TWO SECTIONS - 50¢ PER

Liquor by the drink wins here

MIKE WEST
Courier Editor

Liquor by the drink narrowly passed by a 62 vote margin during Tuesday, Nov. 4's General Election.

Unlike laws governing the sale of beer, liquor by the drink is governed by the Tennessee Alcoholic Beverage Commission and restaurants must meet several different criteria including actually serving meals on a regular basis. More than 50 percent of the gross revenue of the restaurant must be generated from serving meals.

Restaurants and their owners and servers also must undergo a licensing procedure before liquor sales can be allowed.

In a more complicated issue, Cannon voters cast their ballots in a highway routing resolution concern completion of state Route 70s.

A 41.19 percent majority voted in favor of a Southern route that would bypass Woodbury and improve the connection with state Route 53 to Manchester. A total of 35.98 percent of the voters favored a "center route" through Woodbury. The Northern route received 22.83 percent of the votes.

Ultimately, the decision on the highway is left up to the State of Tennessee. The question was for advisory purposes only.

On a less controversial issue, Frank Walkup defeated Tim Powers for the District Two school board seat. Walkup won 337 votes to Powers' 259. Walkup will fill the school board seat vacated by Chris Blackburn, who resigned June 18.

The only other contested race was for House of Representatives 46th District where Cannon County voted for Mark Pody with 1,944

Want your road name changed? It will cost you.

Cannon County residents wanting to change the name of a county road will have to pay a $100 fee as a result of a vote by the County Commission. Commissioners agreed to enact the fee at Thursday (Nov. 6) night's meeting.

This change was the result of a request by Cannon resident Mike Roberts who wanted to change the name of Lucas Lane to Highpoint Lane. This was the latest of several similar requests heard this year by the Commission.

The fee will help defray part of the cost of researching the potential conflicts in

Pleads guilty to theft

City Atty disbarred

Ban could last up to five years

SAM STOCKARD

Woodbury City Attorney Dale Peterson is set to resign his position and be disbarred for up to five years after pleading guilty to stealing more than $20,000 from Riverside Center while overseeing TennCare patient accounts, according to officials.

Peterson entered a plea to theft over $1,000 before Circuit Court Judge David Bragg last Thursday in Woodbury and is set to lose his law license and pay restitution for the illicitly obtained funds, Assistant District Attorney Trevor Lynch said.

"He acknowledged what he did," Lynch said.

Peterson's case will be retired for two years, and after five years the Board of Professional Responsibility will determine whether he should be able to practice law, according to Lynch.

Woodbury Mayor Harold Patrick confirmed that Peterson said he will resign his position as city attorney. Patrick said he expects Peterson to submit his resignation this week and that he will recommend a replacement to the City Council at its Dec. 5 meeting.

"He's in deep trouble as far as his license goes," Patrick said.

In addition to serving as city attorney, Peterson represented Riverside Center, a part of Stones River Hospital that serves psychiatric patients. He provided services such as filing documents and paying fees to the Cannon County Clerk's office.

But last July the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation was notified and began checking into Peterson's activities and found out that from March 2012 to July 2014, he quit filing those documents with the Cannon County Clerk and kept the filing fees. The case was initiated under former District Attorney General Bill Whitesell.

"He got behind, way, way behind," Lynch said.

Peterson admitted the theft, cooperated with TBI agents and helped return files to the clerk's office, according to reports. He started paying back the money, Lynch said.

After making the plea, Peterson reportedly was booked at the Cannon County Sheriff's Department.

Mayor Patrick said he wasn't certain if Peterson would be disbarred immediately or if he would be allowed to finish working on three incomplete cases. But he said he would rather have Peterson resign and then replace him.

Peterson ran for General Sessions judge in Woodbury last summer against Judge Susan Melton but stopped pursuing election toward the end of the campaign.

He could not be reached for comment Monday morning.

70 years later, Dean returns to Secret City

DAN WHITTLE
Courier Correspondent

SECRET CITY - When President Franklin Roosevelt asked U.S. Sen. Kevin McKellar if he could "hide $2 billion" in the mountains, the East Tennessee lawmaker replied: "Mr. President, you know I can!"

That launched a secret government project in the early 1940s that not only changed world warfare history, but supplied jobs to the largely-unemployed post-Great Depression population of the Appalachian Mountains.

Murfreesboro resident Jerry Dean, now age 92, was one of those East Tennessee residents who secured a "top secret" job in 1942, at Oak Ridge, where some local folks dubbed it "Secret City."

"None of us knew what job the other person was doing, if they worked outside our specific crew," the Army veteran recalled as Veterans Day 2014 approaches. "If you asked another worker a question, most often the answer was 'I don't know.' You got a lot of 'I don't knows.' We all had signed agreements, not to discuss with anyone what we were doing."

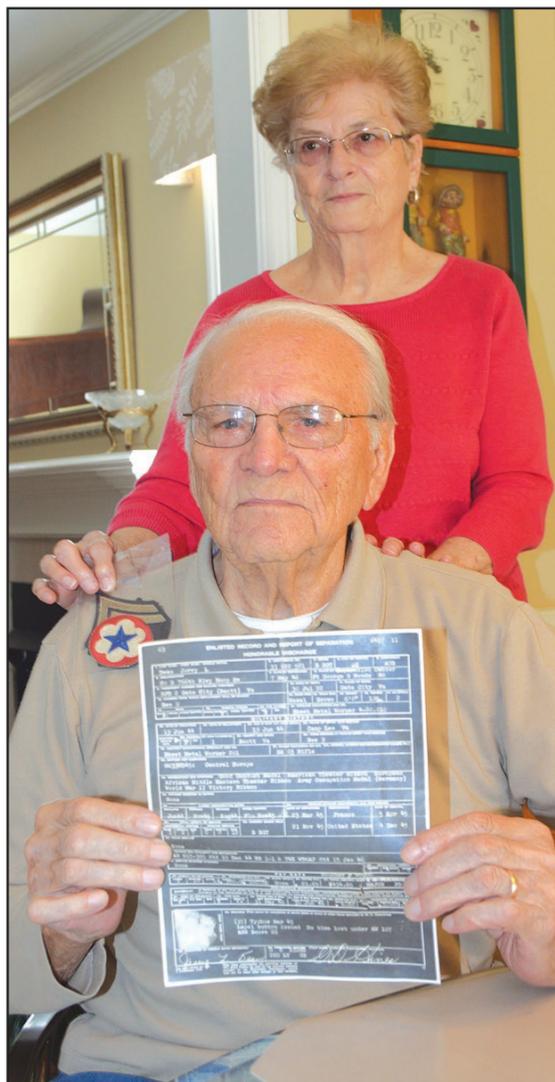

Metal crew supervisor Dean recalls wondering if he would need special welding rods to deal with some stainless steel fabrication: "We were working in the highly secretive Y-12 unit, so our work had to be accurate. But when I asked my director supervisor, if we needed specialty welding rods, he responded: 'I don't know.' My request went up on the chain of command, through two more 'I don't knows' before we finally got our answer. We used the same welding rods we had been using."

Married couples were "ordered" there was to be no "pillow talk" with spouses.

"We were told to discuss nothing with wives, family and friends," Dean recalls.

At its peak, Oak Ridge (Secret City) and Anderson County bulged with more than 75,000 people for the development of the project now known globally as the "Manhattan Project," ... a project designed to end World War II.

Suspect faces kidnapping, murder charges

Special Agents from the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation have obtained indictments for a Winchester man accused of kidnapping and murdering a Cannon County woman.

At the request of 12th District Attorney General J. Michael Taylor, TBI Special Agents began investigating Robert Troy Whipple on April 27th. Early that morning in Decherd, a Tennessee Highway Patrol trooper attempted to initiate a traffic stop of Whipple's vehicle. A pursuit soon followed through Franklin County, after which Whipple crashed the vehicle at a dead end in the area of Chase Bend Road and Rahn Drive in Estill Springs. When Whipple exited the vehicle, he brandished a bladed instrument and stabbed a Franklin County deputy twice in the right hand and cut the deputy below his right eye.

Once authorities detained Whipple, they discovered the remains of a female in the vehicle's front passenger seat. Forensic analysis later identified the woman as Bridgette Haley, a 46-year-old woman from Morrison. During

Courier columnist Yipeeeee, I'm hurt! Big crash equals big cash on TV

A Shot of Wry
LARRY WOODY

How come nothing lucky ever happens to me, like getting rear-ended by an 18-wheeler while driving home late one night on I-24?

Perhaps, with luck, I could suffer multiple broken bones and massive internal injuries. Then I'd get to cavort around a swimming pool with a bevy of babes, thanks to a "generous settlement" negotiated by my trial lawyer.

Judging from the personal-injury commercials that are flooding TV, getting hit by an 18-wheeler is like hitting the lottery. Except for the morphine.

A couple of things come to mind every time I watch one of those ridiculous, raucous ambulance-chasing commercials:

If the plaintiff is injured so terribly that he or she deserves a $500,000 settlement, how are they able to throw a wild party and dance the Funky Chicken? Shouldn't they be lying in bed encased in a plaster cast, wrapped like a mummy with tubes dangling out of them?

