Schools Look To Commission To Approve Funding Energy Conservation Program

By: Keith Ready, Cannon Courier

For over a year and a half, the Cannon County Schools have been working with the Trane Company on implementing an Energy Conservation and Infrastructure Improvement Program within the schools.

The first step of the program was to conduct a no cost feasibility analysis followed by a no cost preliminary audit.

The next step in the process was for Trane to conduct an investment grade audit which is a vital step in that it will finalize savings guarantees and construction documents. The Schools through their Board, approved the funding for this audit. Now it's up to Cannon County Commission to approve a resolution.

Vote to Revote Fails

By: Keith Ready, Cannon Courier

The search for a County Finance Director should be resuming soon now since the County Commission has declined the opportunity to place the issue on the March 2020 ballot for a revote.

The subject to bring it back to the ballot for a revote was brought up by Commissioner Corey Davenport during the October meeting of the Cannon County Commission who voiced his opinion that he was for the office even though he brought it up with the chance of putting the vote before the citizens of the county. Davenport remarked "I got asked to bring it to the commission. At no time have I ever been against the office. I am just for it

Beef Market Update From The Cannon UT Extension Office

FED CATTLE:

Fed cattle traded $2 to $3 higher compared to last week on a live basis. Prices on a live basis were mainly $114 to $115 while dressed prices were mainly $181 to $182.

The 5-area weighted average prices thru Thursday were $114.16 live, up $2.25 from last week and $181.41 dressed, up $3.82 from a week ago. A year ago, prices were $112.45 live and $179.58 dressed.

Optimism remains strong in the live cattle business as it should. The finished cattle market is trading $14 higher than its fall low on a live basis which occurred eight weeks ago. Live cattle futures are pricing in further gains before the end of the year which could mean a 20 percent price improvement from the fall lows. Beyond the end of the year and pushing into the spring of 2020, live cattle futures are predicting finished cattle to reach $126 per hundred-weight. The current expectation for April is about $3 lower than the highest single week average in the spring of 2019 which may be disappointing to some. However, there is a good possibility of live cattle experiencing a single weekly average in 2020 that meets or exceeds $130.

BEEF CUTOUT:

At midday Friday, the Choice cutout was $239.25 up $0.96 from Thursday and up $6.91 from last Friday. The Select cutout was $213.51 up $0.49 from Thursday and up $6.60 from last Friday. The Choice Select spread was $25.74 compared to $25.43 a week ago.

It would appear that holiday beef purchases are underway with the strong gains in beef cutout prices the past few weeks. It is hard to fathom anything else that is providing extraordinary support for these prices other than holiday beef buying. The export market continues to provide some support for beef prices though 2019 beef and veal export quantities are not keeping pace with 2018 levels. Beef and veal exports in September exceeded 253 million pounds on a carcass weight basis which was nearly 7 million pounds less than September 2018. What hurt more than the decline in quantity was the decline in beef and veal export value which declined nearly $34.6 million to $580 million in September. The beef export quantity decline compared to a year ago represented a 2.7 percent decrease while the value decline represented a 5.6 percent decrease.

The trade issues being faced do influence beef and cattle prices, but the bulk of the focus should remain on domestic demand as it makes up a much larger portion of the industry than exports.

OUTLOOK:

Based on Tennessee weekly auction market price averages, steer prices were $2 to $4 higher compared to last week while heifer prices were $3 to $5 higher compared to a week ago. Slaughter cow prices were mostly steady to $1 higher compared to the previous week while bull prices were mostly steady compared to a week ago. The strongest calf demand re-mains with weaned and pre-conditioned cattle as stocker producers look to fill pastures with low risk calves for winter grazing. However, some winter grazing operations are willing to take on high risk cattle for a discount which appears to be between $40 and $50 per head on this week's market.

The discount on freshly weaned calves is largely due to expectations of morbidity and mortality this time of year. Some of the health risk will be reduced as daily temperature swings narrow in late fall and early winter.

