2014: The Year in Sports

TONY STINNETT Courier Contributor

2014 was a great year in sports for Cannon County with numerous team and individual achievements. Here is a look back at the top sports stories in 2014.

1. What a year it was for Cannon County girls basketball player Abbey Sissom. The senior guard put together one of the best allaround careers in program history and she was justly rewarded at the end of her career. Sissom became just the second Cannon County athlete to sign a Division I scholarship when she inked with Middle Tennessee. She joined girls basketball player Julie Powell, who signed with Vanderbilt in 1990, as the only other Cannon County athlete to sign a scholarship with a Division I school.

Not only did Sissom earn a Division I scholarship for her outstanding play, but she also was named Class AA Miss Basketball. Sissom joined Powell as the only player in Cannon County history to win the prestigious honor. The sharp-shooting guard also was named District 8-AA Player of the Year for the second straight year. She was also named to USA Today's All-Tennessee team. Sissom closed her career with 2,606 points which is second all-time at CCHS.

Marshal McReynolds and Jake Bostick advanced to the TSSAA Class A/AA tournament in 2013.

The Cannon County girls basketball team earned their third trip to the TS-SAA Class AA state tournament in four years in 2014. The Lionettes put together a strong run that featured the District 8-AA championship and after falling

Roy Franklin Martin

Roy Franklin Martin of Woodbury, TN died December 27th at Saint Thomas Hospital, Murfreesboro, TN. Roy

Roy was born April 25th, 1926 in Shady Grove, TN. He was the fifth of ten children born to Fred and Alta (Morris) Martin. Roy moved from Shady Grove to Muncie, IN in

He began a career with Borg Warner Corporation in Muncie in 1947 and worked in several departments within the plant.

Roy met his wife, Opal (Witty), in 1949 in Muncie. Coincidentally, they found that they were from the same area of Tennessee and shared many of the same acquaintances. Opal is from Warren County. They instantly found much in common and were married January 21st, 1950.

Two years after being married, Roy was called to active duty. From 1952 to 1954, Roy served his country in the Korean War. After coming home from the war, Roy and Opal had sons, Gary and Roger, and a daughter, Debbie. While continuing to work at Borg Warner, Roy, Opal, and family owned and operated Martin Hunting Preserve in Muncie, IN from 1966 to 1977.

Roy also had a kennel of champion hunting dogs at his hunting preserve. He was well known in the area at that time for raising and training champion bird dogs. Roy retired from Borg Warner in 1977 and moved to Cannon County in 1978. His lifelong dream was to have a cattle farm near his hometown.

From 1978 to 2006, Roy bought, raised, and sold cattle from his farm in Woodbury, TN. Other than enjoying a hard day's work, Roy loved both hunting and fishing. He hunted and fished as long as he could walk the fields or get in a boat. In his late years, Roy enjoyed driving his four wheeler and golf cart over his prized farm to watch the cows and enjoy the scenery. He lived at home on his farm in Woodbury with his beloved wife of nearly 65 years, Opal, until a few weeks before his death. He was a member of Sunny Hills Baptist Church. He loved people and enjoyed making good conversation. There is no doubt that he truly lived a full and blessed life!

Recently, his daughter, Debbie Barnes, and her husband, Larry, moved from Jackson, TN to Woodbury to live near Roy and his wife, Opal. Roger, his youngest son, and Roger's son, Austin, live nearby also. Roger's oldest son, Douglas, resides in Cookeville, TN. Roy's oldest son, Gary, and wife, Lori, reside in Columbia, TN with their two children, Price and Lily.

Roy is also survived by his brothers, William Martin (Muncie, IN), and Charles Martin (Summitville, TN) and by his sister, Edna Hurdle (Muncie, IN).

He was preceded in death by his siblings, Harry Martin, Anna Mae Neely, Paul Martin, Joe Martin, Mary Sue Hulan and his daughter in law, Rhonda Martin.

Roy will be laid to rest at Shady Grove Cemetery. Pall bearers were nephews Kenneth Hulan (Bon Aqua, TN); Shawn and Shannon Martin (Summittvillle, TN); Steven Martin (Mt. Juliet, TN); Joey Martin (Mt. Juliet, TN); and Philip Martin, Jr. (Manchester, TN)

Funeral services were 1 PM Thursday, January 1, 2015 at the Chapel of Woodbury Funeral Home with Bro. John Jones and Bro. Ray Patrick officiating. Interment followed at Shady Grove Cemetery in Coffee County.

Mr. Richard Alex "R. A." Robinson, Jr. 66, of Woodbury passed away on January 1, 2015. He was born in Woodbury on January 8, 1948. His parents were the late Richard Alex Robinson, Sr. and Lizzie Belle (Davenport) Robinson. He was preceded in death by his daughter, Tiffany Robinson and a brother, Dewey Robinson.

He is survived by his son and daughter-in-law, Alex and Daveen Robinson of Murfreesboro; three brothers, John A. and Alice Robinson of Woodbury, Raymond and Linda Sue Robinson of Woodbury and James and Robinson of Toledo, Ohio; a sister, Joyce of Pelham Woodbury; four grandchildren, Alex Blake Robinson, Abbigail Grace Robinson, Lizabelle Autumn Robinson and Michael William Robinson all of Murfreesboro. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Mr. Robinson grew up in a hard working family. He learned a great work ethic and carried it into his adulthood. He had just retired in May from 40 years of service in the maintenance department with Bemis formerly Paramount packaging. In his time there he had ten years of perfect attendance and was a very dedicated and respected employee. Mr. R. A. had a good sense of humor and was quick with a funny story. He enjoyed picking at family and friends in a good natured way. If you had an opinion about something he would take the opposite side just to see what you would say.

He was always handy with fixing things. His family described him as being able to grow anything; grapes, flowers, cherries or even a hoe handle. Mr. R. A. had a gift as a bee charmer. He could gather a hive of bees without any equipment and never get stung. Many people also knew he could catch any kind of snake, including rattle snakes. He attended the Baptist Church and read his Bible often. He knew how to make a dollar. He was willing to take a risk to help a friend. On more than one occasion he loaned money to a friend for a business venture that turned out good. Even before he retired he began spending a lot of time with his son Alex helping with his lumber business. He had dreamed of them working together in the years to come.