Trial lawyers can not only make the lame walk, they can make them boogie.

Also: how come only attractive, hip young people get injured and cash in on big personal-injury settlements? Don't old, ugly fat people ever get rear-ended by 18-wheelers while driving home late one night on I-24?

How come THEY aren't in any of the trial-lawyer commercials, partying the night away in celebration of their crushed pelvis and ruptured spleen?

I've heard trial lawyers compared to intestinal tape worms. That's unfair to tape worms. Unlike trial lawyers, intestinal tape worms won't sue you for everything you own.

I speak from experience. When my daughter Susan was a teenager she often mistook Granny White Pike for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. When Fireball -- I mean Susan -- would screech into the driveway, the first thing we'd do would be rush outside to inspect the damage.

One of her accidents involved an aspiring country music song-writer. He had the audacity to stop at a red light, just begging to be rear-ended. Which Susan, of course, did. He hired a trial lawyer and sued us for $550,000. That will open your sinuses.

There was no question that Susan was at fault. She rear-ended the guy, and if you looked closely you could see a slight ding on her victim's rear bumper.

He claimed to be undergoing tremendous "pain and suffering." I suggested he use the experience as inspiration to write a new country song, "My Achy-Breaky Back."

Instead, his lawyer thought $500,000 might cheer him up.

His wife said to toss on another $50,000 for her "loss of consortium." They must have been doing an awfully lot of consorting.

Our insurance company eventually settled out of court and it didn't cost us anything -- well, except for a year of worry and anxiety that we might lose our home, our savings, our car, our dog and everything else we owned over a fender-bender.

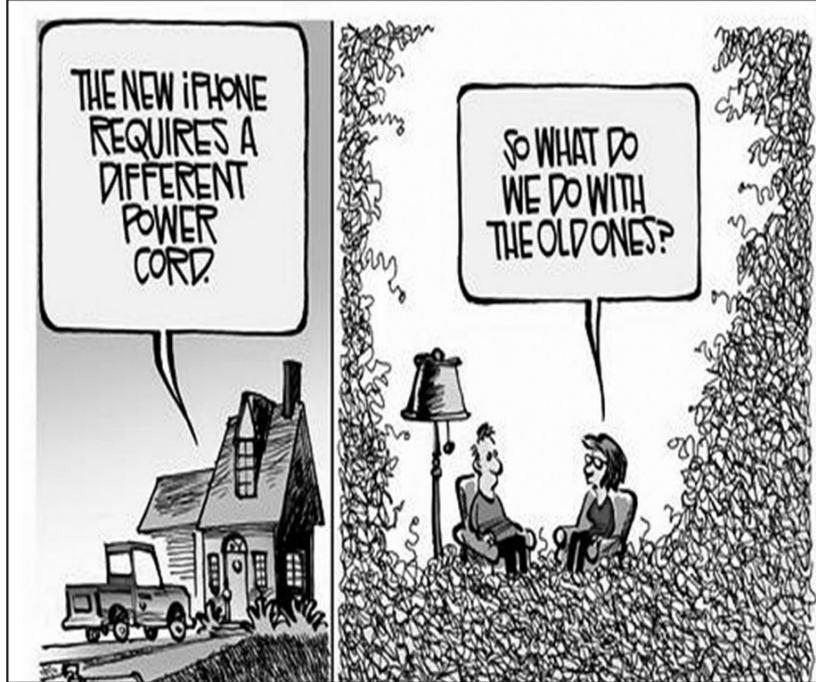

Ambulance chasers claim they are simply sticking it to The Man -- the big trucking companies and insurance firms. Baloney. The Man didn't get to be The Man by dishing out big liable payments.

The Man passes the settlement costs along to his customers and clients. You and me. We're who ultimately gets stuck with the party tab.

One thing the TV commercials fail to mention, as the giddy, miraculously-recovered plaintiff does cartwheels, is how much of that $500,000 windfall did the trial lawyers scoop off the top?

They never tell us that. But I guarantee you that somewhere, the trial lawyers are pitching a wild party of their own.

I suggested he use the experience as inspiration to write a new country song, 'My Achy-Breaky Back.' Instead his lawyer suggested $500,000.

Courier Columnist This wild bird doesn't seem like mythology

Meat 'n' Potatoes
MIKE VINSON

As mentioned in previous columns, I have an interest in Greek mythology, particularly Hercules, the Greek god of strength. For those so inclined, consider renting the movie "Hercules," released in 2014 and starring movie star and World Wrestling Entertainment/WWE champ Dwayne Johnson, a.k.a. "The Rock." For those interested in learning yet more about Hercules, attempt to get your hands on the movies "Hercules," released in 1957, and "Hercules Unchained," released in 1959. Both movies starred the late Steve Reeves, a professional body building champ turned actor. Indeed, the latter two movies are cult classics.

The following story was told to me by my friend Jimmy Zavogiannis, a full-blooded Greek who hails from Nemea, Greece.

"Began Jimmy: "This was around 1961, and I was, say, ten-years-old. My father and another man had gone to the mountains -- near our small village in Nemea -- to hunt for honey. When they returned, dad had this large, strange-looking bird with him. The bird had a really bad injury on his right wing."

"What kind of bird?" I interrupted. "I would say it was kin to the eagle family because of its size, beak, claws, wingspan, and dark color," Jimmy answered. "It was maybe as tall as a full-grown, wild male turkey, and had a wingspan, from tip-to-tip, of around six feet."

Jimmy went on to tell me his family owned a small coffee shop in the Village of Nemea, and they lived directly above the coffee shop, with three sets of steps, thus three flat landings, leading from the coffee shop up to the family living quarters.

Having to restrain him with a rope, at first, Jimmy's family kept the bird down in the coffee shop and nursed him back to health by cleaning and dressing the wound on his wing, with Jimmy's mother feeding him leftover scraps from the coffee shop: bread, cheese, chicken, etc.

"It took about six months for the bird to heal up," Jimmy added. "By that time, the bird had become domesticated, wasn't a threat, and instead, was somewhat of a feature attraction for the locals ... then ..."

"What?" I anxiously cut in.

"Eventually, the bird got loose and started walking around in the street. Because of the damage to his wing, no one thought he could fly, so we just let the bird wander around. He got to where he would perch on a stone retainer-like wall that was part of a church across the street from the coffee shop. However, when it came evening time, he would spend the night on the second landing leading up to our home."

"One day, I was sitting outside the coffee shop with some customers. We were watching the bird, across the street at the church. With no warning, the bird took off flying, as though he'd never been injured. We all stood up and started clapping and waving goodbye, thinking we'd never see him again. He soared so high in the sky I could barely see him. For me, a child, it was like magic!

"This went on for about two years: The bird would fly away, stay gone a few days, return to the second landing of our home at night, and we continued feeding him. Then, one morning, we found him dead on the second landing. I guess you could say he came home to die," said Jimmy with a slight tone of sadness. "I've never seen another bird like him; no one in my village ever saw a bird like him. He's always been a pleasant mystery to me."

Here's the reason I even mentioned "Hercules" in this column: As punishment for killing his wife and six sons, Hercules was required to perform 12 difficult tasks, popularly known as the "Twelve Labors of Hercules." The first labor was to kill the "Nemean Lion," a giant, vicious lion that lived in Nemea, Greece, and wreaked havoc on the villagers.

While Hercules and the Nemean Lion, no doubt, are Greek mythology, I am convinced Jimmy's "Wild Bird of Nemea" is Greek fact!

Courier columnist Is 'the cloud' a giant step backwards?

Media Matters
LARRY BURRISS

There's a saying we've heard quite a bit, "What goes around comes around," and it's related to another cliché, "There is nothing new under the sun."

How many of you remember your first contact with computers in the late 1960s and early 1970s? You didn't have direct access to what was then called the "mainframe." Instead, you took a card deck with all of your data to the computer center, gave it to a technician, and he, it was always "he," would take it to a back room. In a few hours you would return to the computer center and pick up your output.

But, if you had made a mistake, you had to redo the offending cards, take the entire deck back to the computer center, and start the process all over again.

A few years later we progressed to what were called "dumb terminals," but we still had to access the mainframe, because that was where all of the software was. Even when we got our own personal computers, most of the programs we used were located somewhere else.

Then, with cries of joy and tears of relief, we installed all of those programs on our own computers, and unhitched ourselves from the tyranny of acolytes who still hid in basement rooms tending the all-powerful mainframe.

But now look at what so many people are doing. They are going to the so-called "cloud," which has all of the software they need, plus, and here is the scary part, all of their own data and information.

So let me see if I understand this: all of our programs and all of our data are supposed to be on a corporate computer somewhere, totally out of our control. But isn't that what we used to call the "mainframe," and isn't that what we spent so much time and effort to free ourselves from?

Now, maybe I'm missing something here, and I certainly don't want to seem like a Luddite, but this sure looks like a giant step backwards.