Though some of the health risk may be reduced as the market gets deeper into the calendar, tremendous health risk re-mains while production risk can increase with poor winter weather conditions. This will be a factor to keep an eye on as the fall and winter marketing periods progress. From the buyer's standpoint, the market appears to have a few opportunities for adding weight. With the assumption of buying 425 to 575 pound steers in November and carrying those calves for 150 days with an average daily gain of two pounds per day, the expected value of gain ranges from $1.42 to $1.54 per pound. There is no guarantee in the stated value of gain if no form of price risk management is used. Thus, to increase the probability of successfully reaching the stated value of gain, one would have to sell a futures contract or do something similar to successfully capture this value. There is a strong potential for profit in what the market is currently offering, but this profit potential will change as the market changes which means producers can either speculate that the market will stay the same or go higher or they can hedge their bets and capture the value being offered today.

For more information on the market contact Bruce Steelman Cannon County Director UT Extension at 615-563-2554.

Lower 40 Installment: The Pope at the Pearly Gates

Meat 'N' Potatoes
 Mike Vinson

It's been awhile since we had a Lower 40 installment. For those who don't know what 'Lower 40' refers to, it's quite simple: the human race's insatiable appetite for sexual-themed subject matter, and the media serving up a smorgasbord of such on a near-daily basis: Slick Willie and Monica; Donald Trump and 'Stormy' Daniels; Bill Cosby; Harvey Weinstein, etc.

But the Pope at the Pearly Gates?! I realize it could be construed as an irrelevant stretch, but read along and maybe you'll see it's not as bad as what you might think.

DECADES AGO ...

A beloved Pope died and went to heaven. Saint Peter greeted him in a warm embrace.

"Welcome your holiness", Saint Peter cordially said. "Your dedication and unselfishness in depriving yourself of worldly pleasures and dedicating every aspect of your life to serving your fellow human has earned you unprecedented VIP status in heaven. You may pass through the gates without further delay, and are afforded free access to all parts of heaven."

The Pope smiled and nodded his head.

Continued Saint Peter: "You are also granted an open-door policy and may, at your own discretion, meet with any heavenly leader, including the Father, minus prior appointment. Is there anything else your holiness desires?"

"Well, yes," the Pope replied. "I have often pondered some of the mysteries that have confounded theologians through the ages—particularly those that apply to the Catholic church. Are there, perhaps, any transcripts that recorded the actual conversations between God and the prophets of old? I would love to see what was actually said, verbatim, without the dimming of memories over centuries and the unavoidable errors that come with human translation."

With that, Saint Peter immediately ushered the Pope to the TOP SECRET archives of heavenly library and explained how to retrieve the various documents from hardbound copies. The Pope was thrilled and, with a magnifying glass in hand, set about reviewing the history of humanity's relationship with God. Convinced all was in order, Saint Peter then returned to manning the Pearly Gates. Ho Chi Minh was set to appear at the Gates in a few minutes, and Saint Peter had to be there to send him packing.

ONE YEAR LATER ...

A wail of anguish pierced the quiet of the library with, "I knew it! I knew it! I knew it! And all those years, I suffered unimaginable deprivation when there was no need! Geez, what a bummer!"

Saint Peter, realizing something of great significance has just gone down, dropped his crossword puzzle and dashed to the library!

Moses and Elijah, picking a mix of fruit from the Tree of Life, climbed down from the Tree and tore out for the library!

Archangel Gabriel, having been perched atop Mount Sinai for the last six months listening to trumpet great Miles Davis's "Greatest Hits" CD, arrived in the heavenly library in just a matter of seconds, having blown by Venus and Neptune faster than the Speed of Light—nearly colliding with a space shuttle in the process!

Saint Peter, Gabriel, Moses, and Elijah found the Pope pacing the floor, his eyes bugged, his face blood red, his forehead lathered with sweat!

"What seems to be the problem, your holiness?" Saint Peter sincerely inquired.

"You sounded so distressed," Gabriel opined. "I heard you all the way over on Mount Sinai."

Shooting Gabriel a quick, hard look, Moses chimed in with, "What in heaven is so important that it could upset you this badly, your holiness? You're behaving worse than the Children of Israel."

The Pope stood in place pointing down at a parchment scroll, so upset he just stuttered, "There's ... there's ... there's ..."

Stepping in, Elijah placed his hand on the Pope's shoulder and, with a tone of firm confidence, said, "Your holiness, we'll get through this. They don't call me the 'Miracle Worker' for nothing."

