Good Ole Days a big success

A town called Danville & Levi Woodbury

Editor's Note: This is the first in an ongoing series by Cannon County Historian Robert D. Bush.

ROBERT D. BUSH County Historian

A "Legislative Act", authorizing a new county to be formed along the east fork of the Stones River also included a portion of the upper waters of the Clear Fork, a branch of the Smith Fork that flowed into the Caney Fork River. [The 'Sander's Fork', drainage area (today's Auburn town areas) as well as nearby streams then part of Wilson County that flowed into this Smith Fork would not be added to the county of Cannon until 1838.]

This same 'Act' of 1836 also named the first commissioners for the new county called Cannon in honor of the newly elected governor of the state, Newton Cannon.

As in the past, procedures for establishing new counties were largely regulated by Tennessee's constitution and its legislature. The new Tennessee constitution, ratified by a state convention in 1835, stipulated all counties to be subdivided into civil districts - counties that were formed in Tennessee prior to 1835 had only design-nated 'militia districts'.

These new commissioners were Daniel Stewart, James Taylor, William Bates, Henry Trott, Abraham Overall and Leonard Lamberson. According to the late Woodbury judge and historian Sterling S. Brown these commissioners that were appointed by the Tennessee legislature represented sections to be incorporated into this new county of Cannon.

James Taylor was the father of the well-known physician, Dr. Edmond Taylor who practiced medicine at Bradyville after the Civil War. Also, William Bates, who operated 'Bates Tavern' along the Stagecoach Road some distance from the town of McMinnville - he later oversaw the building of Cannon County's first courthouse.

Henry Trott II, the son of Benjamin Trott, (Benjamin is believed to be buried at the Danville town site) an early settler, merchant and lawyer at a small hamlet called Danville. He had been that town's first surveyor. The Trott family, along with the McBroom's settled early in the vicinity and started a town that became known as Danville. By 1836 Trott was overseeing the surveys for a new county to be formed. He became Cannon County's first Clerk and Master. (the land for the 'Brown-Spurlock Park' was once owned by this Henry Trott.)

Abraham Overall and Leonard Lamberson were believed to have lived in that section of Smith County that included the Clear Fork branch of the Smith Fork. The area was sometimes referred to at the time by legislators as 'surplus lands'.

These commissioners held the county's first court meeting in Henry D. McBroom's house. There has been some debate since then suggesting this first court meeting was not held in McBroom's Tavern, claiming it was not built at the time. Instead, this first court meeting was held in McBroom's home. It was later on that he built an Inn and storehouse at Danville? It still could, however, be debated either way? Some early merchants about the area in 1836 were Henry Trott Jr., James T. Trott, Joseph Ramsey, Parker F. Stone, Nathan Neely, and later Henry D. McBroom - not more than a hundred inhabitants lived about the town site.

What is God Looking For?

Years ago there was a news story about a man who was picking up the container of trash at a Wendy's restaurant when he noticed an unused game piece on a cup or french fry box. He pulled off the sticker and it was like a 100,000 dollar winner.

We should be so fortunate. It is said, "One man's trash is another man's treasure." We are all looking for what we consider valuable. Our lives are spent seeking some object of tremendous worth.

Have you ever wondered, "What is God looking for?" First Timothy 2:4 says God desires all men to be saved. God is seeking all men because He loves us dearly and recognizes our true worth and value. But, the sad truth is, while God seeks all, not all are seeking Him. The Bible states most will be lost (Mt. 7:13-14).

God is looking for a quality among men! A brokenness, a contrite heart, humility. Isaiah 66:3 says, "But on this one I will look: on him who is poor and of a contrite spirit, and one who trembles at my word." God is sifting through the world looking for broken, lonely, hurting people, who see their sin and the wreck of their lives and want Him. Think of all the people drawn to Jesus. Those considered the dregs of society, the "trash" (Mt. 21:32). Those seen as trash, were often God's treasure!!!

TENNESSEE FOLKS 'MAKE ME SMILE'

Hey there, if you are a Tennessee transplant ...you may find it difficult to understand the strange words and phrases uttered by your Southern neighbors.

Fear Not! Hold yor horses... you will soon catch on. Well, on second thought...JD and I have been here for 10 years and still are coming across those unique statements that only YOU folks can deliver so well!

Not only is your verbage unique but your willingness to be helpful in every way and to always wear a warm charming SMILE wherever you go. Even if I am having a bad day, those SMILES pick me up and say....aww, it can't be all that bad.

And then there is the ever famous: YA' ALL RIGHT? Gosh, someone actually cares if I'm Okay! You folks have no idea how much you lift my spirits and have given ME the gift to deliver more SMILES to folks than I have ever given before. Just the simple little things have become so important to me...and it's all due to you TENNESSEE FOLKS! Thank-you!

Let's get back to the clever phrases that my favorite folks have come up with. Out Yonder, good ole boy, Dills my pickle, hold yor horses, plant mah fleurs, can't never could, Hotter than two rats in a wool sock, fixin' to get that done, pickin' an a grinin', pick 'em up truck.... and the list goes on.

The NRA membership is hotter than a pistol and the Confederate flag will never die in THIS STATE! By the way, I love you fellas that fly the American flag and the Confederate flag together in the back of their trucks. LOVE IT!!!!

We've got Moonshine, boiled peanuts, mason jars replace our kitchen glasses, sweet tea, Me Maw's home cookin' and the most interesting road kill that I could ever imagine. Watch out for the deer running across the highway and in my case the other day...a huge black snake that the fella in front of me hit and flung it smack dab onto my van's windshield. Scared me! And it beat the stench of a skunk any day! Oh, well, my van needed washing anyway, but Wow was that ever a rude awakening!