Funeral services was Monday, January 5, 2015 at 12 pm in the Smith Funeral Home chapel. Interment followed in the Robinson Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers memorials may be made to the Robinson Cemetery Trust Fund. Contact Smith Funeral Home for details. Memories and condolences may be shared at www.smithfuneralhomewoodbury.net Smith Funeral Home, (615)563-5337

BY SAVANNAH CUNNICK

Hello everybody! As I am writing this two days before New Year's Eve, I am reminiscing so many events that have occurred in the past year of 2014. So many people have commented to me that 2014 was just not a good year for them. I realize that they are speaking of the unemployment rate, a nasty flu epidemic, an unsteady guidance of government, the war in Iraq still going on and all the daily ins and outs that family and daily events bring on. Well, we will have a better year if we all think positive, use our best judgment when we spend our money, be the best example for our children as they grow and watch us for that guidance, stay healthy and be cautious to avoid crowds of people where the flu germs spread, respect your elders and take care of your aging parents. They took care of you. Do our best at our jobs and upgrade your attitude to I want to do my share, if you have extra.. Give to others who don't have a sense of humor, laugh, smile and just be downright happy! I know it's a tall order, but if we do all these things, at least try, then we can't blame 2015 for being a crumby year. Oh yeah, that's Savannah's lecture for the week! But then again, there does come a time when you have to stop crossing oceans for people wouldn't jump puddles for you. Go forward as there are people who can take advantage and never recognize a true friend if it bit them in the nose! It's your call on that I think our winter weather is here with some chilly days now and later. Remember to make sure your pets are warm and well fed. If they are outdoor pets, make sure they have a warm place to sleep with blankets and shelter. They are part of the family, too. Boy, we were really busy at the Short Mountain Trading Post this week end. I expected it would be, as folks had lots of visitors for the Holidays and wanted to show them the local sights. Along with our terrific sale, it was a profitable few days. The post is open if the weather permits: temperature at least 50 degrees and sunny. It's always safe to call me at 615-464-7824 to double check before you come out. Otherwise, our winter hours are 11:00 to 4:00 on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. We are presently offering booth space to craftspeople or collectors of all kinds. Call me at the number above to reserve your space. Our first Flea Market celebration will be scheduled for April, so get your items ready to sell. No charge for a space and all monies that you collect are yours. We are just happy that all of you participate and enjoy being part of our monthly events.

Well, before I sign off for now, I will give you update on Festus and Clyde. Festus gave Clyde one of those gag plunger rifles Christmas. Clyde thought it was for shooting moles in the ground and then sucking them out of their borrows with the plunger part. All I can say, is that it certainly kept him busy most of the day and out of our hair. (I do have the video, if you want a good Festus gave his wife Clara the diamond ring that she asked for: a piece of coal wired to a cigar band. When she complained, he said, It certainly is a diamond ring, you just gotta apply pressure for the next 200 years and presto, your diamond. The last thing I saw was that Clara had shown Festus a better use for that plunger rifle of Clyde's! Martha gave Clyde the usual moonshine from Short Mountain Distillery, so he would pass out early in the game. Clyde gave everybody gift cards to the Roadside Kill Café. Ooops, some how mine fell into the fireplace. I guess that raunchy coon, opossum and polecat stew will have to wait until next year. Cousin Clem handed out fireworks for New Year's Eve. They actually looked like sticks of dynamite with clocks on them. Thank goodness, I will be elsewhere and not with this group that evening. I said my final good byes and hurried home.

Ok folks, like I said, the new year of 2015 is all up to us as to how successful it turns out. Do your best and keep smiling. Come see us at the at the Post. Chat with you next week.

Hugs, Savannah

This conspiracy needs to end

Conspiracy: a combination of persons banded secretly together and resolved to accomplish an evil or unlawful end (reference: Webster's Third New International Dictionary).

When it comes to tragic events, assassinations of public figures, in particular, there are those who scream "conspiracy" minus a smidgeon of supportive evidence. On the other hand, there are those who denounce the possibility of a conspiracy even when the supportive evidence is overwhelmingly obvious. Therefore, I must ask: Is not one stance just as ludicrous and short-sighted as the

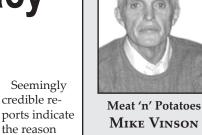

Having heavily researched and written about the assassination of Reverend Martin Luther King Jr., in Memphis, TN, April 4, 1968, and the guilt/innocence of James Earl Ray, King's alleged assassin, I can confirm one should not believe everything he/she reads, watches, or hears regarding these high-profile assassina-

With that, I'll enter the "Conspiracy Zone" as carefully and objectively as possible:

Around 3 p.m. on December 20, in the busy Bedford-Stuyvesant area of Brooklyn, New York, Ismaaiyl Brinsley, 28, black, walked up on a New York Police Department/NYPD patrol car and opened fire with a semiautomatic handgun on the two NYPD policemen inside, hitting both multiple times, killing them "execution style." Officer Rafael Ramos, 40, Hispanic, and Officer Wejian Liu, 32, Vietnamese, were pronounced dead at the scene. After murdering the two NYPD policemen, Brinsley fled to a nearby subway station and committed suicide by shooting himself in the head.

Ismaaiyl Brinsley had a long criminal record and reportedly had shot his girlfriend in the stomach, in Baltimore, Maryland, just hours before making the journey to New York to carry out his dastardly deed.(NOTE: The girlfriend survived.) In his final posting on Instagram, Brinsley allegedly wrote: "I'm putting wings on pigs today. They take 1 of ours, let's take 2 of theirs...Shoot The Police #RIP Eriv Garner #RIP Mike Brown..."This May Be My Final Post... I'm Putting Pigs In A Blanket."