Taking several deep breaths, the Pope made another stab at revealing the source of his angst. Again pointing to a single word on the scroll, he finally got it out, repeating over and over: "There's an 'R' ... there's an 'R' ... there's an 'R'... you see, it's spelled CELIBRATE, not celibate!"

Sesame Street

Media Matters
 Larry Burriss

Quick, where does the expression, "A spoonful of sugar helps the medicine go down," come from?

If you answered, "Mary Poppins," congratulations, give yourself a reward.

Mary Poppins might have said that in 1964, but Joan Ganz Cooney and Lloyd Morrisett gave the idea new life five years later when the first episode of "Sesame Street" aired in the second week of November, 1969.

Their goal was to make education for children palatable enough it would easily go down.

Although several television programs had already put educational content into their formats, "Romper Room" and "Captain Kangaroo" immediately came to mind, "Sesame Street" was the first to directly apply educational theories to what might be described as a televised classroom curriculum.

One of their objectives was to prepare young children for school, by using modeling, repetition, and humor as part of the actual teaching mission.

But this was not a program where educational material was simply added to an existing children's program, rather, the educational content was deliberately thought out

Despite numerous changes over the years, more than 1,000 independent research projects have consistently shown positive benefits from the episodes.

And how many episodes are we talking about? Well, here are some statistics: in the 50 years the program has been aired, Sesame Street has produced more than 4,500 episodes, 35 television specials, 200 home videos and 180 albums.

Its YouTube channel has more than 5 million subscribers.

There are more than 190 million international viewers watching the program in 70 languages, and it is estimated 86 million Americans watched the series as children.

The program has won more awards than any other children's show, with 189 Emmys and 11 Grammys.

Not bad for program featuring an oversized yellow bird, a blue cookie monster and something green that lives in a trash can.

The Shirt

Jerome Curran
 Columnist

So, there I was at the laundromat, with nearly every article of clothing I owned. I'd practiced the fine art of procrastination, which led me to that point. Having loaded my clothes into two of the biggest washing machines, I realized I had no detergent. Of course, the vending machines for detergent were empty, so I decided to make a Dollar General run, trusting no one would take someone else's dirty clothes. Thankfully no one did.

Here is a short back story. At the time of this clothes washing expedition, I was also dealing with internal struggles. I'm single, but the father of three beautiful children, two girls and a boy, and the once stepfather of a beautiful little girl, whom I still love as my own. My oldest and youngest daughters were born in marriage, my son was not, unfortunately, and I've had no contact with him for several years, though I've tried. I do see my girls on a regular basis. I know I don't see them enough though and, honestly, I feel like a failure.

Continuing on...the clothes are washed and placed in the dryer...all of them, in one big dryer. 40 minutes of high heat tumbling later, I pulled them out and into the laundry cart where I rolled them to the folding table. I began sorting as usual, putting socks in a pile, underwear, etc. I started pulling and folding articles of clothing at random, making the appropriate stacks of jeans and shirts, whatever was next.

I pulled a shirt and laid it on the table to fold and it was as if time stopped. There was something printed on that shirt. Words that define someone. It was at this point I realized I'd never worn the shirt in public, other than as an undershirt. I didn't expect it to be there honestly.

As I stared down at those words, tears came to my eyes. That shirt was given to me as a Father's Day gift years ago. The words were simply "Best Father". As the memories flooded in, and the retrospective thoughts burned deep, there was in that moment, a revelation about me. I didn't feel worthy of that simple phrase, that "title", and I was ashamed. It was also at that moment I realized my kids think otherwise of me. My perspective of myself as their father, and their perspective of me as their father, are apparently two very different points of view.

It was from that point I began to accept the way they see me as the truth. That shirt changed my life you might say, because I apply this principle to other areas of life, and I want to encourage you to as well. If you're a single mom, the next time someone tells you you're a good mother, stop and listen. They are telling you what they see from their perspective. They don't see the thoughts in the back of your mind of the 100 ways you feel like you've failed today, they just see you doing your best, and doing it well.

Maybe you're recovering from an addiction, and every day is a struggle. There's a non-stop battle going on in your mind and you feel like a failure, but then someone says, "you're doing good, you're going to make it." Believe those words because they are true, and that person sees strength in you.