PETTUS READ, Guest Columnist

Is Frosty on your roof yet?

Maybe I'm just getting old, there is certainly no debate on that subject, but I feel like we skipped a month between October and December with the election taking up a small part of November. As I was hiding the left over portion of Halloween candy on November first, my neighbor across the road was putting up Christmas lights and a tree. I was still getting toilet paper out of the front maples to save for an emergency, but the neighborhood was already heating up hot cider, putting Frosty on the roof and burning my retinas out with super bright lights in their bushes that are suppose to use less energy, so says GE.

It seems to me we are missing something somewhere and I don't know how to slow this modern-day process of pushing time. We should all be thinking of good memories of family, our many blessings in life, home-cooked fattening foods, bad football games in the yard and most of all, how we can combine all of these wonderful experiences into one jam-packed day called Thanksgiving. Instead, we are replacing it with Black Friday and multiple days of Gray Tuesdays and forgetting about the holiday that should involve counting our blessings before counting our stuff.

Thanksgiving used to be very important to me as a child, because I knew as soon as it was over Christmas was just around the corner. Today, we straightened that corner out and put in a freeway right to the discount store. True, back in my day as a kid, we did farm work on Thanksgiving like killed hogs, gathered corn and stripped tobacco, but during that weekend we did gather together to give thanks for our many blessings and enjoyed being with family. No one left to rush out to a sale and Christmas seemed to be months away.

However, today, children do not have the same understanding of Thanksgiving as I did due to our current society's commercialization of the holiday period. Beginning after the Fourth of July celebrations, you can order the Christmas Holidays Traditional Music collection over the TV. If that is not bad enough for pushing the season, you can select your favorite genuine artificial Christmas tree at Wally World in the next aisle over from school supplies around the first of September.

It sure wouldn't hurt to re-examine what Thanksgiving is all about. It is a time to give thanks for our many blessings and our country, as a whole, has been well blessed. Thanksgiving is a time to share those blessings and thank the God above for the families we have and the hopes we have for the future.

One of our greatest blessings we have as Americans is the abundance we enjoy in this country. As families gather around their dining room tables this Thanksgiving, many will enjoy a safe and affordable bounty of food products. Nowhere else in the world will the amount and variety be found like what will be exhibited on tables across this country. From the turkey to the pumpkin pie and the cranberry sauce to the dressing, America's citizenry will enjoy a day of eating like no other.

I am sure many of you noticed I used the term "dressing" in the last sentence. I still say stuffing is something you would find in a couch or a previously live animal that now hangs on the wall. Dressing is made from a mixture of cornbread and other great tasting items.

Both my mother and wife could make the best dressing ever, but this summer I lost my mother and my wife is also no longer with us, but they taught me how to do dressing, so that blessing will continue. No matter where you live or what you call it, you have the freedom to do so without any problem or fear.

The Pilgrims started it all, as all of us know the origin of the day, but it is reported on wilstar.com that it was Sarah Josepha Hale, a magazine editor, whose efforts eventually led to what we recognize as Thanksgiving. Hale wrote many editorials for her cause in her Boston Ladies' Magazine, and later, in Godey's Lady's Book. Finally, after 40 years of writing editorials and letters to governors and presidents, in 1863, President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November as a national day of Thanksgiving. The proclamation was made after Lincoln delivered his famous Gettysburg Address on November 19, 1863, as a way and a hope to heal a nation at war. The date was changed a couple of times, but in 1941, Thanksgiving was finally sanctioned by Congress as a legal holiday on the fourth Thursday in November.

For me, I'll keep my pumpkins out front, fall colors on the door, and the two Native-American carvings on the dining room table while my neighborhood goes Ernest Saves Christmas in its entire splendor. I'll hold off on Christmas a little while longer and have a Happy Thanksgiving, as well as enjoy my dressing, without Frosty on the roof just yet.

Library happenings

As we head into the holiday seasons of Thanksgiving and Christmas, with all the fun excitement this time of year brings, the Library has a few "must attend" events planned for all to enjoy.

The library will be closed Tuesday, November 11, in honor of Veterans Day. As you sit back and enjoy the parade, take a moment to remember, reflect, and appreciate the sacrifices veterans have made—now and in the past—to preserve our freedom and liberty, and to protect our rights.

In order to say, "thank you" and to show our appreciation the Library will be having a fine forgiveness day for veterans on Wednesday, November 12. Come in with proof of military service, past or present, and your fines will be happily forgiven.

Story times for the week of November 17 will be Monday and Tuesday at Adams and Wednesday at Auburntown, both meeting at 10:30 a.m. Come join the fun as we read stories, sing songs, and make a craft.

For adults, the Library will begin offering computer classes in November.

Our first class, Computer Essentials, will be a hands-on, introductory course, which requires no experience. The workshop consists of three one (1) hour sessions that will cover computer basics. There will be an evening session, as well as a morning session. The workshops will be held on Tuesdays, November 18, December 2 and 9 at 5:30 p.m. and Thursdays, November 20, December 4 and 11 at 9:30 a.m.

Classes will cover computer basics of hardware, software, program operation and virus protection. Space is limited to 10 participants, so sign up early. For more information on these FREE computer classes stop in the Library or call 615-563-5861 or check us out on Facebook for more details!

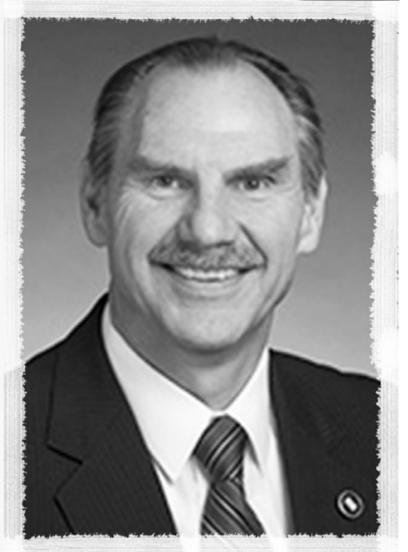

Last, but not least, Adams Memorial Library will be hosting Mr. and Mrs. S. Claus for an evening of fun and festivities on Tuesday, December 16 at 5:30 p.m. Be sure to take out your red crayon and mark your calendars. Refreshments will be served in the Jennings Community Room. All ages are welcome. Bring your cameras for pictures.

World hunger drops by over 100 million during past decade

According to a recently released report from the United Nations, about 805 million peoples suffer from hunger. Reduction in hunger occurred the past two decades by more than a 100 million and 200 million reductions since 1990.

Despite the progress made in feeding the world, many countries of the world still suffer with high numbers of hungry people. More than 25% of the people in Sub-Saharan Africa are still malnourished. Asia has more than 26 million hungry people. Many programs have been started to reduce hunger. One is the fortification of the food supply with nutrients.

Effects of Injectable Trace Minerals on Brood Cow Pregnancy

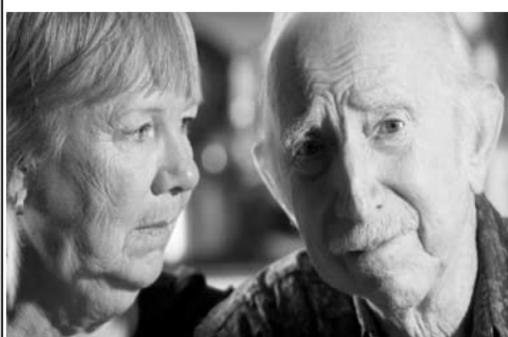

Dr. John Arthington, of the University of Florida., conducted a study to evaluate the effects of a single application of injectable trace minerals (TM; Multi-min 90, Multi-Min USA, Inc.) on pregnancy of lactating beef cows. The trial involved 14 farms across Central Florida. Breeding season ranged from 90 to 120 days and the mineral was injected prior to the breeding season. The bottom line is trace mineral injection at the start of the breeding season did not significantly improve pregnancy rate in the commercial cow herds used in the study.

Source: Arthington. 2014. University of Florida from University of Arkansas, Beef Cattle Research Update. September, 2014.

Performance of Beef Cows Provided Chlortetracycline-Fortified Minerals

University of Arkansas beef cattle specialists conducted a project to evaluate the effect of chlortetracycline in a free choice mineral supplement. The cows were grazed on either stock-piled or strip grazing fescue. The mineral supplementations for both treatments were the same. Forage utilization was about the same for both pasture groups. The contagious grazing group consumed about 5% more forage than the strip grazed cows. There was no difference in body condition scores and weights at the end of the grazing period. The researchers reported that the inclusion of chlortetracycline in the mineral supplement did not result in improved performance.

How to cope with an elderly parent's difficult behavior

Caregivers often have to deal with difficult behavior by their elderly parents, including personality changes, hallucinations, temper tantrums, and even abuse. The following are some tips for coping with behaviors that are considered difficult to handle with elderly parents.

Rage, Anger, Yelling - Age and illness can intensify longstanding personality traits in some unpleasant ways: An irritable person may become enraged, an impatient person demanding and impossible to please. Unfortunately, the person taking care of the elderly parent is often the target.