Still, before ambushing NYPD officers Ramos and Liu, Brinsley reportedly told bystanders, "Watch what I'm gonna do." Chilling, to say the least!

behind Ismaa-

iyl Brinsley's

murderous acts was Brinsley was upset over the way the Michael Brown and Eric Garner cases had been handled. As discussed in previous columns, Michael Brown, 18, black, was shot to death by a white police officer during a physical confrontation, in Ferguson, Missouri, August 2014. Eric Garner 43, black, died en route to the hospital after being restrained by white NYPD cops in Staten Island, New York, July 2014. All law enforcement involved in Brown's death and Garner's death was cleared of any wrongdoing (though civil suits are pending).

As most know, resultant of the Michael Brown and Eric Garner cases (and others), demonstrations, outcry from all levels, and criminal behavior have saturated America, and law enforcement appears to be receiving the brunt end of it: Attacking policemen has become barbarically trendy. Hopefully, it will get better before it gets worse. Back to Ismaaiyl Brinsley murdering the two NYPD cops and, too, any sort of "conspiracy" being involved . . .

First, allow me to establish what one views on the Internet very well might not be what it appears to be. That being said, let's ride into the Conspiracy Zone:

As stated above, after killing the two NYPD cops, Brinsley ran to a subway station, put another message on Instagram, and then shot himself in the head. This Instagram, via Internet, shows Brinsley's left leg, and on his left foot is a blue-colored athletic shoe with no shoelace. However, the same Internet site shows Brinsley's body on a gurney, and his left shoe does have a shoelace, and it is neatly tied!

Fueling the conspiracy fire even hotter, no one from NYPD has come forward and publicly explained the "magic shoelace" to the best of my knowledge.

Even if there is a "conspiracy" at work here, how would a shoelace vs. no shoelace be any sort of factor? Well, that very type of confusion is what brainy conspirators create, isn't it?

Hopefully, someone will explain the "magic shoelace" and put this conspiracy theory to rest.

Soccer over NASCAR? No!

Latest evidence civilization, as we have known it, is doomed:

Sprint has announced it is dropping its sponsorship of NASCAR's premier series, Sprint Cup, at the end of the 2015

But that's not the worst part.

Sprint is reportedly dumping stock car racing in favor of soccer.

Soccer? Holy Fireball Roberts!

The CEO of Sprint owns a soccer team in Bolivia and there is speculation much of the $750 million the company has been annually pumping into NASCAR will be shuffled into soccer.

Understand, I don't have anything against soccer -- just as I don't have anything against playing the kazoo.

It's just soccer is so mind-numbing boring, and the only way I'd watch it is if I were duct-taped to an upright chair, facing the TV, with my eyelids propped open with toothpicks.

Right about here someone from the back is going to shout:

"Hey, dumbo! Apparently you don't realize soccer is the world's No. 1 spectator sport!"

So what? Breathing is also popular, but I wouldn't buy a ticket to watch it. Maybe I'm old-fashioned (my kids say there's no MAYBE about it) but I can't understand why anyone would rather watch somebody play footsies with a soccer ball than see Richard Petty knock David Pearson into the cheap seats at Davtona. Problem is, NASCAR doesn't have Richard and David any more. Instead of wild & crazy semi-reformed moonshine runners, we've got buttoned-down Yuppies running in polite little circles and apologizing if they bump into someone.

NASCAR has gone from Junior Johnson to Jimmie Johnson, and somewhere along the way -- I'd lost Dale Earnhardt -- it lost its soul.

say about the time we

In the 1980s Sports Illustrated called NASCAR "America's Hottest Sport." It out-drew every other pro sport, including the NFL, on an event-per-event basis.

In recent years it has undergone a cold spell. NASCAR's once-massive crowds have dwindled, sponsorships are drying up and the biggest corporate sponsor is reportedly turning toward (sigh!) soccer.

Nowhere is NASCAR's downward trajectory more evident than right here in Middle Tennessee. Once a hot-bed of stock car racing, the area's sports fans have turned to other diversions, including the NFL and NHL.

Historical old Fairgrounds Speedway, where legends once battled, is a virtual forgotten relic. And Nashville Superspeedway, sprawled on the Wilson County/Rutherford County line, has been in mothballs for three years.

The Superspeedway is a broken Field of Dreams -- Dover Motorsports built it, and nobody came. Well, almost nobody. Not enough fans turned out to support the track's second- and third-tier races, eventually forcing Dover to close shop and put a For Sale sign in the front yard.

Last August amid big fanfare it was announced a global technology company called NeXovation was buying the track. However, there has been delay after delay, and the deal has yet to be finalized. It's now too late to book any races for 2015, so the track is destined for another season of silence.

Unless, that is, the new owner turns it into a soccer stadium.

about 'the screen' With the end of one year, and the beginning of another, it's time for New Year's

Resolutions, those new things we are going to try to do that are going to make our lives better. Now, I'm of the opinion that the republic is on the verge of collapse, and civilization as we know it will soon come to an end. And what is this scourge? I'm simply going to call it "the screen"...the computer screen, the telephone screen, the tablet screen, the television screen. And worst of all is the "combo-screen": The all-in-one computer-telephone-tablet-television screen

So to combat a complete technological takeover there needs to be a kind of national New Year's resolution that everyone do something about the dreaded

First, if you really need a news fix, I suggest you make a resolution to read a newspaper or listen to the radio. Notice I'm not opposed to technology. So keep the radio on, and you'll get the most important news once or twice an hour. Do you really need updates any more often? No, you really don't. Second, make a resolution to read a real book. You know the kind with pages. The kind you don't have to worry about back-lighting or depleted batteries. The kind you can leave on, and it never runs out of power.

Third, if you really want to be bold, reolve to go for a walk or play games with the children. Or do some other family things, but do them together. Of course, this also means parents would have to spend a little more time with their children. But I always thought that's what being a parent is about.

Of course, just because you aren't watching the screen, doesn't mean the screen isn't watching you. So you'll have to excuse me while I put on my aluminum foil hat.

January cold got to me already

With the holidays all over and the weather being pretty much on the cold side the last few weeks in Tennessee, winter has been the major discussion topic around every country store, church meeting and even over at the bank. Just trying to get from your car to the bank lobby with northern breezes whistling around every corner has given a totally new meaning to the term "cold cash." It hasn't been any different out on Uncle Sid and Aunt Sadie's farm either. The other day as I pulled in the long gravel driveway of their farm, the winter wind was blowing to beat the band and the yellow glow of light coming from Aunt Sadie's "Gone With the Wind" hurricane lamp in the window of their white frame house was sure a welcome sight on that dark cloudy day I made my visit.