There is more to a compliment than just kind words. It can be a window into the way others see you. A couple of words on a shirt in a laundromat opened my eyes, and not just the words, but who gave them. Maybe the next kind words you hear or read will open your eyes, so you can see yourself in a better light. Better yet, maybe you could be the one that will change someone's perspective of life today, with just a few simple words of truth.

Christmas can be a tough time for some of the senior members who may not have loved ones around. We do this to make sure everyone feels loved and included.

The stars will be available at the Cannon Senior Center starting Friday November 22nd. Please tell the Center office staff which number is on your star before leaving with one.

The stars need to be returned by December 17th! The Center will be delivering on this day!

If there are any volunteers that would like to help take Christmas presents to seniors and spread the love, see Stevi or Deborah at the office.

The Cannon Senior Center is located at 609 West Lehman Street.

CINNAMON BUTTER BAKED CARROTS UPSIDE-DOWN PECAN CAKE

15 whole carrots, peeled and stems removed
1/3 cup butter, softened
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon kosher salt
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/3 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon orange juice
Fresh parsley, chopped (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Clean carrots and arrange in 9 x 13 baking dish. Using an electric mixer, cream the butter, sugar, salt and cinnamon. While the mixer is running, slowly add the boiling water and orange juice. Pour mixture over the carrots and cover the dish with aluminum foil. Bake for 90 minutes. Remove the foil and transfer carrots to a serving platter. Drizzle carrots with the melted cinnamon butter from the baking dish. Garnish with chopped parsley if desired.

ROASTED SWEET POTATOES

3 sweet potatoes, peeled and cut into bite size cubes
2 teaspoons olive oil
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon of brown sugar (more if you like it sweeter)
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
Pinch of ground ginger
Sea salt, to taste

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Coat a small baking dish with cooking spray. Peel and dice the sweet potatoes into bite size cubes and place in the baking dish. Melt butter in the microwave and pour over the potatoes along with the olive oil, brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger and salt. Add more sugar or cinnamon if desired. Toss to coat evenly. Bake in the oven for 60 minutes. Stir the sweet potatoes once or twice during roasting.

For the topping:
2 cups toasted pecans, chopped
1 cup shredded coconut
2/3 cup brown sugar
6 tablespoons butter, melted
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1/2 teaspoon salt

For the cake:
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup brown sugar, packed
1 cup milk
2/3 cup butter, softened
2 large eggs
1 tablespoon baking powder
2 teaspoons vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt

Preheat oven to 350 degrees and line a 9 x 13 inch pan with aluminum foil, making sure it hangs over the sides a bit, then grease with non-stick spray. Spread pecans, brown sugar and 1 cup of the coconut in the pan. Sprinkle with cinnamon and salt, and drizzle with vanilla extract and melted butter. In a medium bowl, beat together the 2/3 cup butter and 1 cup brown sugar on medium speed with an electric mixer until creamy. Continue mixing on low, and add eggs one at a time, followed by vanilla, mixing until thoroughly combined. Add baking powder and salt, mixing on low until incorporated. Add 1/2 of the flour, followed by milk, and then remaining flour, mixing well after each addition. Pour batter over pecan mixture in prepared pan and bake until a toothpick inserted into the center comes out clean, about 35-40 minutes. Run a knife around the sides of the pan to loosen and let cake cool in pan for 5 minutes. Invert cake onto a platter, using foil overhang as needed. Let cool 15 minutes before serving.

It's cold and drab looking outside this Thursday morning with the rain falling pretty heavily now. The rain is expected to taper off in the late afternoon and after that the temperatures are going to plummet down into the thirties for tonight. We have to keep adjusting to this up and down weather pattern which bothers anyone that is cold-natured like me. This, to me is unusual for this time of year as it normally doesn't get cold this early.

Hearts are sad and heavy laden up here on the mountain with the passing of A.J. Neal, age 76. He passed away at his residence on Sunday, November 10th. He was laid to rest in the Gunt-er-Grizzle cemetery on Wednesday, November 13th. Please keep Brenda and the family in your prayers in the loss of their dear loved one.