One of my terrific Tennessee girl friends is a true southern girl...She travels with her dog and rifle in her pick-up truck and can skin and gut without even messin' up her hair. Sometimes her porch light's on, but nobody's home. Other than that, she considers herself a real country belle.

Her sister is half Mexican...so she says she is a Taco Belle. Maria is a gorgeous girl and has become a secondary member of that family who I am a close friend with.

Her husband is a state trooper. I asked him the other day: If you had to arrest your own mother...what would you do? He said: Call for back-up! Sometimes, he is about as useful as a screen door on a submarine.

Cousin Clarence went to Sea World the other day but they wouldn't let him in because fishing poles are not allowed. Considering the fact that he believes that the last words to the Star Spangled Banner is: PLAY BALL, I am not a bit surprised that he actually thought he could go fishing there.

If brains were leather, he wouldn't have enough to saddle a June bug!!

Great News...Uncle Festus just won the Lottery! Only to find out that the rules have changed. The winner gets 3 dollars a year for the next million years!

I heard that he and Martha always go to the movie theater in groups of 18 because 17 and under are not admitted.

Now, keep in mind that Festus' poppa died from drinking milk...the cow fell on him! He was the champion dynamite fisherman in the holler. He also had the worse bad breath in town....step back and get a tick tac...was just about all I ever said to him. I have to say that he DID live by two popular Tennessee rules: never kick a cow patty on a hot day or go to bed with yor spurs on.

My country family's brains are scarce as hen's teeth...but they do love COUNTRY MUSIC!!! And they have taught me to do the same. They love to go to concerts. They would buy the best seats and the whole gang would go. I always tease them and say: What's 40 feet long and has only 14 teeth? The front row of a Garth Brooks concert!

I often wonder if these singers were to sing their songs backwards, would they get their wife back, find their dog, get a job and keep their trailor?? Well, there my folks go now...off like a herd of turtles to who knows where!!

I have another question: I often wonder what happens to southern folks who can't talk anymore? Do they go into withdrawal? Aunt Patsy can talk your ear off and Uncle Pete is the family weather man. He asked me: What do tornadoes, hurricanes and a redneck divorce have in common? Someone's fixin' to lose a trailor. Honestly, Pete, can you not be serious for just one minute? (ugh).

Speaking of my wonderful Tennessee folks...JD and I and all our vendors really appreciated the amount of people who showed up for our spring reopening of the Short Mountain Trading Post!! It was a very successful day and everyone enjoyed the free lunch along with the fantastic buys they found throughout the front and inside the Barn. One vendor, Bobby Hale, was selling a huge bear trap. He said it was for catchin' black bears.

Of course, I asked him: Will it catch WHITE bears? Then someone else chimed in: Will it catch a BROWN bears? Then, GRIZZLY bears? POLAR bears? Oh, me...! Carolyn from the Chamber of Commerce attended and took lots of pictures.

So many past customers attended and we gained lots of new folks as well!! The Trading Post from now on in, will be open every Friday and Saturday of each week until Old man Winter shows up.

Billy Kaufman of the Short Mountain Distillery is opening his new tasting room and café. A true education will be offered about the spirits his creates at his Distillery. Full lunch service will be available every Thursday through Saturday from 11 AM to 4 PM. Billy invites you all to attend and enjoy yourselves!

Also, remember the Fund Raiser on June 4th offered by the Animal Shelter Coalition of Cannon County. You will find it at the Woodbury Courthouse Parking Lot...so don't miss out on great flea market items and much celebration!!

Well, OK everybody...I must sign off for now and thank you again for your Tennessee love and hospitality!! Take care of your family and friends, drive carefully, buckle up, laugh, keep smiling and enjoy your summer!! I will close with this: If you love Tennessee people raise your glass. If not, raise your standards!!

Haslam staff used private email for state business

While the U.S. State Department's inspector general on Wednesday released a blistering analysis of Hillary Clinton's use of private email, back in Tennessee reporter Phil Williams of NewsChannel 5 reported a nugget about the use of private email by Governor Bill Haslam and his staff.

Williams made a public records request of emails on the state email server of a handful of administrators that either were received from or sent to a private email address containing @billhaslam.com, a domain for the governor's campaign webpage.

Although it was only a snapshot for a defined slice of time, the request turned up several emails discussing state business that originated from the governor's former chief of staff, Mark Cate, and others in the Haslam administration who had a private email account through billhaslam.com.

Williams interviewed me for the story (see Williams' story), and showed me a sampling of the emails. They were clearly state government business, and sometimes included state government officials with state email accounts instead using their private accounts to discuss business with each other. They ended up on the state server because at least one person in the email chain at some point forwarded or copied the email to their state account.

From the story, Governor's Private Email Used For State Business:

We found state budget officials — from state accounts — briefing the governor himself at abillhaslam.com email address.

The governor's executive assistant, Janet McGaha, also uses billhaslam.com, corresponding in a couple of cases with then chief-of-staff Mark Cate — again at billhaslam.com.

We showed the emails to Nashville Tea Party activist Ben Cunningham.

"Obviously, they are using this private server to discuss public business," Cunningham said. "Those are public records."

In one example, Cate used that account to email an education activist about Common Core, copying Haslam's education commissioner — also apparently using private email.

In another case, a lobbyist emailed Cate at billhaslam.com about a letter he wanted the governor to sign.

Cate sent it on to the governor's policy director, Will Cromer, also at billhaslam.com.

The governor's office says any use of that account for official government business was "inadvertent and a rare occurrence."

And like Hillary Clinton, officials say the fact that such emails were eventually forwarded to the state email system shows they weren't trying to hide anything.

