zones, drive distracted and disregard stopped school buses that are loading and unloading children.

"There will be more young pedestrians on the roadways, specifically, in and around the schools, as the academic year begins," Colonel Tracy Trott said. "State troopers and local law enforcement need everyone's help in providing each child with safe passage to school and back home again. Please make safety a priority around school zones and buses in Tennessee."

State Troopers issued 6,924 citations in school zones during the 2013-2014 school year. That's an increase from the 4,993 citations issued in 2012-13. Last year's citations included 839 speeding violations and one citation for passing a stopped school bus.

Since 2011, there has been a 6.0 percent decline in the number of crashes occurring in school zones between the hours of 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. and the hours of 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Tennessee. There was also a 6.9 percent increase in the number of school bus-involved crashes between those same hours.

In Tennessee, there have been 54 pedestrians killed on state roadways in 2014. That's six more than at this time in 2013.

"Everyone shares a responsibility to make sure pedestrians and bicyclists are safe," Trott said. "We are urging all motorists to drive cautiously, limit your cell phone use in school zones and do not pass other vehicles in school zones or at crosswalks."

The THP Pupil Transportation unit also oversees all school bus inspections in the state and determines whether public school bus systems are in compliance with the safety requirements by state law.

Each day, 26 million children in the United States ride school buses, including 600,000 in Tennessee, according to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA).

The speed limit in school zones is 15 miles per hour and the fine for speeding in a school zone is up to $500. It is also against the law to pass a school bus when it is stopped and loading or unloading passengers. The driver can be fined no less than $250 and up to $1,000.