Others we need to keep in prayer: Tim Howes, Charlie Mai Daniel, Dr. J.C. Wall and Helen Nixon. We also need to remember in prayer the families of John Holland and Johnny Kennedy.

It became a law a few months ago to not use your cell phone while driving your vehicle. That distracts an individual as the numbers have shown and contributes to a lot of accidents with injuries and deaths happening. I meet countless people on the road with their cell phone up to their ear as if they did not know about the new law. As I see it, if people keep breaking the law in this manner, up the fine until you get their attention. Tack on some hours of community work, or maybe some hours spent in the confinement of the local pokey would definitely help them to get the message. They know all a person has to do is pull off the road and then talk on your cell phone to your heart's content. When you're out there in your vehicle traveling, you're not just endangering your life by being on your cell phone, you could be taking the lives of others around you.

It was like a page out of the old west when stampeding cattle descended on our small community here on the mountain. With guns a blazin...whoa, my imagination just got carried away...as really no pistols were ever found and no shots were heard by our neighbors that were interviewed by local TV stations that were far away but scrambled to get to what could be their news worthy, ground breaking story of the day. Seems like I miss out on all the excitement that can occur right under my nose. This all happened down the road from me, as I have been told by one of my neighbors. His statement has not been verified by a lie detector test yet, but one will be administered to determine "just the facts" of this alarming, hair-raising episode. Cows were everywhere you looked on the road, off the road and all places in between. Cows, as most of you know, have a mind of their own (sort of like we do at times) and with the traffic traveling like the Nascar circuit with horns blowing endlessly, I was surprise and thankful no carnage of people or cows was reported. The neighbor believed there were around seventy-five of these "meals on hooves" having free will for a short time before the local round-up patrol took care of the matter. When the local TV station people arrived on two wheels (some can be as wild as those cows) to get the low down on this unusual story of man versus beast having a showdown to see who could win out, they were amazed.

NEWS FROM THE MOUNTAIN

By Carol Gunter

Also amazing to them was how quick we country people hit the ground running, like those cows, and weren't trampled to an untimely death on such a tranquil but very cold day with a bitter northwest wind blowing at times out of control. Had to let them know we are used to wild events like this happening out of the blue. Told them of the time Clyde out ran the "little green men" and left them in the dust just a few years back. As you can guess, they were taken back by this story and wanted to know more about the aliens on the mountain in the stations viewing area. The chance to tell "ALL" about the visitors from some other planet in the solar system was more than they could fathom. I took the time to personally give them details from decades past even though it meant me being late for my solo performance of playing the piano in the play at the local theatre. Some truthful information had to get out, so they got an earful and promised they would air this valuable account of the "little green men." Haven't seen anything reported on the aliens yet, but the cows and their little time of freedom are the "Talk Of the Town."

Talking with Melvin Ferrell, my neighbor, the other day. He will be "92" years young on January 9th. He is always working outside doing something from tilling the ground for his garden to cleaning out a fence row. I told him he was making all of us look bad around here. He just laughed and said he liked to be outside working and staying busy. That is apparent for all of us to see. Keep up the good work for the Lord and your home place, too, Melvin. He must believe in that ole saying "hard work never killed anyone." I beg to differ. I personally think it could really do your body in if you work too hard at doing something. All I'm saying is take a break for a few minutes and then get back to the task you want to get done. Work is not bad for you just don't over do it. Taking care of your body so it will last a long time is a very good thing.

Be aware of your surroundings at all times. Why do people stay glued to their cell phones while walking or driving? I cannot understand why they do not pay attention to what is going on around them. I ask this question because of the disturbing video of a young woman going up an escalator that I saw recently on TV. Unaware of a man coming up from behind her and trying to steal her purse, she was literally hanging on to the purse and her life as she was dragged down the steps to the door of the building before the guy got her purse and ran away. I don't know if it would have made any difference if she were not on her phone, but I feel it could have. Always be mindful of your surroundings and what is going on around you.

Hope you get to be in the Lord's house on Sunday. Always makes you feel better when you're there worshipping and praising Him, the One that saved your soul, doesn't it?

Always be mindful of how you can do a good deed by helping someone. We should be doing that because we have Jesus living inside of us. Try to do a good deed for someone this week. Doesn't have to be a big one - just do it from the heart. May that person see Jesus in you.