The last point about forwarding email to the state email system would hold more weight for me if all of the email on the private accounts conducting state business were forwarded by all of the administrators sending or receiving it all of the time. Frankly, we only know what was forwarded to state email accounts here and there — now how much was not.

State officials told Williams that they had "no idea" what the retention policy was for billhaslam.com — another troubling indicator that it might not be a priority to preserve public records that might sit on the private server.

These are the type of problems with habitually using private email for government business to begin with. The state should have policy about not using private email for government business, and respect for public records should be a high enough priority that top administrators, such as within the Haslam administration, should be leaders in making sure they are properly preserved.

If officials insist that they still might "inadvertently" use their private email for government business, then those same officials should let records custodians know, and if a relevant public records request is made, they should offer up their email to be independently searched for possible responsive records.

A key question that remains unanswered is how regularly the private email of Haslam staff members was searched when a journalist made a request for correspondence on particular topics. The governor's office told Williams they searched the governor's private email account in response to his request for correspondence about a contract to outsource state office buildings. Was this standard practice? I don't think we know.

The inspector general's report on Clinton's use of private email points out the problem with preservation that Tennesseans should be concerned about as well: From the Washington Post:

The report by the inspector general's office concludes that Clinton, the Democratic front-runner for president, handled email in a way that was "not an appropriate method" for preserving public records and that her practices failed to comply with department policy. The review found that Clinton, who has said her system was secure, also never provided security details to agency officials responsible for safeguarding sensitive government information.

The 83-page report reviewed email practices under the past five secretaries of state and found persistent problems with ensuring that records are preserved in keeping with federal law.

Hot weather makes me crave sweet watermelon

I know its rushing the season but the sudden hot weather has got me craving HOME-GROWN watermelon.

(Notice how HOME-GROWN is emphasized.)

Yep, there's nothing like the temperature climbing from the 70s up the 90s to make you crave an old fashioned watermelon cutting. Watermelon cuttings (yep, that's the correct term) were once a major social event around these parts ... not unlike an ice cream social.

Certain individuals were known for their skill in growing melons, like the late Mr. Tom Drake in Rutherford County, for example. Watermelon cuttings could also be family events shared "in the cool" of the afternoon on Saturdays and Sundays.

While it is perfect easy to buzz by your favorite megamarket and buy a watermelons ranging in size from a softball to a big old belly-buster. I would love to find one of those melons you don't see any more. They were round, dark green in color and perfect for cooling in a cellar or well house.

Home-grown watermelon. You can't beat it on a hot summer day.

The snake-striped varieties might be more seedless or easier to store in the refrigerator, but they just don't have than dense, sweet flesh of those old-fashioned melons, sliced up and served up on a sheet of newspaper in the backyard.

It was Saturday afternoon heaven for kids who ate as many seeds as they spit at their ornery siblings. Men would ate their slices with a knife or just standing up, flicking away the seeds.

Others loved their melon with a touch of salt.

Nowadays, you can encounter melon as part of salads and other dishes. While they might be tasty they just don't rival the taste of a big, ruby-red slice of heaven sliced with a butcher knife in a Tennessee country backyard. Maybe the iron in that old, thin knife made the difference? More that likely, the delicious taste was due to the loving care that went into growing that melon.

Of course, big, round watermelons aren't too easy to ship and you didn't want to pick those big boys until they were ripe and ready to eat. Soooooo.... they went away from the supermarkets a long time ago. Today, there is hope for a come-back thanks to an interest in reviving traditional plants.

And how are they doing that? Well it beats me, but independent seed companies like Southern Exposure Seed Exchange are offering varieties like Stone Mountain Watermelon described as "a commercial bestseller from the '30s and '40s - thanks to grower Rodger Winn for bringing back this old Southern favorite."

This watermelon is described as lightly oval 30 lb fruits with a dark green rind and sweet, juicy red flesh. That sounds right. Then there's the famous Bradford melon, called "the most luscious watermelon the Deep South has ever produced was once so coveted, 19th-century growers used poison or electrocuting wires to thwart potential thieves, or simply stood guard with guns in the thick of night."

A great-great-great-grandson of the Bradford's creator is striving to bring it back. This melon is so famous and so sweet it has been profiled by newspapers and even NPR (National Public Radio). The Bradford has quite a story behind it and dates back to the Revolutionary War.

"It was 1783, and the British had captured an American soldier named John Franklin Lawson and shipped him off to the West Indies to be imprisoned. Aboard the prison ship, the Scottish captain gave Lawson a wedge of watermelon that was so succulent, he saved every seed. When he got home to Georgia, Lawson planted the seeds and grew a popular watermelon. Around 1840, Nathaniel Napoleon Bradford of Sumter County, S.C., crossed the Lawson with the Mountain Sweet."

But (this will sound familiar) the melon didn't ship well and by 1920 had virtually disappeared except for a patch maintained by the Bradford family.

Now this luscious melon is getting back into distribution.

So there is hope for us melon lovers!

Keep the faith!!

Courier columnist Telegraph's impact still felt

One of the sorts of fun considerations about media is the debate about which media form has had the most impact. Of course, there is no good answer, especially since it is becoming more and more difficult to figure out just what we mean by "media," "hardware" and "software."

But I'd like to nominate a 170 year old technology celebrating an anniversary Tuesday, May 24: the telegraph. It was on that date, in 1844, Samuel Morse sent the first official telegraph message from the capitol building in Washington to Baltimore.

OK, no one sends telegrams today. In fact, the last Western Union telegraph transmission was in 2006. But the impact is still being felt.

Certainly high-speed communication began with the telegraph. And in many ways the telegraph was the precursor to the Internet, in that the telegraph provided almost instantaneous communication between sites around the world.

But news coverage is where the telegraph probably had the most impact. Before the telegraph news stories had to be relayed by hand and it may be weeks before a story made its way several hundred miles.