What to Do

Try to identify the cause of the anger. In most elderly individuals, behaviors are a symptom of distress. The aging process in and of itself sometimes brings about anger, as seniors vent frustration about getting old, having chronic pain, losing friends, having memory issues, being incontinent - all of the undignified things that can happen to us as we age. In addition, Alzheimer's disease and dementia can also cause these behaviors, in which case, your parent doesn't have control. As a caregiver, the best thing you can do is not take it personally. Focus on the positive, ignore the negative, and take a break from caregiving when you can! You might also want to consider calling in a home health nurse. Elders often reserve their worst behavior for those they are closest to, i.e. family members. The bad behavior might not surface in front of a stranger - and you get a much-needed break.

Not Showering

The issue of elders who were once reasonably clean refusing to take showers, wear fresh clothes and take care of personal hygiene is one that is far more common than most people think - and it's very frustrating for caregivers.

Sometimes the issue is depression. Another factor is control. As people age, they lose more and more control over their lives. Usually, one thing they generally can control is dressing and showers. The more they are nagged, the more they can resist. A decreased sense of sight, smell or memory could be to blame as well. The days go by for your parent. They aren't marked with tons of activities, there isn't something special about Wednesday - it could be Tuesday or Thursday - they lose track of time and don't realize how long it's been since they showered. Another big issue can be fear or discomfort: Fear of slipping in the tub; or embarrassment about asking for help.

What to do

The first step is to determine why they have stopped bathing. If they have lost their sense of smell, see their doctor. Medications your parent is taking, or some unrelated disorder may be at fault for a loss of smell. If depression is the cause, seek professional help. Therapy and medications can help. If modesty is an issue and the elder doesn't want a family member helping her take a bath, because it's far too intimate, they may be open to having an in-home care agency come in for the sole purpose of a bath. If they are afraid of the water (or sitting in the tub), there are many types of shower chairs that can help.

If the person is in a demented state and afraid while bathing, then it may be better for you to move gently. Don't insist on a shower or bath. Begin with just asking if you can wipe off the person's face.

Gradually move to under-arms and other parts of the body, talking and telling them what you are doing as you go. Do your best to keep your parent clean. However, too much nagging can be counter-productive.

Swearing, Offensive Language and Inappropriate Comments

When a normally loving father or mother is suddenly using the worst profanities, using offensive language or saying inappropriate things, family members are baffled as to why...and what to do about it.

Okay folks, snow on Halloween is a first for me. I mean, I have still seen snow in May...but Halloween is something else!

I just came inside from raking and leaf blowing all the leaves over into our vacant lot. Our dogs love to cuddle in all those stacks of shedding nature. Well, I know for a fact that I have plenty more for them when they scrunch these all down. When we bought our house here, I loved it because of all the trees surrounding it and even growing thru the deck floors as decoration. I always say I live in a tree house. I must admit that it is a beautiful sight, but when they shed their leaves and nuts I must say that I have a different love for it all.....hump!

It has been proclaimed that this year is the year for the bountiful nuts. Considering the fact that we have ten of each Tennessee nut trees growing over and around our cabin, I certainly agree that it is the year of the nuts. The walnuts are the worst only because they hit our tin roof and it sounds like a cannon going off. At three in the morning and sound asleep, don't think that that doesn't give one an instant heart attack! Then you lay away in fear of the next explosion. Along with the other smaller nuts which sound like an ammunition plant going off, I will say that I will be more than glad when the year of the nuts is over. Next year, it will be less nuts and then the following year hardly any nuts. So, every three years ya' gotta get strapped in for the nut attack whether you like it or not! Wait a minute, how did I get on this subject anyway?

Well, our big Holiday Extravaganza is this coming week-end on Saturday November 8th. I will let you know how it all turns out in next week's article. Santa and his elves are paying us a visit along with all our vendors full of early Christmas surprises. The switch from Total Halloween décor to Christmas will be a challenge, but you know we love it! If for some reason you didn't make this event, we are still all decorated and ready for you to visit us and have a great time! We are open Thursdays thru Saturdays 10 to 5. See you then!

Thanks so much to Mike West for his almost full page coverage of our Halloween Spooktacular! It looked great and we got so many nice compliments on it. Mike, you are the best! Other than that, we are so busy folks, that we don't know if we found a rope or lost our horse!

Well, Our dear Uncle Festus is at it again, saying things that forever get him in trouble. He told me the other day that the only reason people are vegetarians is that they are bad hunters! Is that why his Indian name is Runs with Beer? Aunt Clara said that the only water Festus drinks has been through a brewery first! She's only getting back at him for his comment about her mother: I keep throwing water on my mother-in-law but she doesn't melt! Fester, some people are like clouds, once they disappear, it's a beautiful day! Cousin Buford on the other hand has the personality that goes along with: you know you're lazy when you get excited about cancelled plans. Poor Aunt Martha can't get him to go anywhere. He just wants to live his retirement watching t.v. He has gotten pretty up on the politician scene. He told me that Politicians and Diapers need to be changed often...for the same reason. He said that 25 years ago we had Ronald Reagan, Johnny Cash and Bob Hope. Now we have Obama, No Cash and No Hope! Great Grandpop listens to him, but simply says that It's hard to be nostalgic when you can't remember anything! He believes that inside every older person is a younger person wondering: What the heck happened? Granny Ann says that Grandpop is just a geezer: not young, not dead, somewhere in between. Myself, I think he is merely a squirrel whisperer like my husband, J.D. Like they say, you're better off joinin' 'em.

Trying to make sense of all this chit chat would drive me crazy. A sense of humor does come in handy with this group! In closing, I did want to mention that I received something in the mail that just made me laugh. This week it was from the electric company that told me: if you wear more clothes inside your house during the winter, your electric bill would be lower. You save something like two cents per something. Honestly, I will pay the extra two cents whatever to avoid getting sick and having to go to the doctor and pay what I saved towards an appointment and prescriptions instead. Was that suggested to be a revelation what they told me? Think about it, folks, if you did what every piece of advertising and commercials asked us to, where would we be now? Yep, I'm signing off for now and wish all of you a fantastic happy week. Come on out and see us at the Short Mountain Trading Post. You're always welcomed!

Hugs, Savannah

Board of Aldermen OKs sign height amendment

Woodbury's Board of Mayor and Aldermen passed on first reading a plan to amend sign regulations to allow a maximum height of 35 feet. During a brief, 10-minute meeting, the Board of Aldermen passed the amended ordinance, which will go before the board again in December for passage on second and final reading. The vote will follow a public hearing on the proposed change.

If approved, the change will bring Woodbury in line with other neighboring towns and counties and will permit Taco Bell to erect a 35 foot tall sign at their new store on John Bragg Highway.

DEAN---

Dean arrived at "Secret City" knowing only that he was to "supervise" a six-member metal fabrication crew. Due to his specialty, he had a master badge that cleared him to enter any area of "Secret City" that had three main security gates from the outside world.

"I had been trained as a black carbon machinist with the Tennessee Eastman Corporation," Dean recalls. "Upon arrival, our work building was intact, but the equipment had not arrived."

So initially, Dean drove a 25-passenger bus.

"For six weeks, we drove prospective employees to and from nearby Knoxville, twice-a-day," Dean accounted.

But, for some East Tennesseans, there was more than drama merely about "top secret" jobs.

"Some of those Anderson County people had been forced to move three times by government projects, starting back in the 1930s with the development of the Smokey Mountain National Park, then they had to move with construction of a big TVA (Norris) dam and lake, and then, they had to vacate their land again there in the valley of Anderson County," machinist Dean constructed back in time.

"There was some resentment and adjustment, but then, most everyone seemed glad to have jobs," Dean added.

What was his biggest memory from "Secret City?"

"We had one building in K-25 area that covered 48 acres," Dean detailed. "At the time, it was the largest building under roof in the world."

"There were lots of female employees," Dean added. "There were no concrete sidewalks, so many females toted two pairs of shoes ... one pair to handle the mud and wooden plank walks ... and one pair to do their work. It was either a lot of dust, or a lot of mud."

"There were dormitories for men and for women," Dean accounted. "We bunked two to a room."

"The cafeteria was another huge building," Dean shared. "The only building I recall with metal siding was the administrative building."

Dean worked two years at Oak Ridge, before finally deciding to leave the top secret facility.

"I kept getting draft notices from the board back in Kingsport," Dean shared. "I had already got four 6-month deferments, and was told it would be no problem to continue getting deferred from the draft."

"By this time, I really wanted to go into the Army, and be a part of the wartime experience," Dean recalled.

After accepting the draft, Dean was placed in the Army's "Railroad Battalion" that ultimately was stationed at Nuremburg, Germany, in 1945.

"Allied Forces bombs had flattened just about all of Nuremburg in the march to defeat the Germans," Dean added. "The only government building left standing was the Nuremburg Courthouse that became globally known when the Nazi war criminals were later put on trial."

Dean recalls where he was on Aug. 6, 1945.