If you have any news for the column, just give me a call at (615) 563-4429. Have a great day!

Thou hast put gladness in my heart. Psalm 4:7.

Flu Season In Full Swing

Flu Season In Full Swing
By Greg Frank, Ph.D.

You know the signs. The thunderous cough. The pounding headache. The full-body fatigue.

It's the flu. Last fall and winter, influenza sickened roughly 40 million Americans and killed 60,000, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

This year's flu season is nearly upon us. Here are four tips to stay healthy.

1. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. People should get the flu vaccine early. Every year, this shot prevents up to 6.7 million flu cases, 87,000 hospitalizations, and 10,000 deaths. The vaccine also helps makes the flu less severe for those who do catch it.

The CDC recommends obtaining a flu shot no later than the end of October. The treatment takes around two weeks to become fully effective, so there's no time to waste.

2. Your mom was right: If you do fall ill, remember your mother's advice. Drink lots of fluids. Juice, Gatorade, herbal teas, and chicken soup can help fight dehydration. Menthol ointments and humidifiers break up mucus and make it easier to breathe. These treatments aren't fancy, but they provide real relief.

So remember -- get your shots early, follow your mother's advice, and don't jeopardize your health by needlessly taking antibiotics.

3. Remember that antibiotics won't help. Influenza is caused by a virus. Antibiotics, which only treat bacterial infections, are completely useless against viruses. Not all patients realize this. Many clamor for antibiotics at the first sign of flu-like symptoms.

Such antibiotics won't make people feel any better. In fact, needlessly taking antibiotics increases people's risk of future infections. It gives bacteria an opportunity to evolve and become immune to treatments -- a phenomenon known as "antimicrobial resistance."

4. Antibiotics come with risks. Antibiotic overuse accelerates the spread of drug-resistant bacteria known as "superbugs," which already kill over 160,000 Americans every year.

To fight these superbugs, Congress is currently considering the Developing an Innovative Strategy for Antimicrobial Resistant Microorganisms Act, or DISARM. This bill would incentivize hospitals to use antibiotics appropriately and sparingly. It would also encourage researchers to develop new antibiotics. Along with a package of market incentives for new treatments, the DISARM Act could save thousands of lives.

hospitalization and even death.

A flu vaccine is the best way to help prevent flu and its potentially serious complications.

Remember that flu vaccine not only protects you, but it also can help protect those around you.

tion and the Tennessee Department of Health recommend that everyone six months of age and older should get a flu vaccine every year. Flu vaccination can reduce flu illnesses, doctors' visits and missed work and school due to flu, and can prevent serious complications that can result in Life is Short ... Make Every Outfit Count!

The BIG question of the day is: Does your age have to dictate Your taste in Fashion ?

I've always believed that style is a reflection of one's attitude and personality. Style is a way to say WHO you are without having to speak.

Recently I attended our weekly girls' luncheon where one never knows what the main topic will be from one week to the next.

This week the subject popped up about our individual tastes in what we wear and what style we are most comfortable wearing.

I, myself, choose to wear the more casual look. Now that cooler weather is here, I choose to wear jeans, pull on slacks, sweatshirts and jackets...along with tennis shoes (no more heels) and various styles of low-heeled boots. I tossed out all my skirts and dresses. Yep!! I guess I am the Tomboy of the group!

Aunt Martha who was sitting next to me...loves ruffles, long skirts, sparkly jewelry with a ring on every finger. She loves high heels and claims that when she wears them, it always brings her closer to Heaven. Her favorite color is Burgandy which matches her well-known love for wine. Our friend Sally loves everything Khaki.

There are days when she wears so much of it that folks salute her and thank her for her service! I mean this girl has tons of camouflage shirts, pants, boots, hats, gloves and jackets.

Georgette totally digs Leather and fish net stockings. She wears it all year long. Oh well, she also rides a motorcycle everywhere. The recent nose ring completed her collection of far out jewelry. It's all good... variety makes the world go round. Her age? 76....

And then there is Francine . Her fashion deal is FUR. Especially in the winter... it's fur-trimmed suits, boots, hats, capes... even fur earrings! Her house is full of fur furniture, pillows and bedspreads.