But more significantly, the telegraph made the fact of news coverage different, particularly news from the battlefield. Now, news of military engagements and casualties could be printed almost in real time, which, during the Civil War, made some field commanders more than a little nervous.

In fact, General William T. Sherman nearly executed several correspondents he thought were spies because of the way they were reporting news about the battlefield.

But there was also a psychological change in the news business. The ability to get news quickly naturally led to more competition to get the news published first. That in turn led to Yellow Journalism and the newspaper wars around the turn of the 20th century.

And this is what this news was like: exaggeration, scandal-mongering and sensationalism. Now that I think about it that sounds a lot like some of the news today. Maybe we need to rethink those benefits.

News from the Mountain

BY CAROL GUNTER

The Short Mountain community is saddened by the passing of Lillian Stanley Taylor age 81. She passed away Thursday evening May 19th 2016 after an extended illness. She was the wife of Bobby Taylor and was laid to rest in the Gunter - Grizzle cemetery on Sunday, May 22nd. Brother Charlie Lawson officiated. Please keep Bobby and the family in your prayers.

Night of Praise at the Smithville Church of God has been changed because of Memorial Day. It will now be Sunday evening June 5th. Try to make plans to be there as I know you will love the praise and worship songs that will uplift you.

Pastor Chris Moore's sermon Sunday focused on standing your ground in these troublesome times. I probably, like a lot of you, are fed up with what is being shoved down our throats on what seems is a daily basis. How does such a small percentage of people that are ungodly manage to stir up such a stink in our society. Evil doers will always have some backing to their agenda with money to spare. They do not hold God in reverence and His holy word, because they are too busy doing what the loser in this world wants them to do. This is sort of like lambs being led to the slaughter. Not at all am I buying into their philosophy as to why they choose to do their own thing and seal their own destruction in this life and lose their souls, but as we that are Christians all know everyone has a choice. To burn in that lake of fire for all of eternity or to live with Jesus in heaven for all of eternity where there is not more hurt or heartache or no more tears shed. Everything perfect there and we will be, too. When you ask Jesus to forgive you of your sins and He comes into your life the misery that you have been going through for so long will end, because your life will finally be headed in the right direction and have a grand purpose. That purpose will be to serve Him completely each and every day. How can a person thank Him enough for saving their soul? I really don't know as I have been thanking him going on 36 years now. Most important thing in my life is Jesus Christ. It doesn't matter where a person has been - it only matters what they're doing for Jesus since the day they were saved. A person is never alone in this world when grief comes their way because you have the only true friend there is and that is Jesus who will comfort you like no one else can. He's just waiting for your to reach out and ask Him to forgive you of your sins. Guarantee you you'll be glad you did.

Tragedy at the Preakness last Saturday for the second of the Triple Crown in horse racing that was run. There will not be a Triple Crown winner this year as the horse NyQuist that won the Kentucky Derby came in third at the Preakness. Two horses met untimely deaths. I believe one horse hurt it's leg and the other horse had a heart attack and died. The horse that hurt its leg had to be put down.

News on the homefront about Clyde and that mule. Didn't know it could be that hard to find a mule, but one hasn't been found yet. Clyde may have to settle for a horse, afterall. The 'little green men' think they have a solution to this dilemma. The 'invisible cow' is available and could possibly be a substitute. The little green fellas, of course, want to be in the parade and walk alongside the cow and Clyde. Kids would love this and if the cow disappeared, they would think it was a magic trick and they would be amazed and cheering and clapping their hands.

One of the hazards of pushing mowing when you're not sure of the rain that might come out of that cloud above is the chance of getting drenched. Thought for sure I could get that little bit of mowing done in a jiff and be back on our patio. Mother Nature didn't comply with my wishes and I got pretty wet in the aftermath. I dried out some time later. Did not have to worry about melting as "Aubrey" always said salt lumps up.

Chloe Evelyn Bogle doing pretty good Wednesday evening.

Spoke with Lou David Higgins last week and she is doing better, after a short stay in the hospital.

Carlton Melton still not doing well at this time. Do keep him in prayer and also Mai Nell.

If you have any news for this column, just give me a call at 615-563-4429. Have a great day!

In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer: I have overcome the world. John 16:33

The Hilton Stone American Legion Post 279 is proud to announce the five outstanding boys from the Cannon County High School who have been selected to attend Boy's State 2016, at the Tennessee Tech University, in Cookeville, Tennessee. High Schools in Tennessee have traditionally sent one Boy and one Girl from their school. Post 279 along with the teachers at the Cannon County High School determined that there are a lot of outstanding students in our school.

So we started selecting 2, then 3, and for 2016 we have selected 5 truly outstanding boys. 8th grade night was held at West Side School on Tuesday, May 24. A special part of that night was spent remembering Ms. Annie Cox. WSS has a green area dedicated to her memory. The 2016 8th grade class was the last class that Ms. Cox taught. She taught for 43 years in Cannon County.

We paused to take a moment to take a picture at her spot with the kids that were in that last class.

The Annie Cox Car show will be held Oct. 22. The money raised from car show fund the scholarship given to CCHS seniors pursuing a degree in education.

Youngest MTSU student speaks at National Spelling Bee

MTSU's youngest student has been invited to help make a welcoming speech at this year's Scripps National Spelling Bee in National Harbor, Maryland, near Washington, D.C.

Benjamin Kulas, 15, a sophomore physics major from Murfreesboro who advanced to the 2014 national semifinals and was eliminated in the 2011 preliminary round, received an invitation from director Paige Kimble to speak after she and a colleague heard him speak at the Tennessee Titans Regional Spelling Bee in March.