"I know where I was standing upon hearing of the atom bomb being dropped on Hiroshima, Japan," Dean accounted. "And that's when it came to clear to me, for the first time, what I had been working on back in Secret City, Tenn."

"I'm told, residents of Nuremburg began celebrating, cheering out of windows, celebrating the news that a 'Big Bomb' had been dropped on Hiroshima," Dean added. "We all seemed to know the dropping of the atom bomb meant the end of WW II was nearing."

Dean and his wife, Mary, along with a group from the downtown Murfreesboro First Church, recently toured Oak Ridge, the first time he'd been back to "Secret City."

"It brought back a lot of memories," Dean declared.

While detailing his secret wartime duties, Dean shared a note on White House stationary from then Secretary of War Harry Stimson: "To you who answered the call for your country and served in its Armed Forces to bring about total defeat of the enemy, I extend the heartfelt thanks of a Grateful Nation."

Chiropractors caution holiday stress increases health risks

The above is the headline from a November 17, 2007, EMediaWire release from the Connecticut Chiropractic Council and the International Chiropractors Association (ICA). The release gives some simple holiday advice by saying, "With the holiday season upon us and Thanksgiving and other seasonal observances underway, it is important to your good health to take a few simple steps to reduce the stress and strain of this busy time."

The article continues to note that having a little more patience, along with slowing down, and having more thoughtful holiday planning, will go a long way to reducing the stress of the holidays. The release also cautions about overindulgence at the dinner table over the holidays and the problems that overeating can cause. Dr. Luigi DiRubba, a local chiropractor and President of the Connecticut Chiropractic Council, advises, "A bulging stomach can put pressure on your body's support systems, including your spine and spinal nerves."

The article notes that additional weight can force the hip bones and torso to shift thus creating abnormal changes in spinal balance. This can lead to spinal misalignments, known as "subluxations" which affect the nervous system and create malfunctions elsewhere in the body. Dr. DiRubba warns, "Every extra pound in the abdominal region could put 10 pounds more stress on the lower back. Heavy eating during the holidays may lead to weight gain, and carrying extra pounds can put added strain on the supporting structures of the spine and nervous system."

The International Chiropractors Association (ICA) and the Connecticut

Chiropractic Council have prepared a list of health tips to help protect your back and general health over the holidays. These include:

- Lift packages correctly, firewood, your frozen holiday turkey and other heavy items with your legs, not your back. When lifting, hold objects close to your body; rather than flexing forward, maintain a slight arch in your lower back and bend at the knees before standing up with the object.

- When cooking or standing for an extended period, elevate one foot with a foot rest or stacked books, about six inches from the floor. Alternately elevating each foot relieves tired back and leg muscles.

- Travel stress can be minimized if you start your journey having gotten plenty of rest ahead of time, allow plenty of extra time to your destination, pack light, use well-balanced wheeled luggage when you can and be careful to avoid heavy loads on your shoulders from bags with shoulder straps.

- Place a pillow or folded towel behind the small of the back when traveling by car or plane, to help maintain the arch in your lower back and support the rest of the body properly. This relieves the discs and joint structures of the spine from unnecessary pressure.

- Get enough rest. Many health problems that occur with the holidays are simply due to fatigue.

A tribute to our Cannon County veterans

LOUIE HILLIS

The Korean War broke out on June 25, 1950. However there were no military bodies in Korea at that time, only advisers. Louie and many others were put on transport ships headed to Korea.

"We were on a Japanese Hospital Ship being transported to Korea when we were torpedoed; it felt like the ship came out of the water when the torpedo exploded. I remember the alerts going off. By this time I thought I was in the Navy because of all the ships I had been on and now we were being torpedoed. We looked out to see and saw two destroyers coming to us. It was then we saw they were Australian destroyers coming towards us dropping depth charges where they thought the submarine was."

The Australians hit the sub and Hillis and the others continued their crossing to Korea. When Louie and his battalion landed they went by foot to different bamboo villages; in all they traveled about 30 miles.

He said they rested for the night all the while he said they could see flashes in the north. The next morning they left at 0830. Companies L and K were together heading into the pass. Louie explained that the Pass was actually a horse shoe road, wisting and winding up and over a mountain. He said they came upon a dead North Korean officer.

They continued forward towards the Pass when they came upon this long valley with rice patties on each side of them. Louie says this is when the sound of rifle and machine gun fire began filling the air. Everyone scattered and tried to take cover.

"I had a Lieutenant beside me and he had nothing but a pistol on him and he took my rifle and started up the hill. The lieutenant told me there was a sniper around; he started up the hill when I saw him get shot dead by the sniper. He had on the web type gallowases on his back and I saw them pooch out; he slip down the hill to me and started shaking his head and climbed back up the hill. I followed him, but I never got to see where he went because they grabbed me and started loading me down with 60 millimeter mortars because I didn't have a rifle on me. I climbed the hill to where they had the mortar launcher set up and we started sending those mortars, but I never could find where they hit," Louie recalls.

After a fierce battle where the US took a beating, a lot of the soldiers were separated from the others. It was at this time that Louie was captured.

The Koreans took Louie and the rest and marched them into Hadong village. He said it looked flattened and was burning. "There was a place that looked like a church or a school to the left near the trees and when we got there it was packed full of GI's, so they took us across the yard and put us in a chicken hut (Louie and three more).

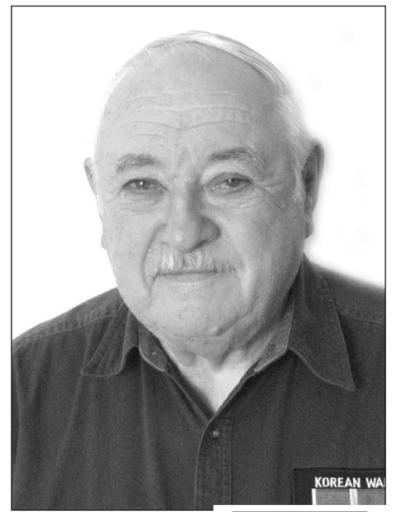

Louie said when you are penned up like that and because of nothing to tell time he couldn't give us the specifics on some things that happened but he said it wasn't too much later that one of our aircraft came and dropped a napalm bomb onto that hut. He said they had no radio communication with anyone. "Our boys didn't know we were behind the enemy lines, I found out later that 18 of the GI's died in that building. I know because four of us could walk and we had to busy those GI's. We did get their dog tags though and we gave them to Lieutenant Reid. The bomb went in the front and came out the back. I did hear that about 8 were taken from there up north on a death march and then to the Sunchon Tunnel."

"Around the end of September they rounded us all up and started us on our death march. We were headed towards a village called Namwan about 35 miles towards Seoul from our position. We knew what it was; we knew we all wouldn't make it. While walking if someone fell to the side of the path because they were not strong enough to go on, they would shoot them where they lay," Louie says.

They traveled by night and slept during the day, if they could sleep. He said that the enemy would come around and throw lit cigarettes on them and wake them up and ask "Why you come Korea?" Then they would tell them, when they got to Seoul they could have beefsteak and bread. They knew to say bread and beefsteak in English taunting us, Louis said. One man was so dehydrated Louie said that he just gave up and fell to the side. "We wanted him to live and so Sgt. Winters and I put one arm over our shoulders and helped him make it to the bottom."

Louie and the other ones were repatriated at the end of September. Out of the 108 men in K Company (Louis's company) only 9 of them made it back. Louie and the other POWs were sent back home via different hospitals. He had lost 63 pounds from July 27th to the end of September.

They are listed as the very first POWs of the Korean War. He and the others were assigned to Fort Benning in the training division for new recruits until their time was up in the service. Louie left the Army with Purple Heart, The National Defense Medal, the POW Medal, Korean Service Award, the United Nations Combat Award, The Korean Presidential Medal and Commendation.

Louie is active in many military organizations. Louie asks that all come and support the veterans on this day that is set aside solely for them.

Herb came to Woodbury in 1979 as the Minister of the Woodbury Church of Christ and served until he retired in 2012, for a total of 34 years.

Herb, Ann, and Niki, became a vital part of Woodbury and Cannon County. Herb served on the Board of Directors and President of the Board for the Short Mountain Bible Camp, Coordinator of the Blue Ridge Youth Encampment, Administrator for the Preston Scholarship Fund, begun the Cannon County/Billy Smith Preacher Training Scholarship Fund, Administrator of the Jim Cummings Senior Citizen Trust Fund, Member of the Executive Board for the Senior Citizens Center, Chairman of the Board for the Stones River Hospital and served on the Ethics Committee, Chairman of the local Heart Fund Drive, Member and President of the Kiwanis Club, Member of the Executive Board for First American Home Health and member of the Ethics Committee. Herb has been speaker on numerous occasions for community groups. Herb was instrumental in the new addition of the Adams Memorial Library.

He served as the Master of Ceremonies for the "Library Roast" of Charlie Harrell. While he was Minister of the Woodbury Church of Christ he headed up a special project to pay tribute to the members of the Church who were veterans. A special book was put together with all of the veterans and their individual experiences and stories. This book is a memorial tribute to those who served this great country. The book is in the Church Library. So one can quickly see that Herb has truly left his foot prints in the sands of Woodbury and Cannon County.