Her wig collection is unbelievable! Her theory is people will stare, so let's make it worth their while!

Jessica is the one who loves RED! She is a real fanatic and buys everything that is RED. She loves shoes....so many shoes and only TWO feet! Her hair is even RED. She claims that this color makes her happy...I say: You Go Girl!!

Holly is our dear more reserved little buddy. She is definitely fashion-shy. She has NEVER worn slacks. She only wears the kinda old-fashioned-looking dresses. She was raised that way... women are only to wear dresses. She says her fashion is: I have Grand kids!! She also dislikes turtleneck sweaters. She feels like she's getting strangled when she has one on. She doesn't wear tights anymore because her knees would swell up when she passed gas.

Aunt Martha has no idea where Uncle Festus leaned to dress. It has a roadkill look. She told us: If he was my trophy at the end of a race...I'd run backwards!! She told me that her son Clarence always comes home with stories about how people dress.

One day he was standing in line at McDonald's behind a woman who had a patch on her jeans pocket that said GUESS. He was thinking 300... maybe 400 pounds!!

Well, back to the girls. We all agree that we still have that hourglass figure....only with just a few extra MINUTES added on throughout the years!

We are ALL in our 70's....yet, believing we are still in our 50's. We treasure our friendships and enjoy each others' independence in life and our individual tastes in fashion. We believe to never be afraid to fail and try something new. Remember amateurs built the ARC....professionals built the TITANIC!!

So, create your own fashion. Who cares? From comfy to classy...it's your body... wear it! Be Happy!

Be who you are and say what you feel, because those who mind don't matter...and those who matter... don't mind...!!

Tossing all of you fashionable hugs, SAVANNAH doors open at Paul L. Reed Furniture. "The reason local businesses like ours have been able to stay in business for a long time is not because we luck into it, it's because we have good customers who keep coming back to support local business.", Reed said "We've been at this location for 50 years and my father started the business 20 years prior."

He also reflected, "I remember as a young boy walking down Main Street when the dime store was in business the town square was very busy. What we see now on the Friday night of the Cannon Country Christmas used to be every Saturday night in those days and it's not anymore but it's sure good to see it at least one night a year."

Other merchants noted several highlights about having the annual Country Christmas event.

"It's a good community get together" said Jennings Jewelers owner Joann Tate.

Candice Bailey of Sarah and Alli agreed "It's one of our favorite nights of the entire year. We love all the people coming out and getting to see everyone sharing the holiday season."

Joe Abney of Iron Pig Antiques added "It's a time to celebrate the merchants, buying local but at the same time it's also about fellowship and seeing people that you don't get to see that often." Abney also will be opening his IPA General Old Time Country Store a couple doors down from the Antique store on Friday.

Lynn Pickett of Lynn's Pickett Fence summed it all up by saying "The Cannon Country Christmas is our favorite time of the year to say thank you to our friends for another blessed year on the Woodbury square."

When shoppers from all around visit this weekend, the merchants all have great gift ideas.

"Gift cards" said Emily Pemberton-Elgin of Simply E Boutique. "Gift cards make the perfect gift, especially if you can't come up with any specifics."

Candice Bailey of Sarah and Alli recommends "A Ronaldo bracelet." Each bracelet has it's own story behind the creation of it which makes it sentimental.

Lynn Pickett mentioned "a handmade pillow from one of the talented local vendors inside Lynn's Pickett Fence."

Mike Reed knew exactly what to recommend, "For men, it's a nice recliner. Every man can always use a recliner and we wear them out pretty quickly."

Joann Tate said "We have a lot of new sterling pieces in which holds up really good and they are backed by a great guarantee."

Joe Abney offered several suggestions "Jams, jellies, locally made candles, bath bombs, wax melts, farmhouse decor. It's all in what suits someone's taste."

While shoppers tastes are wide and varied, everyone can find some great gift items at discounted prices while enjoying refreshments and supporting local businesses.

Schools

representatives approached the Cannon County Commission at their regular monthly meeting in November to update the Commission on the findings.