This year, 285 spellers — 144 boys and 141 girls — from across the U.S. and other countries will compete for the title of National Spelling Bee champion. The purpose of the bee is to help students improve their spelling, increase their vocabularies, learn concepts and develop correct English usage to help them all their lives. ESPN networks will air spelling bee preliminary and final rounds live.

"Oh, not very long," Kulas said when asked how long it took to accept Kimble's offer. "... About as long as it took to write an email reply."

In Memory of
passed away June 3, 2015

Our hearts ache in sadness and secret tears still flow, What it meant to lose you, no one will ever know.

When we are sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong,
We seem to hear you whisper
"Cheer up and carry on."

Each time we see your picture,
You seem to smile and say,
"Don't cry, I'm up in heaven.
We'll meet again Someday."

Missed by mother, sisters, brother and all your Family

Infant's Constipation Resolved After Chiropractic

The Journal of Pediatric, Maternal & Family Health published a case study on February 1, 2016, documenting the case of a baby boy suffering from constipation being helped by chiropractic. The study reports that constipation is a common pediatric problem affecting about 3% of children.

According to the Mayo clinic website, constipation in infants and toddlers is not determined by the frequency of bowel movements but rather by the difficulty, pain and consistency of the movement. Their website describes how to detect painful movement in an infant. "Infants experiencing painful bowel movements might arch their backs, tighten their buttocks or cry. Keep in mind that infants have weak abdominal muscles and often strain during bowel movements."

The authors of the study note that most medical approaches to constipation are not very effective. They explain, "When one considers the perspective that approximately 30% of children beyond puberty continue to struggle with symptoms of constipation, new therapeutic strategies are necessary thus making alternative therapies an attractive care option for children suffering from the disorder."

In this case, an 8-month-old baby boy was brought to the chiropractor by his mother to see if he could be helped with his constipation. The infant's mother noted that her son had not had a bowel movement for five days and was in obvious pain and discomfort. She observed that her son would strain for a bowel movement without success. The baby was given fluids and not given any from the desk of

A chiropractic examination consisting of heat readings, static and motion palpation was performed. It was determined that subluxations were present, and with the consent of the mother, specific corrective chiropractic adjustments were begun.

The effects of the chiropractic adjustment were immediate. The case study reports, "As the mother and son were in their car to leave the clinic parking lot, the patient proceeded to have a very large bowel movement while sitting in his car seat. The mother phoned the clinic two hours later to inform that the patient had proceeded to have an additional two bowel movements since they had left the chiropractic clinic." The mother also reported that her infant son's disposition had greatly improved.

In their conclusion the authors wrote, "We described the successful chiropractic care of an infant suffering from constipation. In addition to resolving the child's presenting complaint, the patient's quality of life improved significantly as reported by his mother."

Mrs. Annie Cox Memorial Scholarship goes to Tristan Choate

The Mrs. Annie Cox Memorial Scholarship Committee is proud to announce the awarding of a scholarship to Mr. Tristan Ray Choate, Cannon County High School Senior - Class of 2016, who graduated May 27th, 2016.

This scholarship is in memory of longtime educator and beloved Cannon County citizen, Mrs. Annie Cox. It has been established as an additional financial resource for a student intending to major in Elementary Education who has demonstrated achievement and based on need. Mrs. Cox was a very special person to all of Cannon County, and appropriately this scholarship honors her "Love for Education and Children, Character, Capability, and Need." The scholarship personifies Mrs. Cox's words, "I love to see children learn! I just love it! And want to make a difference in the life of a child." --- Mrs. Annie Cox.

The Scholarship amount was $1,500 in which Tristan will use toward his demonstrated need to attend Middle Tennessee State University intending to major in Music Education with emphasis on the elementary level. He is the son of Billy Choate and Lisa Choate of Woodbury. Tristan stated in his essay which was a part of the scholarship application, "Scholarships like this

The Mrs. Annie Cox Memorial Scholarship is awarded annually to a Cannon County High School Senior that is on track to graduate this year, have an application pending to or acceptance received from a state accredited two or four year college/university, recommendation of a CCHS faculty member, intending to major in Elementary Education, and write a 300 Word Essay entitled, "Why I deserve this scholarship, and why do I want to be an Elementary Teacher?"

There will be various fundraising efforts by the committee to fund this scholarship including the Annie Cox Memorial Scholarship Car Show held in the Fall 2016.

Sheriff's Office participates in 'Click It or Ticket' effort

WOODBURY - The Cannon County Sheriff's Department is partnering with the Tennessee Highway Safety Office to increase seat belt enforcement from May 23 to June 5, surrounding one of the busiest travel weekends of the year.

"If you ask the family members of those unrestrained people who were killed in crashes, they'll tell you they wish their loved ones had buckled up," said Sheriff Darrell Young. "The bottom line is that seat belts save lives. If these enforcement crackdowns get people's attention and get them to buckle up, then we've done our job. There is no good excuse for not wearing a seat belt."

This year, Tennessee celebrates its 30 year anniversary of seat belt legislation. The state first enacted a mandatory seat belt law in 1986. The law was updated in 2004 to make seat belt violations a primary offense. In 2015, the law was again updated to more than double the fine for seat belt citations. Tennessee's current seat belt use rate is 86.2 percent. This classifies Tennessee as a "low use" state on a national level. According to the Department of Safety and Homeland Security, 343 individuals killed in traffic crashes last year were not wearing a seat belt. This group makes up over forty-eight percent of all those killed in passenger vehicles.