Herb received his Masters Degree in Bible from David Lipscomb University in 1990. Herbs wife, Ann Armstrong Alsup from Trousdale County, works as the Executive Secretary for the Woodbury Police Department. Their daughter Niki McAlister, is married to Pat McAlister and they have two children, Colleen and Thomas.

My personal impression of Herb Alsup, first of all is that he is a dynamic minister of the gospel. A man of great knowledge of the Bible. And when one goes to church on Sunday, Sunday Night, and Wednesday Night, or any other time, Herb was always there greeting you and shaking your hand. When someone was sick and in the hospital in Woodbury, Murfreesboro, or Nashville, Herb was there to visit you, and you didn't have to be a member of the Church of Christ, if you were from Woodbury he would visit you. Herb was everywhere, and he was always there when you needed him. I would sum up Herb's many accomplishments by saying that he has been a true blessing from God for Woodbury and Cannon County.

VIRGIL YOUNG U.S. COAST GUARD

This year, the Vice Grand Marshall representing the US Coast Guard is Chief Petty Officer Robert Virgil Young. Virgil as he is known here in Cannon County was born to Joe and Margarette Todd Young. He graduated from Woodbury Central High School in May 1954. Virgil went to Norfolk, Virginia and worked at a boat dock. While in Virginia he joined the Coast Guard and took his boot camp in New Jersey. In 1955 he married Grace Frazier. They are the proud parents of four children. Grace is the sister to Della Frazier Young who is married to Virgil's brother Nile.

Virgil has been stationed in many places during his career in the Coast Guard. His first duty station was Belle Isle Life Boat Station, which is a search and rescue station. The second duty station was Port Huron Michigan where he served aboard the Huron Light Ship. Then Virgil was assigned to the Coast Guard Base in New Orleans, and from there a small station in DuLac, Louisiana.

His fifth duty station took him out of the warm south and put him in Alaska on the Cutter Clover. Then again down south to Virginia on the Cutter Mo Hicken. He served on the Cutter Courageous in Puerto Rico. His eighth duty station was in Buffalo, NY, on the Cutter Ojibiwa. His ninth and last duty station was Captain of the Port in Nashville Tennessee where he retired in 1974. He then moved back to Cannon County where he has lived since retirement.

Some of the education he has received while in the service of his country was a course for Enginemen Chief at the Coast Guard Institute in 1965, satisfactorily completed instrumentation at ALCO Engineering School in 1968; nuclear, biological and chemical defense, a shipboard course in March of 1968; Marine Transmission School in January 1970.

Virgil received the Coast Guard Commendation Medal, Coast Guard Commendation Ribbon, and the Fourth Coast Guard Good Conduct Award for 1973.

Chief Young invites everyone to share in the Veterans Day Celebration, and to remember our sons and daughters who are serving our nation in all parts of the world.

Veterans Day 2014

All veterans thanked for their service

MIKE WEST photo

Marine veteran Art Petty Jr. received special recognition for his service in three wars, WWII, Korea and Vietnam. At age 93, Petty was the oldest veteran to win recognition at the annual Cannon County Veterans Day ceremony.

MIKE WEST
Courier Editor

"Thank you for your service. That is what we say today," guest speaker Tony Burnett told the gym full of students and honored guests at the annual Veteran's Day service at Cannon County High School.

Burnett, former Woodbury Police Chief, reminded the audience they need to keep in mind the great sacrifices made by America's military. The annual event featured a number of highlights including special presentations to the family of slain soldier 1st Lt. Frank B. Walkup IV and to the family of Harold Alton Basham, who died in Vietnam.

"I want to challenge you today, because you are the ones who can make a difference in Cannon County in the patriotism people see in our citizens," Burnett told the audience.

"There are men and women who are not here today, and there are many who are here today, who paid a great price. They left their home, their families and their friends to go to places that most of us would run away from," he said.

Burnett cited Cannon County's response to the death of Lt. Walkup as an example of the strong support the community gives the nation's military.

"I have seen patriotism first-hand right here in Cannon County. As we mourned with the family of 1st Lt. Frank Walkup IV, the streets of Woodbury were lined with American flags and the citizens showed their commitment and dedication to a man and his family who died for his country," he said.

The day of Walkup's funeral reinforced Burnett's pride in Cannon County.

"I was so proud to be from Cannon County. It was a day we put our differences aside. It was a day it didn't matter what side of politics you were on. It was a day the flag not only rose high on the flag pole, but flew high in our hearts reminding us of the sacrifices our founding fathers made today as well as in the past," he said.

"We should be reminded and always remember that when we are at war or when we are at peace, our flag stands for the best," Burnett said.

Burnett's speech preceded Ann McBride's presentation of "The Quilt of Valor" to Frank Walkup in honor of his son, Franz Walkup, who is still recovering from serious wounds he suffered in Afghanistan. Walkup is also the father of Lt. Walkup, who was killed in combat in Iraq.

Two other Walkup sons, Josh and Jake, took part in the following presentation of special Killed in Auction (KIA) banners to their father and the family of Harold Basham. Vietnam veteran Britt Knox told of the origins of the flags and explained the significance of them.

Many of the veterans at the event rallied to the playing of their service songs by the CCHS band and assembled on the gym floor. Col. Jim Stone passed a microphone to each veteran who told their name, rank and area of service.

"It's sad to see the dwindling numbers of World War I vets," Stone said before giving a special introduction to retired Marine Art Petty Jr. The 93-year-old Petty was decked out in his full Marine uniform.

Marine Sergeant Major Petty survived three major U.S. wars ... starting with WW II in the 1940s, being called back to active duty during Korea in the 1950s, and in 1965, the Marine landed in Chu-Lai Vietnam.

Following lunch, the veterans toured the school, which was decorated with Veteran's Day art and photography.

Exchange Club strengthens America by recognizing freedom of religion

GERALD MELTON

Americans are bound together by their love of freedom, and religion is no exception. The Exchange Club of Murfreesboro and The Noon Exchange Club of Murfreesboro will be holding a "One Nation Under God" Community Prayer breakfast, Tuesday, November 25th at the Embassy Suites - Murfreesboro, featuring Gerald Melton, Public Defender for Cannon and Rutherford County Gerald Melton. His motto is: "Protecting the public by defending the Constitution."

The ticketed in advance event will have a breakfast buffet starting at 6:30 AM and the program between 7:00 and 8:00 AM.

Mr. Melton currently serves as District Public Defender, 16th Judicial District, a position he has held for over 25 years. He previously served as the Assistant District Attorney, State of TN, 16th Judicial District for five years. He was in the Private practice of law for over 3 years and served as Mayor of Woodbury for a year when he accepted the Assistant District Attorney position, resigning as Mayor upon becoming an Assistant District Attorney to avoid any actual or perceived conflicts of interests between the two positions.

The "One Nation Under God" project was adopted on July 30, 1964, by Exchange leaders seeking to heighten awareness of our rich religious heritage. November, observed nationally as "One Nation Under God Month", is a special time of year when Exchangites join together to increase public appreciation of the important roles religious faith and freedom have played in our nation's history.

The Exchange Clubs of Murfreesboro along with nearly 900 other Exchange Clubs across the nation, will be recognizing November as "One Nation Under God" Month.

This powerful program not only aims to increase appreciation of our rich religious heritage, but also seeks to remind Americans that we must always trust in a higher power for guidance, protection and strength. The famous words of the program's title are, of course, taken from the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. "One Nation Under God" Month is observed annually during November.

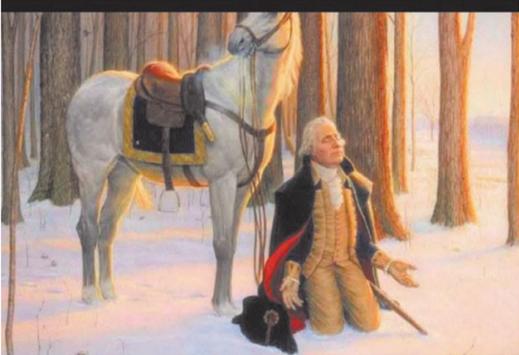

The national program, "One Nation Under God", was created to help promote that America is truly "One Nation Under God." As a nation, citizens should be deeply conscious of the importance of our religious freedom in the nation's heritage and future.

For more information on the breakfast and tickets, contact any Exchange Club member or call 615-278-7178 Franklin Synergy Bank - Memorial Office for tickets or Will Call. Tickets are required in advance for $18.00 per person. A table of 10 seats can be reserved with payment in advance of $180.00.

Exchange, America's Premier Service Club, working to make our community a better place to live. The Exchange Club of Murfreesboro meets Tuesday Evenings each week at 6:00 PM at "Through The Grapevine" and The Noon Exchange Club of Murfreesboro meets weekly on Thursday's at Noon at "Five Senses".