Randy Maupin, Trane Business Development Manager, explained the program, "It gets new controls, technologies, equipment and improvements to your school buildings. It doesn't cost you anything more than what you are paying now. It saves you a drastic amount of energy dollars and it does all this without costing your taxpayers a penny."

This allows the schools to address aging infrastructure as it will allow for energy/utility savings produced by upgrading the infrastructure in the schools to pay for the improvements and Trane guarantees the savings or they will write a check for the difference.

According to the preliminary audit, the schools are now spending roughly $488,000 a year in utilities. Trane through the study projects with the upgrades in each school, expects it should bring a savings of around $113,000 a year.

Scott Slusher with the Tennessee representatives approached the Cannon County

Energy Efficient Schools Initiative explained his role with the project which is funding. "If our engineers agree with Trane's engineers on the project, we will go ahead and fund that project."

Funding the project is between $1-3 million at one and a half percent over 16 years. Max amount of funding is $5 million.

The County will borrow the funds on behalf of the schools from the state. The County and Schools will have a resolution stating the schools will have the debt service on the note. The schools will repay the loan by the savings occurring in their utility budget.

The Initiative has a guarantee in place between the schools and Trane so if the savings doesn't materialize, Trane is writing a check for the difference. This will occur on an annual basis for the length of the loan.

An application from the school system and resolution submitted by the Commission and the Schools would be needed to move forward. Once completed, the audit would begin and application would be reviewed.

The schools adopted the resolution during their regular November meeting. The Commission will review and discuss the resolution during their December meeting.

right now as I was before."

Davenport opined, "The office brings consistency where we do not have consistency."

There are only 24 counties out of 95 in the State Of Tennessee which have the 1981 act of a Centralized Finance Office in place. A wide majority of the counties do not use Centralized Financing as determined by the 1981 act.

It is estimated that the costs of implementing the office will cost the county over $200,000 which includes the salary of a director, staff and office equipment.

1725 voters during the 2018 election voted for having such an office while 1308 voted against the Centralized Financing Office.

Since the matter was put on a ballot by resolution according to County Election Administrator Matt

Tepley, it has to be decided by the County Commission to draft a resolution to put it on the ballot again.

The search paused in June after Finance Committee member and County Director of Schools William Curtis suffered a heart attack.

BLOOD DRIVE THURSDAY

It is time again for the Woodbury Lions Club to host another American Red Cross Blood Drive. On Thursday, November 21, 2019 from Noon until 6 PM Red Cross staff will be collecting life's fluid from our local heroes who give the gift of life. The place is the Lions Memorial Building located on WE SERVE CIRCLE (previously Park Circle) off of West Lehman Street (GPS use 634 Lehman Street) in Woodbury. Due to pass history of Cannon County Donors, the goal set is 53 units, with max of 75 units to be collected. As of this writing 63 of the 75 slots have been filled. About five will be no shows and 8 will be turned away due to low iron or medication taking are averages over several drives. The best time to come is between 2 and 4 PM due to slack time. Many tries to come in first and come sign in prior to start time which puts a problem when they start taking donations. The first hour should be for those on lunch break and needing to get back to work, between 2 and 4 should be those who can come in at any time. After 4 PM those getting off work and wanting to donate.

For those who have internet capability on their computers, tablets, and or phones should use Rapid Pass and fill out questionnaire on-line prior to coming on Thursday. This year has been a critical year with blood shortages and it has not let up. Blood is needed, especially type O and A.

Please be a local hero and come donate the GIFT OF LIFE.

Thankfulness and Gratitude

Thankfulness is God's Due
"Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good; his love endures forever." - 1 Chronicles 16:34 (NIV)

"I will give thanks to you, Lord, with all my heart; I will tell of all your wonderful deeds." - Psalm 9:1 (NIV)

"Let us come before him with thanksgiving and extol him with music and song. For the Lord is the great God, the great King above all gods." - Psalm 95:2-3

"I will praise God's name in song and glorify him with thanksgiving." - Psalm 69:30

Life can be challenging; sometimes it's hard to find anything to be thankful for. In those situations, gratitude is an act of faith — one that is pointed and intentional.

Even when our world seems to be falling apart, we can remind ourselves that God is good, His love is there even when we can't feel it and He promises to never leave us. These truths should sustain us, especially when mixed with prayer and Bible reading.