"We are putting an emphasis on nighttime seat belt enforcement," said Tennessee Highway Safety Office Interim Director Jason Ivey. "The problem of unbelted vehicle occupants becomes worse at night. Nationally, 59 percent of vehicle occupants who were killed in traffic crashes overnight in 2013 were not wearing their seat belts at the time of the crash, compared to 43 percent during daytime hours. We are observing a similar trend at the statewide level. Looking at the last five years of data, there are significant differences in restraint use at night versus during the day."

For more information on seat belt safety, visit www.tntrafficafety.org.

HISTORY...

were believed to have been held in Henry D. McBroom's home also. The early Cannon county court did meet in McBroom's Tavern later on, since there was no courthouse for two years. Early Cannon County court minutes also state various court trials and sessions were held from time to time in 'Fisher's Tavern.'

The commissioners, during this first court session proceeded to vote on this 'stage stop' called Danville as the new seat of Justice. The motion carried. There arose opposition on this move almost immediately. One group, described by the late Dr. Robert Mason as the 'Liberty faction' - settlers living in the so-called 'surplus lands' around the Clear Fork area - raised concerns about not having much of a say at this meeting. They also reaffirmed their support for the county seat to be placed near the Adam Dale settlement at Liberty. The quick action taken by these first commissioners haunted the politics of the new county of Cannon for many years following its creation.

Consumer Affairs Provides Tips to Avoid Craigslist Housing Scams Use Caution to Protect Your Money and Your Identity

The population boom in cities like Nashville has many consumers turning to online housing websites such as Craigslist to find an apartment or rental home. While these popular sites offer convenience for housing seekers, the Tennessee Department of Commerce & Insurance's (TDCI) Division of Consumer Affairs warns that they can often be a playground for identity thieves and scammers.

"When it comes to any scam, you must be diligent to avoid getting duped," said TDCI Deputy Commissioner Bill Giannini. "Knowing the warning signs of a fraudulent online property listing can help you dodge a disaster. Do extensive research before committing to a rental or giving anyone your personal information or money."

While scamming tactics are constantly changing, the Division of Consumer Affairs offers the following guidelines to help consumers identify and avoid potentially fraudulent online housing listings:

- As a general rule, if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. Trust your instincts. If a listing offers an unbelievable price for a nice apartment in a trendy part of town, it's most likely a scam. Be wary of con artists trying to claim that the good deal is merely the result of a sudden job relocation or out of the country emergency.
- If the property owner won't agree to meet with you in person, it's a bad sign. Try to always do business face-to-face. Long-distance scammers will often promise a plan to get the keys into your hands. It might involve a lawyer or an "agent" working on their behalf. Some scammers even create fake keys. Don't send money to them overseas. If you can't meet in person, see the apartment, or sign a lease before you pay, keep looking. If you can't visit an apartment or house yourself, ask someone you trust to go and confirm that it's for rent, and that it is what was advertised. In addition to setting up a meeting, do a search on the owner and listing. If you find the same ad listed under a different name, that's a clue it may be a scam.

- Beware of requests to wire money or provide personal information. It's never a good idea to send money to someone you've never met in person for an apartment you haven't seen. That's true even if they send you a contract first. Wiring money is the same as sending cash — once you send it, you have no way to get it back. An agent or landlord shouldn't ask for personal information, such as a date of birth, bank account number, Social Security number, PayPal information, or a phone verification code before you see a property.
- Do Your Research. Read the listing carefully. Check for typos, grammatical errors, and improper wording as these could indicate a scam. Research everything the advertisement mentions, including the address and any names. If it's an apartment, investigate the company that owns and manages the building. If you're trying to lease a sublet, talk to the management company first. If a listing seems suspicious, try copying and pasting some of the phrases into an online search engine to if there's an association with any scam alerts.

If you encounter a fake or suspicious online housing listing, report it to the site and to your local law enforcement agency.

"Lots of Congratulations to spread throughout the Community"

Lots of congratulations. We'll begin with graduations. Sunday the 22nd Prosperity Baptist recognized their graduates high school graduates - Hailey Walker from DeKalb County and Alayna Reed from Cannon County. That night their parents hosted a reception following the Evening Worship Service. Tuesday night the church was the place to be for the Kindergarten and Eighth Grade graduation ceremonies. At 5:00 p.m., 9 kindergartens did their march down the aisle.

They did a "kindergarten" version of the "Summer Nights" song from the movie "Grease". At 7:00 p.m. 20 students marched down the aisle to "Pomp and Circumstance" where they received awards and diplomas. There were laughter, shedding of tears, hugs and slaps on the back for jobs well done. Each student was encouraged to represent their families, school and teachers as they exit their "normal" days and enter a new "normal" when they enter high school.

Hannah runs for silver

DAVID HUNTER
Courier Sports Writer

Cannon County High School junior Hannah Whited made her third trip to the TSSAA Spring Fling on May 26 as a member of the Murfreesboro Central Magnet track and field team. She was a part of the 4x800 Relay team, which competed for a state title at the TSSAA Class A/AA State Track Meet at the Dean A. Hayes Track and Soccer Stadium on the MTSU campus.

In front of a standing room crowd of over 1,500, and temperatures in the low 90s, the Lady Tigers were one lap away from defending their state title in the same event. However, the Christian Academy of Knoxville anchor runner passed Whited on the first turn of the final lap, and she pulled away from Whited to win the state title. MCMS finished second in a time of 9:47.39, while CAK won in a final time of 9:38.36.

Coming into the Spring Fling meet, MCMS was ranked second, while CAK was third. However, CAK saved an alternate runner for the state meet after not using her in previous meets in the same relay event.

According to the TSSAA, this move is legal, but it played a role in deciding a state championship. The Lady Tigers, including Whited missed out on a chance to repeat their 4x800 state title from 2015.

"We did okay, but the team that came in front of us, one of their runners was unexpected," Whited said. "So, it kind of put us off in our placement a little bit, but other than that I think we performed well."