As I made my way up the walk I met Uncle Sid coming from his bird feeders where during this time of the year he looks after numerous cardinals. The wind whistling around the corner of the house was pushing us both to the kitchen door. Aunt Sadie met us both there wiping her hands on her apron and led me to the back portion of their house where the old couple spends most of their time. There, sitting on the round kitchen table, were some of Aunt Sadie's teacakes and coffee for both Uncle Sid and myself. As we warmed up with the goodies we seemed to settle into some kind of trance watching a brief snow flurry out the back kitchen window, falling across the couple's old farm. It was a pretty sight with the white landscaped hillsides and the many red cardinals getting seed from birdfeeders the couple religiously maintains. I guess I could have enjoyed it even more if it hadn't been for the fact that we had already seen about all the cold we wanted over the past several days and it was only the first of January.

After enjoying another couple of Aunt Sadie's teacakes, I asked Uncle Sid the question we all seemed to be asking right now, "When is the thaw coming?"

The old man never bothered to even look my way, but answered, "You're about as patient as a tomcat on a marble floor ain't you. It'll come. When it does, we will all start complaining about how hot it is and want to know when it is going to cool off. It has always worked that way and probably will for as long as we will be around. Folks up in Washington are still all hested up over global warming and if it continues to keep on warming like they say it's going to, then we all are going to freeze to death."

Over near the kitchen sink Aunt Sadie chimed in to add her two cents to the conversation and said, "Yeah. I'm just glad they haven't done any studying on global chilling. If that comes about, we had better plan on Tennessee becoming a desert and selling our cattle to buy camels, because it sure will get hot if the chilling works like this warming they are talking about."

I could see that little sparkle in her eye and knew she was enjoying her opportunity to compete with Uncle Sid. However, I knew he would not let it end like that.

While dunking his teacake in his coffee cup, he answered her back, "You just may have something there Sadie. It is sort of like this wind chill factor and heat index we hear on the TV weather reports all the time. If they could reverse those two and give the chill factor in the summer and the heat index in the winter, instead of the other way around, it would make us all feel better about the temperature outside. Why it was so cold at the barn yesterday the rats in the corncrib were asking the cats for a snuggle.

I've been around for several years and I've seen weather cycles change every so many years and that seems to be what we have going on for us right When we were now. young, the snow was always deeper and the winters colder than what we experience when we are older. Just wait, we will forget about the cold before long and start worrying about the heat and dry weather. Always have and always will."

You know, he's right. It always helps to listen to a little common sense on a cold winter's day.

Red Cross blood drive set for January 15

The American Red Cross asks eligible blood donors to make a resolution to give blood regularly in 2015, beginning with National keep Blood Donor Month in January.

National Blood Donor Month recognizes the importance of giving blood platelets while honoring those who roll up a sleeve to help patients in need. It has been observed during January since 1970, and that's no coincidence. Winter is an especially difficult time to collect enough blood to meet patient needs. Unpredictable winter weather can result in blood drive cancelations, and seasonal illnesses, like the flu, may cause some donors to be unable to make or blood donation appointments.

Donors of all blood types are needed, especially those with O negative, A negative and B negative. With a shelf life of 42 days, red blood cells must be constantly replenished to maintain an adequate supply patients. Individuals who come out to give blood Jan. 1 through Jan. 4 will receive a long-sleeve Red Cross Tshirt, while supplies last.

BY ANNA PATRICK

Here it is - 2015! A new year. My prayer for each of you is to have the best one yet.

Our condolences to the family and loved ones of Claudine McAdoo Davis who passed away Friday, December 26th. She was a native of this community but lived her adult life in Murfreesboro.

It seems like cancer is rearing its ugly head in lots of lives - if not battling it for some time such as Bobbie Whited and Jonathan Francis (just to name a couple) and others or just learning of the diagnosis such as Edith McReynolds. Our prayers are for these families and their caregivers (which is usually family) as well as several others.

A fundraiser is planned to help with the McReynolds' living expenses during her ordeal. It's a fish fry Saturday, January 17th at the Community Center. More information is forth coming.

Glad to hear Amelia Higgins got to spend Christmas at home following an emergency appendectomy the 23rd.

There was a sleepover Sunday night the 28th at the Reeds' house. Hannah Junker, Katie Hoskins, Rachel Dorris, and Haley Walker were the guests of Alayna and Adrianna Reed. I don't really know why these are called sleepovers as I'm sure not much sleeping goes on!

Chris and Sara Drue Zimmer, Drew and Canyon of Syracuse, NY, traveled in for the holidays. They will leave out early New Year's Day to begin their long journey home. Sunday they visited with grandmother, Sara Gaither.

Monday, Gretchen Gaither Abernathy, Theo and Trane of Nashville visited with the Zimmers, Sara and Donna and Eddie Nichols.

Wednesday it was off to Lebanon for the "Z" boys, and others to visit with Granny Drue (Mattie Drue) Nichols.

Many from around here left out early Friday, the day after Christmas to travel to Panama City, FL. They were there to support the Lions and Lionettes who were (and still are at the time of this writing) competing in the Marlin Christmas Classic Tournament at Arnold High School gym and no surprise here - it's the Championship game for both teams! Congratulations to Brian Jakes and Kristen Hale who had the hot hand in the and Boys Girls (respectively) 3-point shootout both bringing home the first place trophy.

DeAnna Reed and I left out for Macon, GA New Year's Day to spent a few days with Richard and Barbara Harris.

Prosperity Baptist Church held a "Watch Night Service" New Year's Eve. There was finger foods served followed by a movie, Ordinance of the Lord's Supper by candlelight, singing and more.

On the 7th day of January Amy Reed gets to eat cake and ice cream. Mike Jakes gets his on the 8th. John Buyrl Neely hits his 11th year on the 9th. Carly Grace Brown turns 12 on the 11th. Finishing up the week on the 13th are Maibeth Thompson, Dustin Nichols, Ashley Gilley Wilson and Christina Davis. Happy birthday to all of the above. Have a blessed day.