FEATURES FROM THE BIBLE

TRUTH IN SCRIPTURE

Haggai's Four Messages

Book of Haggai

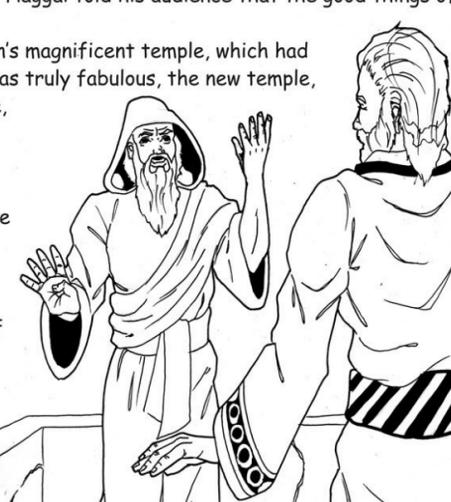

Haggai came to the people of Judah four different times giving them a message from God. First he told them that the reason life was so hard, food and clothing was scarce and prices were so quickly rising was because they had their priorities wrong. Everyone was wrapped up in their own selfish concerns. Haggai told his audience that the good things of life are God's to give or withhold.

Second Haggai said that although Solomon's magnificent temple, which had been destroyed seventy years previous, was truly fabulous, the new temple, though not as beautiful according to some, the builders should take heart.

The new building was only a foretaste of the splendor and glory of the end time.

The third message of Haggai reminded the people that their former neglect of God had brought unpleasant consequences but from the time they began to put first things first God would bless every area of their life.

The fourth message Haggai gave was for Zerubbabel, the governor, who was a descendant of King David. Haggai said that through Zerubbabel the Messiah (Savior) would come.

Browns Mill Dam removal to begin

A ribbon-cutting ceremony for the removal of Brown's Mill Dam in the Rutherford County community of Lascassas will be held on Thursday, Nov. 13 at noon. The location is the intersection of Brown's Mill Road and Lofton Road.

The removal of Brown's Mill Dam will improve aquatic habitat and make the East Fork of the Stone's River safer for paddling. The Stones River at Brown's Mill will be a more natural river following removal of the dam. It will be a free-flowing system that will allow water and aquatic life to move upstream and downstream where, historically, fish and mussels were trapped. This is very important to fish species that need to migrate to spawn and to mussels that require particular species of fish hosts to reproduce.

There has been a growing movement nationally to remove dams where the costs (environmental, safety and socio-cultural) outweigh the benefits (hydropower, flood control, irrigation and recreation).

The removal project was funded by the Tennessee Healthy Watershed Initiative and the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency State Wildlife Grants.

A short program will follow the ribbon-cutting ceremony, including comments from officials from supporting agencies and organizations. For further details contact Pandy English, TWRA Instream Flow Coordinator (615) 781-6643.

Lynn's Pickett Fence, located at 203 W. Main in Woodbury and owned by Lynn Pickett, held a Grand Opening to introduce the public to her primitive country antique's and décor. Lynn's Pickett Fence is a blend of new, old, nostalgic and boutique items with something a little different everywhere you look, a great addition to the merchants on the square. The last 20 years of her 30 years teaching career was spent at Auburn High School. Mrs. Annette Estes passed away Tuesday the 4th at her home in Milton. She was 93 years old. Our condolences to daughter, Connie Floyd and family.

"As one is taken, another is given. . . ."

Congratulations to Jacob and Brittany Duggin along with big sis, Lily Kate, who welcomed Amelia Faith to the family, Wednesday the 15th. Little Miss Amelia weighed in at 6 lbs, 15 oz and was 19.5" in length. Her proud grandparents are Wade and Jennifer Duggin and Pam and David Gaither.

Hats off and a great shout out of THANK YOU to each and every veteran who has made it possible for America to have the freedoms we have. THANK YOU!

Thursday October 30th was a beautiful day for a "Fall Tour Trip" and that's just what some "mature" folks of Prosperity Baptist Church did. Bro. Don Rigsby, Ted and Wanda Ray, Phillip and Linda Hayes, Joe and Mainell Foutch, Henry and Veda Walker, and Joe and Velma Turner enjoyed the colors of Fall Creek Falls as well as a delicious meal served at the park's restaurant.

That same night Betty Thomas, Robbie Owen and P-pa and I were off to Miller's Grocery in Christiana where we enjoyed a meal compliments of Fortress Wealth Management. (Don't let the "wealth" fool ya!)

Although the weather was very cold and overcast, the country fried ham breakfast with the fixin's were just as good at the annual Christmas Open House hosted by Thomas and Margaret Melton. Their combined cabins are beautiful and the food is cooked on an old fashioned wood-burning cook stove.

That same morning several from here were in Nashville at Percy Warner Park's Steeplechase Course to watch our talented cross country girls' team and two of our boys compete in the TSSAA championship. Congratulations to Hannah Whited and Marshall McReynolds in their individual division and to the girls' team as a whole who also placed. (Results are in last week's column).

After 53+ years it was decided that the Auburn High School class of 1961 needed a reunion and this they did Saturday afternoon, November 1st. Fourteen graduated with only 8 left to gather in at our local Lion's Club Fish and Shrimp Fry. Two were unable to attend. They had a great time catching up.

That same afternoon a big birthday party was in progress in the Fellowship Hall of Auburn Baptist Church. Many family and friends gathered there to help Allison Francis celebrate her "Frozen" themed 5th birthday. There was a great turnout for the annual Thanksgiving meal Wednesday prepared by our great cooks of Auburn School. Many parents and grandparents attended to eat lunch with their "student".

That night despite the weather it was another great turnout at the fish and chicken fry to support the Jr. Beta Club.

Don't forget to come to Woodbury this Saturday, the 15th for the "Day for Dan" benefit. Danny Kennedy is an amputee who has recently undergone surgery that will leave him out of work for 6 months. Here is the new line-up: Car show on the square at 11:00 a.m., Chili Supper at 5:00 p.m. and auction by Greg Goff at 7 P.m. All proceeds will be used for housing and medical expenses. Donations are appreciated. Contact Lori Reed for more information.

Birthday greetings this week to Katey Sheerer on the 12th, Taylor Jackson on the 13th, Tommy Griffith and Kyle Caito on the 14th. It's Brenda Francis, Holly McCrary and Mary Clair Dutton who celebrate the 15th while Randy Lee Toombs, II, Colin Crawley, and Kullon Harris Patrick (his 3rd) all ring in the 16th with their day. Mark Stinnett's last year in the 50's begins the 17th and Brooke Harrell, Stanley Dobson, and Teresa Kennedy finish the week on the 18th. Happy birthday!

It was November 12, 1976, when Beverly Harris took on the job of raising Jerry Bryan when she said, "I do" and she did!!! Happy anniversary ya'll.

News from the Mountain

BY CAROL GUNTER

Saturday morning and it's the start of a brand new month - November. Looked out our window and there was a skif of snow on the roof of Aubrey's shop, our wrought iron furniture in the yard, lampposts, and Randy and Gail's vehicles, and the roof on their house. We had been told about maybe a little snow and some very cold weather as well that was coming our way.

Treated several little ones and some big ones with candy that came by last night. It was a nasty night with the rain and the windy conditions for the trick or treating but did enjoy everyone that showed up. Treated several more than I did last year.

Betty Barnes has returned home from South Carolina where she was visiting her son Chris and his wife Julia, and their son Peyton. They all got to celebrate Halloween. Later on they got to visit Hilton Head Island. A wonderful time was had by all.

At the store (Short Mountain Market) on Thursday. Maybe the name of the store should be the Meeting Place. Lot of people up there and I had to maneuver my truck to find a place to park it. Ronald and Blake didn't know the danger they were in as they were walking to the store. Prayed I wouldn't hit them as prayer always helps. Burley Bogle trying to leave the premises in his truck as I was walking behind this other vehicle and Burley and I watching out for each other so as not to collide. Turned out okay and we had a laugh over it. In the store Mike Melton and Glenn Ferrell there at the counter so, of course, struck up a conversation with them. They are with the Forest Division up here on the mountain. Talked with Ronald and Blake at the back table as they were eating their lunch. As I left the store a big dump truck pulled up at the store as I was talking to Ralph outside by the benches. The guy got out of the truck and was walking by me when it dawned on me that I knew him. It was Edward Sissom. Aubrey and him had been good friends for years. We talked about Aubrey quite a bit and found out Edward likes the column. Getting to be a small world as I can usually run up on someone who knew Aubrey. That really doesn't surprise me as Aubrey made friends it seemed everywhere he went.

Sunday evening talking with my good friend Diane on the phone. Later she came down and brought me some calla lily bulbs. The flowers they produce are a deep purple - and almost black in color and are so beautiful.

Charlie Mai Daniel and Carlon Melton not able to be at church on Sunday. Do keep them in prayer and also, Fay Pitts, Denise Stanton, Edith Miller, Chloe Evelyn Bogle, and Donna Lawson.

With this new month our thoughts are now going to be turning to Thanksgiving and that turkey and dressing, pumpkin pie, and all of the other bounties of food we will be devouring.