Whited was a member of the four distance relay team along with MCMS student-athletes, Camille Smith, Abby Graves and Caroline Smith, which finished second at the Class A/AA Middle Sectional on May 19 in a time of 9:54.03 just behind event winner

Cannon County High School Junior Hannah Whited taking the baton for the final leg of the 4 X 800 relay race at the TSSAA Spring Fling. Hannah's team finished in second place at the State track and field meet.

RONNY BURKS photos

East Nashville Magnet School. The Eagles finished with a winning time of 9:54.03. However, it was good enough to qualify for the Spring Fling.

"It means a lot going out there as a team," Whited said on May 20. "It creates good memories, and being able to have the privilege of running together, especially doing what we like."

She also tried to advance to the state meet in both the 800 meter run and the 4x400 relay, but each of them finished sixth, which was not good enough to qualify for it.

However, this was the third trip in three seasons to the Spring Fling as a member of the Lady Tigers track team to go along with three state appearances for the Lionette cross country team during the same time period. MCMS track and field distance coach Julie Mullane has been pleased with Whited's performance this season along with the way she blends in with her teammates at a different school.

"Hannah is the lynch pin of the team," Mullane said on May 20. "She is so genuinely sweet and down to earth with no ego to speak of-she is naturally easy to like. The group of girls I have are phenomenal in their respect for and mutual enjoyment of each other. Hannah is quietly competent. She will run any race and relay with any group of girls-it is refreshing to work with someone who is not only talented, but who simply enjoys the opportunity to run-either seriously like the 4x800 chance of a state championship or helping out a sprint medley at a Doug Hall relay."

Coming into the Spring Fling, the 4x800 relay team had the second best time in the state behind the ENMS team who beat them at the sectional meet last week. However, Whited admitted the Lady Tigers could have ran better at the last meet, but they want to run their best at the biggest race of the season.

"It was not our best performance we could of definitely, if we all could have ran our best times we could have gotten first, or been head to head," Whited said. "I think our performance was still well, and we are saving our energy for state."

What makes the Spring Fling special for Whited is the chance to have to only make the short 20 minute drive from Cannon County to Murfreesboro for the most important meet of the season, and run in front of family and friends.

"It's really nice, because it helps my nerves," Whited said. "It is all familiar surroundings, and it helps a lot."

Each year, the state meet draws a capacity crowd at the same stadium, which just hosted the 2016 Conference USA Outdoor Track and Field Championships for the Blue Raiders. It is by far the biggest crowd the state's high school track athletes see all season in the meet, which decided state champions, and the huge attendance helps her perform better.

"It is definitely nerve-racking, but it helps you perform better," Whited said of running in front of a big crowd. "There are so many people watching you. It makes you want to do well."

state in preparing for the Sectional this week.

"Being in the event previously, it helps me know the top competition is going to be really tough," Whited said. "It helps me push harder."

CCHS Week In Review

All of the Cannon County sports teams finished up the 2016 season last week in the district tournament. However, two Lionettes junior Hannah Whited and senior Autumn King advanced to the next round in tennis and track and field. King's season ended in the Region 4A/AA semifinals, while Whited qualified for the Class A/AA Sectional for Murfreesboro Central Magnet School.

The Lionette junior competes in track and field for the Lady Tigers since CCHS does not field a team in the sport. During the Class A-AA Middle East Sub-Sectional at Watertown on May 10-12, Whited advanced to the Class A-AA Sectional in three distance events, 800 Meter Run, 4x400 Meter Relay and the 4x800 Meter Relay.

Coming into the meet, the No. 1 ranked girl from the state in the event had a time this season, which was a second faster than Whited's best time in the event in 2016. However, when it counted Whited won the 800 in a time of

"Sub-Sectional was tough, because there was definitely a bunch of competition for the 800," Whited said. "I just went out there and tried to pace off of her and at the end I just kicked it."

She was also on the second place, 4x400 Meter Relay team, which advanced to the Sectional on May 19 at Lipscomb along with the 4x800 Meter Relay team. Even though, she attends a fellow district school from her teammates the relay team chemistry has been the key to success this season.

"We see each other every day at practice and running has brought us closer together," Whited said of her teammates in the relays. "We all enjoy doing that sport, and it has helped us a lot during races. We are all really good friends, so we try to push other."

Now, the goal for Whited is something all of the track and field athletes around the state race for is a berth to the TSSAA Spring Fling on May 26 in Murfreesboro at the Dean

A. Hayes Track and Soccer Stadium on the MTSU campus.

However, it is a feeling that Whited is familiar with since she will be hoping to go 3-for-3 in her high school track and field career at MCMS. She has also represented the Lionettes at the cross country state meet in all three seasons at the school. She hopes to use the experience learned from previous trips to the state in preparing for the Sectional this week.

Stop the Summer Slide - Read 20

Summer is a great time for children to relax their brains from their school's structured learning environment. However, the National Summer Learning Association has completed research on this topic. They have found that all young children experience learning losses when they do not engage in educational activities during the summer months. Most students lose two months of grade level equivalency in mathematical computation skills over the course of the summer and an equal amount of loss in total reading skills. Then, when students return in the fall, teachers spend about six weeks reviewing "old material" to make up for summer learning loss. As early as first grade, summer learning loss can be recognized, and by the end of sixth grade students who have experienced summer learning loss over the years are an average of two year behind their peers.

Sam Harris, father of Aidyn Harris, taking the READ20 Pledge. Aidyn will be a student in Mrs. Ana Smith's 2016-2017 Kindergarten Class at East Side School.