It's the 31st year of wedded bliss for John and Marna Higgins when they celebrate the 7th. Add 30 years to their 31 and you'll have the years that Bob and (Pete Hamilton) Whitaker will celebrate on the 8th.

If you have news for this column, please e-mail me at apatrick@dtccom.net, or call 464-4310 and leave a message if no answer.

Cow-Calf management for December

Suggestions For Both Groups of Cows

* Dry beef cows will need a diet that is at least 7% crude protein in the middle third of pregnancy and 9% protein in the last third of pregnancy. Pregnant yearling heifers will need a diet that is at least 11 to 12% protein, and heifers and mature cows nursing calves will need a diet that contains at least 11% protein. Remember "7 come 11" as a rule of thumb.

If heifers and young cows are not separated from older cattle, they may be pushed aside when given supplemental feeds and they may not receive the protein or energy they require.

* If producers need to purchase hay or other feed resources, do it soon because it will be more expensive as the winter progresses.

Approximately 2.25-2.50 tons of good quality hay will be needed to winter one animal unit (1,000 lbs.) for 150 days. If practices are not followed to reduce waste during feeding, this can increase from 2.9 -3.3 tons of hay.

* Corn, corn gluten, and soy hulls are alternative feeds to substitute for forage. Consider the cost of transportation, storage as well as feeding methods of these feeds.

* When purchasing hay, if possible buy it based on weight. Results from "hay days" have shown that beef producers do a "poor job" of estimating weight of large round bales.

With hay purchase and that on-hand, have a forage test done on both sources.

* Treat cattle that will remain in the herd for both external and internal parasites. The effect of parasites will be greater during the winter.

* Soybean meal is an excellent protein source with low-quality forages, because approximately 80 percent of the soybean meal is degraded in the rumen, and the rumen microbial population must be given a source of nitrogen so that they can reproduce, before they can digest the low-

* If producers are using corn stover as the main source of forage, it will be necessary to supplement a high-energy feed to the lactating cows such as dried distiller's grains, corn gluten feed, or pelleted soybean hulls in order to keep the animals in the proper body condition.

* If labor is an issue, and it is not feasible to feed protein supplements daily, it might be appropriate to use protein tubs for supplementation with low-protein feeds such as straw, corn stover or soybean stubble. However, expect to pay more for the same amount of protein if a soybean meal and distillers dried grain combination had been used.

* Feeding low-quality feeds that are low in crude protein, below 7 percent, will result in reduced digestion and possible rumen compaction. Addition of protein supplementation to the ration will improve the digestibility of poor quality forages.

* Protein supplements can be fed on alternate days if an adequate amount is provided to meet the nutritional requirement for the two days. UT research also shows that mature beef cows can be fed hay every other day when provided an adequate amount. Alternate day feedings will save labor and reduce costs but observation time of the cows is reduced.

Candy Fed to Cattle

Because they are ruminants, cattle can consume chocolate bars, gummy worms, ice cream sprinkles, marshmallows, bits of hard candy and even powdered hot chocolate mix.

Cows have been fed candies and other byproducts for decades. However, feeding candy to cows has become a more popular practice in recent years with the rising price

Producers are considering purchasing the obscure market for cast-off feed ingredients. Cut-rate byproducts of dubious value for human consumption seem to make fine feed for cows. While corn goes for about $315 a ton, ice-cream sprinkles can be had for as little as $160 a ton. A word of caution, encourage producers to calculate the available supply, storage, dry matter content and the value of the nutrient given to the cow.

This meeting will be in conjunction with the Mid State Producers Annual Meeting and will be held at the Woodbury Lions Club Building in Woodbury.

Thursday, January 15th -Mr. Larry Moorehead: "Forages, and importance of Storage." Mr. Moorehead is the popular Extension Agent in Lynchburg. He has focused his career around improving forages and conducted the first research project dealing with hay loss and storage in Tennessee.

Thursday, January 22nd Schrick: Dr. Neal "Reproduction Made Simple". Professor and Department Head, Animal Science; UTK, Spend an evening with one of the world's best known Science Animal researchers. Dr. Schrick will break down the reproductive process, explain the role of hormones and how that physiology can help the cow/calf producer as well as discuss economical methods of estrus synchronization and timed insemination. Many of you will know Dr. Schrick from his work with Millie, the first Jersey cloned from an adult cell.

Thursday, January 29th -Dr. Lew Strickland: "Overall herd health for the cow/calf producer" Dr. Lew is our new Extension Veterinarian. He comes to us with a world of knowledge from years of private practice and with Auburn University College of Medicine. Dr. Strickland will offer unique insight to venereal diseases of cattle and how to prevent them. Dr. Lew is one of the most knowledgeable presenters that I have ever heard possessing an uncanny ability to take a tough subject and make it much more understandable.

Thursday, February 5th -

"Working Facilities and

Transportation Come and learn first - hand some of the "tricks of the trade" regarding working facilities Transportation issues. Mr. Steelman is an Extension Agent with 30 years of experience in the beef cattle field having worked with hundreds of farmers over the course of his career. He has first-hand working knowledge of what works and what doesn't. Lt. Billy Prater is a veteran of the Tennessee Highway Patrol, and has seen it all. In addition to serving to make our roads safe, he is one of us, a cattleman himself and can provide a unique look at what we can do to improve our methods when it comes to safe transportation.

We are looking forward to a great schedule for this year's "Cow College". These meetings are an opportunity all beef producers, especially those seeking 50% cost share in TAEP. If you completed the original Master Program between 2004 through 2007, you must complete the Advanced Master Beef Program before May 1st 2015 in order to continue the 50% cost share for the Tennessee Agriculture Enhancement Program. In order to register for the Advanced Master Beef producer simply drop by County the Cannon Extension Office and sign The cost of the Advanced Master Beef Certification is $75.00.

News from the Mountain

Hope you got to attend the Lord's House today. Pastor Armstrong delivering a good message today about how we need to have fellowship with each other and also strive to do more for the Lord.