Yesterday finally saw a bunch of turkeys wandering around behind Randy and Gail's house in their field. Yes, these turkeys all had feathers - just in case you were wondering.

Went ahead and got my flu shot a couple of weeks ago.

Hope you have gotten your flu shot too. Certainly no fun being sick with the flu and now is a good time to just go ahead and get it over with.

Talking with Ruth/the boss on Monday evening. Her and her family doing pretty good. Peggy/the diva and Shirley/the trooper both are okay. Carol says, "Hi," to you two and sends you her love.

Not a peep from Debby about Clyde and my birthday bash that is coming up very shortly. Bobby Taylor will be taking care of the parking situation. Truck drivers are super good at doing that so we have the traffic problem eliminated. Someone had better let him know what his duties are for this mountain celebration that happens only once a year. Plans for that red carpet not fully completed yet. In fact, desperation has set in and that has brought about some wild ideas that people have come up with. Latest idea being to sew some red bathroom mats together and go with that. With so many flashes from all those cameras no one will be noticing that red carpet anyway is what I figure. Will have to have plenty of lighting outside to light up the sky and for people who don't know how to get to us will just follow the beams of light that will brighten all of Short Mountain that faithful night as never before and we will then be on the map like so many other places are in this country of the free and the brave. Hard to picture something of this great magnitude on the mountain isn't it? That's how other great events have sparked the interest of the people that have found their way to them - and only bigger opportunities for everyone will take root and the publicity doesn't hurt either I guess. The media will have to come to check all of this out as they will think a spaceship has landed up here on the mountain, after all the talk in the column about the little green men. I'm sure the suspense is building as to what we are in store for that night. No invitations to those little green fellas or that cow to be mailed as the night would be ruined by their appearance even if it would be one of their better nights. Rally sending out all of those invitations would be a costly venture for whoever is in charge of mailing them. I say everyone is invited to this birthday bash as we are going to have a great time with all of that great bluegrass music by Clyde and his band at Short Mountain Market, Saturday, December 13th. The time for the party to get started still being hashed out as to not clash with anyone's last minute schedule for that day. Will keep you updated as the information and logistics are relayed to me. Y'all come now.

Went up to Short Mountain School on Tuesday to cast my vote. Always a privilege to do that. Miss Anita and Connie Cantrell there to greet me with their warm smiles. Got to talk with Wayne Underhill and Betty Jo Johnson for a few minutes, while I was there.

If you have any news for the column, just give me a call at (615) 563-4429. Have a great day!

But the Lord is faithful, who shall stablish you, and keep you from evil. 2 Thessalonians 3:3

Special Kids' donations are doubled

Special Kids Therapy & Nursing Center announced Thursday that an anonymous investor has pledged to match every donation from individuals in the month of November up to a total of $20,000.

The November DOUBLE Campaign for the kids began in mid-October and will run through the month of November. Currently, the local nonprofit has received over $9,000 in donations that will be matched by the anonymous investor.

"We are so excited to partner with this anonymous donor in order to double all individual gifts through the November Double Campaign!" said Noel Deal, Special Kids director of investments. "This investor has been involved with Special Kids for several years and has a heart for wanting to see more individuals give at a higher level to the organization."

The therapy and nursing center for children with special needs was founded on the pillar that no child would be turned away due to a family's inability to pay for services. In 2013, investments from the community funded over 40% of the organization's operating costs and allowed Special Kids to treat 437 children in need.

With the recent expansion of the new Special Kids Therapy Center, the nonprofit more than doubled its treatment space, going from 5,600 square feet in its original facility to adding another 7,000 square feet. The space addition will allow the organization to serve twice as many children in the years to come.

"We have literally doubled our space to be able to treat double the number of children," said Ginger Spencer, Special Kids director of marketing. "And now, thanks to our anonymous investor, every donation will have double the impact for the children we serve."

To join in the November DOUBLE Campaign, donations can be made online at specialkidstn.com/donate or by mail to Special Kids at 2208 E. Main Street, Murfreesboro, TN 37130.

Special Kids is a Christian therapy and nursing center for children with special needs. The Murfreesboro-based ministry started with one child in 1998 and has grown to serve over 2,700 children from 18 counties in middle Tennessee. For more information on Special Kids, please visit specialkidstn.com or call 615.893.4892.

A poem worth reading

He was getting old and paunchy,
And his hair was falling fast,
And he sat around the Legion,
Telling stories of the past.
Of a war that he once fought in,
And the deeds that he had done,
In his exploits with his buddies;
They were heroes, every one.
And 'tho sometimes to his neighbors
His tales became a joke,
All his buddies listened quietly,
For they knew where of he spoke.
But we'll hear his tales no longer,
For ol' Joe has passed away,
And the world's a little poorer
For a Veteran died today.
He won't be mourned by many,
Just his children and his wife.
For he lived an ordinary,
Very quiet sort of life.
He held a job and raised a family,
Going quietly on his way;
And the world won't note his passing,
'Tho a Veteran died today.
When politicians leave this earth,
Their bodies lie in state,
While thousands note their passing,
And proclaim that they were great.
Papers tell of their life stories,
From the time that they were young,
But the passing of a Veteran,
Goes unnoticed, and unsung.
Is the greatest contribution,
To the welfare of our land,
Someone who breaks his promise,
And deceives his fellow man?
Or the ordinary fellow,
Who in times of war and strife,

Goes off to serve his country,
And offers up his life?
The politician's stipend,
And the style in which he lives,
Are often disproportionate,
To the service that he gives.
While the ordinary Veteran,
Who offered up his all,
Is paid off with a medal,
And perhaps a pension, small.
It is not the politicians,
With their compromise and ploys,
Who won for us the freedom
That our country now enjoys.
Should you find yourself in danger,
With your enemies at hand,
Would you really want some cop-out,
With his ever-waffling stand?
Or would you want a Veteran,
His home, his country, his kin,
Just a common Veteran,
Who would fight until the end.
He was just a common Veteran,
And his ranks are growing thin,
But his presence should remind us,
We may need his likes again.
For when countries are in conflict,
For the Veteran's part,
Is to clean up all the troubles
That the politicians start.
If we cannot do him honor,
While he's here to hear the praise,
Then at least let's give him homage
At the ending of his days.
Perhaps just a simple headline,
In the paper that might say:
"OUR COUNTRY IS IN MOURNING, A VETERAN DIED TODAY."

The History of Veteran's Day

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Press Service

Up until the 1960s veterans groups used the red poppy as the symbol of Veterans Day. In Great Britain, it still is.

The symbol comes from a poem written by a Canadian doctor John M. McCrae in 1915:

"In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields."

McCrae tended to the first victims of a German chemical attack on the British line at the Belgian town of Ypres during World War I. The fields of Flanders, where some of the most horrific battles occurred, are now dotted with cemeteries filled with the war dead. If you fly across France and Belgium, you can still see the remains of the trench systems of the war.

The Great War of 1914 to 1918, called the first modern global conflict, was an enormous divide for the world. Millions of soldiers, sailors and airmen died in the conflict. Millions more civilians were also killed or died of disease. It truly was a world war. Men fought in Turkey, the Balkans, East Africa and the Middle East as well as in Russia and France. The war caused the Russian czar to fall and allowed Vladimir Lenin to build what would become the Soviet Union.

On Nov. 11, 1918, that war came to an end. At 11 a.m. the shooting stopped. A war that saw 20,000 British "Tommies" die in 20 minutes at the Battle of the Somme in 1916, was over. The war that saw 1,384,000 French "poilus" die, ended in the trenches that extended from Switzerland to the Belgian coast.

Americans, who joined the war in 1917, lost more than 100,000 soldiers in the fighting.

The Germans had signed an armistice with the allies and to the generations of The Great War, Nov. 11 remains Armistice Day. For decades, veterans sold paper poppies to raise money for memorials and for the families of those who died in the war.

But The Great War was not, as President Woodrow Wilson hoped, "the war to end all wars." World War II rose from its ashes, and millions more died to stop the mad dreams of dictators from 1939 to 1945. The U.S. Congress changed the name of Armistice Day to Veterans Day to honor all veterans after more blood was spilled during the Korean conflict to halt aggression.

Congress moved Veterans Day, along with most other federal holidays, to be celebrated on the closest Monday to the traditional date. But soon Congress reversed itself on Veterans Day because of public pressure to honor the powerful symbolism of the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month.

Along with two world wars and Korea, Americans and their allies have fought and died in Vietnam, Lebanon, Grenada, Panama, Kuwait, Iraq, Afghanistan and other places.

Today, the United States' armed forces confront enemies around the world. U.S. soldiers, sailors, airmen, Marines and Coast Guardsmen defend freedom on station wherever, whenever they are called. Those serving today are ensuring that they do not ignore the final verse of McCrae's poem:

"Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields."

IF YOU USED THE BLOOD THINNER XARELTO

and suffered internal bleeding, hemorrhaging, required hospitalization or a loved one died while taking Xarelto between 2011 and the present time, you may be entitled to compensation.