The Cannon County School System is initiating a campaign to help stop this summer learning loss. The campaign is simple. We are asking parents to take a pledge to read 20 minutes a day with their child over the summer months. The simple act of reading aloud to your child or reading with your child for 20 minutes a day is the most powerful way to fight summer learning loss. So, parents please take the pledge. Please contact your school or Dr. Regina Merriman at 615-563-5752 for more information about this program.

West Side recognized members of the ABC Club for the 3rd nine weeks

Congrats to all the ABC members for a job well done.

MTSU Lady Raiders Abbey Sissom Reads to Kindergarten

The Kindergarten class at West Side was so excited to meet MTSU Lady Raider Basketball player Abbey Sissom. Abbey came to read to the Kindergarten class for Read Across America Day. She brought the students a poster of the MTSU Lady Raiders Basketball Team and autographed her picture.

The Tower of Babel

Up until this point in the Bible, the whole world had one language - one common speech for all people. The people of the earth became skilled in construction and decided to build a city with a tower that would reach to heaven. By building the tower they wanted to make a name for themselves and also prevent their city from being scattered.

God came to see their city and the tower they were building. He perceived their intentions, and in His infinite wisdom, He knew this "stairway to heaven" would only lead the people away from God. He noted the powerful force within their unity of purpose. As a result, God confused their language, causing them to speak different languages so they would not understand each other. By doing this, God thwarted their plans. He also scattered the people of the city all over the face of the earth.

Points of Interest from the Story:

When God speaks in this story, He uses the phrase, "let us go," referencing the trinity.

Some scholars believe that this marks the point in history where God divided the earth into separate continents.

God says in Genesis 11:6, "If as one people speaking the same language they have begun to do this, then nothing they plan to do will be impossible for them." (NIV) God realizes that when people are unified in purpose they can accomplish impossible feats, both noble and ignoble. This is why unity in the body of Christ is so important.

To build, the people used brick instead of stone and tar instead of mortar. They used "man-made" materials, instead of more durable "God-made" materials. The people were building a monument to themselves, to call attention to their own abilities and achievements, instead of giving glory to God.

Numerous ATV Trauma Admissions Concerning: Monroe Carell Jr. Children's Hospital at Vanderbilt Offers Tips to Keep ATV Riders Safe

Each year as the temperature rises, the reported number of all-terrain vehicle (ATV)-related incidents also increases. Although not even summer yet, Monroe Carell Jr. Children's Hospital at Vanderbilt has already seen close to 10 ATV trauma-related admissions since April of this year.

Always wear protective gear - especially a helmet - when riding ATVs. Head injuries are by far the leading cause of death and disability related to ATV crashes. Helmets are known to reduce head injuries by 85 percent. Wear a motorcycle or motorized sports helmet and make sure it is certified by the U.S. Department of Transportation or the Snell Memorial Foundation.

Avoid driving ATVs with a passenger or riding as a passenger. The majority of ATVs are designed to carry only one person.

Take a hands-on safety training course if one is available in your area. For more information <http://www.childrenshospital.org/vanderbilt.org/services>.

How to Pick a Medicare Advantage Plan

Dear Savvy Senior,
I'm approaching 65 and am interested in a Medicare Advantage plan to cover my health care and medications. What tips can you provide to help me pick a plan?
Medicare Shopper

Dear Shopper,

Medicare Advantage plans have become increasingly popular among retirees over the past 10 years, as more than 30 percent of Medicare participants are now enrolled in an Advantage plan. Here are some tips and tools to help you pick a plan that fits your needs.

First, let's start with a quick review. Medicare Advantage plans (also known as Medicare Part C) are government approved health plans sold by private insurance companies that you can choose in place of original Medicare. The vast majority of Advantage plans are managed-care policies such as HMOs or PPOs that require you to get your care within a network of doctors.

If you join an Advantage plan, the plan will provide all of your Part A (hospital insurance) and Part B (medical insurance) coverage. Some plans even offer extra benefits like vision, dental and hearing, and most plans include Part D prescription drug coverage too.

You also need to know that the monthly premiums for many Advantage plans are cheaper than if you got original Medicare, plus a separate Part D drug plan and a Medigap policy, but their deductibles and co-pays are usually higher. That makes these plans better suited for healthier retirees.

How to Pick

To help you pick a plan, a good first step is to call the office managers of the doctors you use and find out which Advantage plans they accept, and which ones they recommend. Then go to the Medicare Plan Finder tool at Medicare.gov/find-a-plan and type in your ZIP code or your personal information to compare health plans with drug coverage in your area.

This tool also provides a five-star rating system that evaluates each plan based on past customer satisfaction and quality of care the plan delivers. When comparing, here are some key points to consider:

Total costs: Look at the plan's entire pricing package, not just the premiums and deductibles. Compare the maximum out-of-pocket costs plus the copays and coinsurance charged for doctor office visits, hospital stays, visits to specialists, prescription drugs and other medical services. This is important because if you choose an Advantage plan, you're not allowed to purchase a Medigap policy, which means you'll be responsible for paying these expenses out of your own pocket.

Drug coverage: Check the plan's formulary – the list of prescription drugs covered – to be sure all the medications you take are covered without excessive co-pays or requirements that you try less expensive drugs first.

Dental, vision and hearing: Some Advantage plans come with dental, vision and hearing benefits, but are often limited. Get the details on what exactly is covered.

Coverage while traveling: Most Advantage plans limit you to using in-network doctors only within a service area or geographic region, so find out what's covered if you need medical care when you're away from home.

Out-of-network coverage: Check to see what's covered if you want to see a specialist in a hospital that is not in a plan's network. You can get a list of doctors and hospitals that take part in a plan on the plan's website.

Retiree benefits: If you have employer-based retiree health coverage, be sure you speak with the benefits manager, because signing up for Medicare Advantage may void your coverage.