Sunday afternoon and is it ever foggy up here on the mountain. A very cool rain falling every now and then just makes you want to stay in and try to keep warm. Also, with all this fog probably a good thing for me at least to stay inside as the "little green men" might be hiding in that fog and might just get me if they had the opportunity.

Beginning to see more real turkeys around here lately up in the field at the edge of the mountain. This is more like it. Will be watching as maybe the deer will also emerge out in the field too.

Hard to believe a brand New Year - 2015 - is right here at our doorstep. Seemed like this past year just flew by. May this new year be a good one for all of you and the plans that you have made work out to perfection.

We do need to keep some people in prayer: Edith Miller, Jeff Brown, Carlon and Mai Nell Melton, Denise Stanton, Bernie Braswell, the Glen Nokes family, the Linda Fay-Barrett Taylor family, and the Billy Chumbley family.

Remembering a funny story back in the seventies when this demonstration of cookware was held at our mobile home by this young lady. I do not know how this all came about in the first place but I'm sure we were recommended by someone that knew us. This lady had this food chopper she was showing us and said for all you ladies that tear up when working with an onion - those times are over. Aubrey looked at me as he knew the problem I always have with an onion. Aubrey and I were way back in the hallway as there were several ladies there in attendance. The lady got through with chopping the onion only to look back at me as tears were flowing down my face and at the Kleenex I was using to soak them up that Aubrey had gotten for me. She was so embarrassed and could hardly believe what was happening. You know Aubrey was laughing over this, don't you? Some of the others were too. We wound up buying that cookware and I am still using it today. It has paid for itself over and over again.

Trust you got the New Year off right with hog's jowl and the black-eyed peas like I did. Tradition is good for all of those who will follow it. Works for this girl.

Also, Betty Gunter and family doing okay and the same can be said about Wayne and Judy Gunter of Lebanon and their family. Paulette Garvin husband Charles Manchester in top form. I am so glad everyone is well enjoying Christmas is all about - the birth of Jesus Christ the greatest gift we have ever received. Honor Him everyday in what you say and do.

Jimmy Dickens left a huge hole in hearts

DAN WHITTLE Courier Correspondent

For millions of musicloving Americans over 60, they can't remember life without hearing Little Jimmy Dickens, diminutive Grand Ole Opry star who stood tall for millions of country music fans around the globe

"I know where I was standing, when it came across my parents' big cabinet model radio with the huge battery in preelectricity days, when first hearing Little Jimmy Dickens on the Grand Ole Opry," Rutherford County mule farmer Danny Fraley traced back in time.

"And I know where I was, when it came across the same radio, that Hank Williams Sr. had died," added Fraley. "It was Hank that hung the nickname 'Tater' on Little Jimmy, if my recollection serves."

Hank Sr. hung the "Tater" title on him, after Little Jimmy came out with a hit song, "Take An Old Cold 'Tater, and wait" in 1949, after Roy Acuff helped Little Jimmy get a recording contract in Nashville in 1948. When Mr. Acuff "discovered" Little Jimmy, he was going by the stage name "Jimmy the Kid." He changed to "Little Jimmy Dickens" after arriving in Nashville.

Born James Cecil Dickens in 1920 in Bolt, W. Va., the Nashville legend died Friday, Jan. 2, at age 94. He stayed relevant in music industry throughout his life, after hitting the Opry stage by storm in 1948.

song Murfreesboro Henson Billy personally knew Little Jimmy dating back to the 1960s, when Henson played the Opry as part of the Lonzo & Oscar act.

"We knew one another well enough to speak and greet one another. In his later recordings, Little Jimmy had a lot of silly, but entertaining songs, and they were hits," Henson recorded back in time. "In his early days, he could knock out a serious ballad, such as 'When Your House Is Not A Home' in 1958. He could sell a song."

Henson, age 77, respects Little Jimmy's longevity.

"He stayed relevant until the last moments of his life, which is not an easy thing to do in this era," noted Henson, who still performs throughout Middle Tennessee, including on WGNS Radio, the Bell Buckle Café and the Donoho Hotel in Red Boiling Springs.

"Little Jimmy was an entertainer, who was not afraid to laugh at himself, with songs such as 'A-Sleeping at the Foot of the Bed' and 'I'm Little, But I'm Loud,"" noted recording artist Henson. "I, along with millions of Opry fans, laughed out loud the night he welcomed newcomer, the very tall Trace Adkins to the Opry, while standing on a ladder."

"Family," is how Smyrna resident Jennifer Stuart, sister to Opry star Marty Stuart, assessed "Tater's" status within Music City USA ranks.

"He was a born entertainer, who automatically lifted everyone's spirits, whether it was behind the curtains or out front on the Opry stage, in front of thousands," Jennifer added. "But, he was genuinely humble, and stayed true to himself, his friends and to country music. No one will replace Little Tater, who leaves a big hole in all our hearts."

Asked for one of her most memorable memories of Little Jimmy Dickens, Jennifer responded: "The night he came out on stage in one of lanky and tall Wagoner's Porter rhinestone-studded suits ... the suit coat came to Porter's knees ... on Tater, it came down past his feet ... he was stepping on the britches legs of Porter's

Murfreesboro resident

Rick Hodgins is a lifelong fan of Little Jimmy, dating back to his own childhood in Philadelphia, Miss.

"I was in Marty Stuart's original boyhood band, back in our native Philadelphia. When we weren't making our music, we'd listen to the likes of Little Jimmy Dickens and Connie Smith on the Grand Ole Opry," recalls Hodgins. "So, it was a huge honor the night back stage at the Opry, I got to finally meet and shake the hand of the little giant of country music. He may have stood less than five feet in height, but he's one of the tallest ambassadors in the history of country music."

Former Sparta resident Charley Thompson, a founder of the Smithville Fiddler's Jamboree, recalls listening to Little Jimmy Dickens on the radio back in 1951.

"We lived in remote White County, a place called Coon Holler in a cabin. It was so remote, they never wired electricity to our little two-room shanty cabin," noted radio personality (now retired) Thompson. "When Mother could finally afford one of those radios, with the big battery in the back of the cabinet, the first person I heard singing on the Opry was Little Jimmy Dickens. As a little boy, I remember sneaking a peek in the back of the radio, to see if Little Jimmy Dickens and other little people were singing in the back of that radio."

WRITER'S NOTE: In preelectricity 1949, Momma and Daddy Whittle were first on our farm road to own a battery-powered radio. It was not unusual for farm neighbors from miles around to arrive at our farm house in wagons pulled by mules, coming to listen to the Grand Ole

If the big battery got low on power to pull in the Opry signal on WSM Radio out of Nashville, Daddy would place the big battery on our hot wood stove to heat, and generate the very last watt of power out of that big battery that sit in the back of the big cabinetmodel Philco.

Later in the 1950s, when we finally got REA electricity to our farm, I would sneak my little radio under the bed covers on cold winter nights, to sneak and listen to the Grand Ole Opry out of ear-shot of my

Tennessee wins back to back honors

Tennessee becomes the first state in the award's history to win back-to-back honors for economic development efforts and the first state to win the designation three times, winning in 2014, 2013 and

"It is an honor to be the first state to receive this recognition two years in a row," Haslam said. "We have a great story to tell in Businesses Tennessee. continue to make the decision to locate, expand and grow here, and we are grateful for those strong partnerships. We will continue doing all we can to make sure we offer an attractive business climate and skilled workforce to be the No.1 location in the Southeast for high quality

Some of Tennessee's top economic development projects in 2014 included Volkswagen Group of America's Chattanooga expansion creating 2,000 jobs with an investment of $600 million, Under Armour's new Mount Juliet fulfillment center creating 1,500 jobs with an investment of more than million, SL Tennessee's Clinton expansion creating 1,000 jobs with an $80.5 million investment and Conduit Global's new Memphis call center creating 1,000 jobs with an $8 million investment.

"Being named first of 50for economic states development for two consecutive years underscores the effectiveness of the new operating model we've deployed in Tennessee one whose success is enhanced through our field network and through close coordination with our local partners," Economic and Community Development Commissioner Bill Hagerty said. "Our historic wins validate the incredible momentum, fierce competitiveness and promising future that Tennessee possesses and emphasizes our intense focus recruiting expanding and new companies.

"More and more business leaders around the world are recognizing that Tennessee is the best location and smartest choice for successful business operations. I am very proud of our department and statewide partners who have worked tirelessly to drive us toward the goal of being No. 1. Brand Tennessee continues its meteoric rise," Hagerty added.

The magazine cited Tennessee's successful execution of a diversified growth strategy, as well as an emphasis infrastructure and education, as key factors in securing consecutive victories.

"Tennessee is one of a handful of states that have clearly made economic development priority No. Business Facilities Editor-in-Chief Jack Rogers said. "With a powerhouse automotive cluster, worldclass infrastructure and the nation's most improved education system, we could be looking at a State of the Year dynasty in the making."

"We thought it would be hard for the Volunteer State to match last year's performance, but the folks in Tennessee keep reeling in one mega-project after another," Rogers said. impressive, Tennessee seemed to pick up momentum as they went along.'

Tennessee has also fared well in Business Facilities' annual rankings report, finishing first in the "Education: Race to the Top" category, second in "Best Infrastructure" and being named the top state "Automotive Manufacturing Strength" for four of the past five years.

"For two years in a row, Tennessee has notched one of the strongest across-theboard showings in our annual State Rankings Report," Rogers added.

Spencer Chatwood, an 8year-old who attends West Side, vaulted onto the Motocross scene in 2014. Chatwood won championship in the Big Show Series and finished second overall in the Southern All-Stars.

The Junior Lion football team earned an invitation to a bowl and defeated Carroll-Oakland Lebanon, 34-0, to cap their sensational season.

THP to conduct sobriety checkpoint on Route 64

The Tennessee Highway Patrol will be conducting Sobriety Checkpoint Jan. 16, 2015 on State Route 64 in Cannon County.

Impaired driving is a serious crime that kills more than 16,000 people and injures 305,000 others every year in the United States. Troopers will evaluate drivers for signs of alcohol or drug impairment. Troopers will target those who operate a vehicle while impaired and take corrective actions for other violations observed while ensuring the protection of all motorists.

The Tennessee Highway Patrol recognizes that sobriety checkpoints are highly visible and effective tools in the battle against impaired driving

Cannon driver charged after sliding off into Stones River

One driver who tried to cross the water-covered Elam Mill Road slab was rescued Sunday after his pickup truck skidded into Stones River, Rutherford County Sheriff Robert Arnold.

This is the second water rescue in less than one month at the same location where drivers drove vehicles onto the rushing waters covering the slab and became trapped, Sheriff Arnold said.

"Both victims were very lucky they did not drown today," Sheriff Arnold said. "There were two high water signs posted and the was up

FEATURES FROM THE BIBLE

More about Eve - The first Woman. Adam's wife.

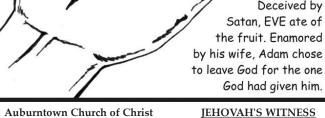

God formed her from Adam's rib.

The name EVE was given to Adam's wife after the act of disobedience of the couple. That acwas eating of the fruit of the TREE OF KNOWLEDGE OF GOOD AND EVIL after God instructed them not to eat of that fruit. This is often referred to as the FALL OF MAN.

The name EVE implies both her being the mother of all living and she being the mother of the promised seed who should give life to the human race now subjected to death through their disobedience.

While the bible traces the fall of the race to the sin of Adam, the part which EVE played in this tragedy is vividly portrayed in Genesis, chapter 3.

'Classic' win for Cannon girls

JUSTIN BEASLEY Courier Sports Writer

Cannon County won its opening game in the Marlin Christmas Classic, 51-34, over Wren, S.C. on Monday.

Four different Lionettes scored in double figures as Kendra Maynard and Erin McReynolds each scored 12. Kelli Davis and Kristen Hale added in 10 points apiece.

In the opening half, Cannon County (12-3, 2-2) scored 14 points in both quarters, and led 28-17 at halftime.

Wren was held to 20 percent (11-of-53) shooting on the night, and just six percent (1-of-16) from the three-point line.

With the win, the Lionettes advance to the semifinals with one win separating them from the championship game of the Marlin Christmas Classic.

Dodgen wins 300th game

Cannon County only allowed two Archbishop, Fla. points in the third quarter as the Lionettes' 48-32 win on Tuesday earned them a bid into the Marlin Classic Christmas Championship.

With the win, head coach Michael Dodgen notched

County while the seniors now have 100 wins since their freshman year.

Cannon County (13-3, 2-2) allowed only one basket in the third quarter to Archbishop following a Reagan McCray steal and layup with 27 seconds remaining.

The defensive effort in the third period extended the Lionettes lead to 32-18 heading into the final period.

"We moved to a zone there in the third quarter to try and limit their penetration and I don't think they adjusted to it very well," Dodgen said. "I think they still were anticipating us being in man (defense) and we weren't."

The Lions shot 18 percent (3-of-16) from beyond the arc on the game, but were able to score inside the paint with Autumn King and Kendra Maynard, a variation to the offense that Dodgen knows has to happen as the season progresses.

"I thought we adjusted really well with Autumn and Kendra giving us a little bit of an inside game there and leading us in scoring," Dodgen said. "As the seasons get on, your legs get tired, people know what you do, and you have to be able to adjust."

King finished with 17 points on 7-of-12 shooting from the floor and Maynard tallied 12.

King, spanning from the end of the third period to the start of the fourth, scored eight of the Lionettes' last 10 points as Cannon County extended its lead to 36-21.

After winning three games in as many days, the Cannon County Lionettes defeated Moore County, 24-22, to win the Marlin Christmas Classic championship Wednesday night in Panama City Beach, Fla.

With their largest lead of the game at 22-15 with 4:04 remaining, the Lionettes surrendered a 7-2 run to Moore County, and gave the Raiders a chance to win it with their last possession.

With less than 20 seconds remaining, Thomas misses a three from the left wing, but the Raiders would retain the possession for one last attempt. Following a Moore County timeout, the Raiders turned it over securing the victory for Cannon County.

Cannon County's (14-3, 2-2) first made field goal didn't come until 1:24 left in the first quarter after Autumn King's basket put the Lionettes ahead 4-2.

Up until then, the Lionettes turned the ball over four times in their previous nine possessions.

"To be honest, I didn't expect it to be that slow of a pace to the game considering the two types of teams," head coach Michael Dodgen said. "I thought Moore County did a good job defensively, and I thought we did a really good job defensively on them."

Following a 3-pointer from Moore County's Katie Thomas with 1:08 in the opening quarter, the Raiders did not make another field goal for the next 13 minutes, eventually ending their drought with 3:30 left in the third stanza.

"Both teams were I think a little bit on empty," Dodgen said. "I was just really pleased with the way we fought and battled defensively."

"We held (Kursten) Hawkins, who's averaging about 21, 22 (points) a game; we held her to six (points). That's big, because Kerstin Hawkins is a good player and we did a really good job on her."

After missing eight consecutive shots from beyond the arc, Kelli Davis made the Lionettes' only 3point shot of the game with 4:27 left in regulation, keeping Cannon County's decade-long 3-point streak alive.

"We had some good looks. We didn't just knock them down," Dodgen said. "But we found other ways to score whether it be with our post players (or) our defense."

Autumn King led all scorers with 10 points. Kendra Maynard finished with six.

CC closes out nondistrict play with win

Trailing by three at the half, Cannon County outscored Warren County by 14 points to get a 57-52 road win on Saturday.

With the win, Cannon County (15-3, 2-2) finishes non-district play with a 13-1 record. The Lionettes, currently on a 5-game win streak, resume district play at home versus Upperman on Jan. 6.

Kendra Maynard led the Lionettes in scoring with 16 points. Erin McReynolds and Kelli Davis tallied 13 and 11 respectively.

With a 25-22 advantage for Warren County, Cannon County shot 63 percent (7of-11) in the third period and committed zero turnovers to regain a 41-30 lead in the fourth.

Warren County outscored the Lionettes 18-10 in the second quarter.

Cannon County out shot 77 percent (21-of-27) from the charity stripe, including 10-of-14 in the final period.

Lions beat Marshall County, KY

JUSTIN BEASLEY Courier Sports Writer

The Lions defeated Marshall County, Ky. 66-55 in game one of the Marlin Christmas Classic on Monday to put Cannon County in the semifinals.

The trio of Josh Ruehlen, Jacob Nave and Austin Martin accounted for 54 of the Lions' 66 points. Nave led the Lions with 24. Ruehlen added 18 and Martin finished a dozen.

The Lions (12-4, 3-1) took an early lead after scoring 21 in the opening frame, and extended their lead to 29-20 heading halftime.

Lions advance to finals of Marlin Classic

One of the strengths for head coach Matt Rigsby's Lions is executing the fullcourt press defense.

It showed in Tuesday's win over Columbia Central as Cannon County forced 23 turnovers, clinching a spot in the Marlin Christmas Classic championship after a 64-54

In three of its first four possessions, Central turned the basketball over, and the trend continued throughout the first half.

In the opening half, Columbia Central, a district 8-AAA team, committed 14 turnovers, and turned it over nine times in the second half.

Up 11-10 late in the opening quarter, Cannon County (13-4, 3-1) went on a 16-3 run that extended into the second period.

Offensively, Cannon County attacked the Columbia Central fullcourt press with three similar full-court, footballlike passes all from Garrett McReynolds for easy layups.

"We have a call for that," Rigsby said on the full court pass. "It's kind of picking on opponents when they're down. They really want to overplay you and force a steal and get an easy bucket."

After consecutive baskets from Columbia Central's Jhaconus Blue, the Lions started another run of their own, scoring on seven of their next eight possessions to push the lead to 42-22, the largest lead held by the Lions.

Jacob Nave led Cannon County with 18 points scored, and Josh Ruehlen finished with 17.

Nave poured in 10 points in the fourth quarter alone, with six coming from the charity stripe.
