Mitchell claims county executive seat

Greg Mitchell

The current chairman of the Cannon County Commission has been elevated to the head chair of the county after Thursday's general election.

Greg Mitchell, who served two and a half terms on the commission, including being the chairman of the commission for the past three years, defeated Corey Davenport by a total vote of 1,755 to 1,354. Davenport, who finishes his first term as commissioner, was only able to win the votes in the Auburntown precinct by a 128-119 margin.

Most precincts were close with Mitchell taking the rest. Mitchell pulled away in Woodland (330-229) and East Side (342-228). He also ended up with a wide finish in early voting defeating Davenport 885-603 in the July 15th-30th timeframe.

Out of a total of 3,227 voters who participated in the August 4th election, 3,114 voted in the county executive race. On Election Day, Mitchell received 870 votes (56.36%) to Davenport's 751 (43.48%). There were five write-ins in the race.

The total overall figures were down significantly from the 2018 race when 4,017 registered voters showed up to early vote and at the polls with current county executive Brent Bush collecting 2,442 votes.

2018 ushered in six new Cannon County Commissioners. Of those six, only two remain in place for the next four years, and of the ten commissioners who finish their terms in 2022 only four will be starting their next four year term in September.

Six new members elected to commission

1st District: Commissioner Jeannine Floyd ended her first and only term deciding not to seek reelection. The other 1st District Commissioner, Russell Reed, served 12 years as county commissioner. He decided to let someone else have their turn. It will be Nathan and Nathan in the first district as Nathan Luna led all voters in that district with 395 votes, while Nathan Sanders finished second with 246 votes. Chris Alexander's 152 and Andy Parker's 102 votes fell short in the four person

2nd District: Commissioner Karen Ashford returns as one of the representatives of the second district. She'll be joined by Auburntown Fire Chief Chris Singleton who will be serving his first term. Ashford was the leading vote getter with 306 votes with Singleton's 258 votes beating out James Adkins, who received 224 total votes. Bobby Moore finished in last place with 132

The early voting totals had Ashford and Adkins tied with 108 votes. Singleton had 75 early votes, but voters in the second district turned out and helped Singleton make up the deficit needed to claim the second seat. Current 2nd District Commissioner Corey Davenport did not seek re-election as he was running for county

Mike Hale

Most of District 40, which includes DeKalb and Jackson County, agreed with Cannon County as to who their choice was in the primary stage of the State House of Representatives.

received 830 votes. Hale won the vote in Cannon County, DeKalb County and Jackson County, while Weaver was able to take her home county in Smith. But it was close as Weaver squeaked by with 144 votes more than Hale.

Overall the Republican Primary was won by Hale 6,696 (60%) to 4,542 (40%). Hale will move on to meet Democratic nominee Tom Cook in the November 8th Tennessee General Election. Cook received a total vote of 1,464 in the unopposed primary with 249 of those votes coming from Cannon

Election sees light voter turnout

Matt Teply

Courier Staff Report The November 4th county general election experienced a significant lower voter turnout in comparison to the 2018 general election. According to the Cannon County Election Adminstration office there are 9,571 registered county voters. And while the next purge of the record isn't set to take place until 2023, only 3,227 registered voters (34%) participated in early voting and on Election Day.

The election ushered in a new county executive, six new county commissioners, and two new school board members.

Most of the precincts had a light turnout Thursday morning, but the number of voters picked up after lunch and continued until the polls closed at 7 p.m. Administrator of Elections Matt Teply commented, "We had a hiccup right away, but after all the precincts were up and running, this went about as smoothly as you could expect. For an August election it was a light crowd compared to

In 2018 there were 8,427 registered voters and 4,216 voters (50%) participated in early voting and on Election Day. Early voting declined in 2022 with 1,542 early votes cast during the final two weeks of July compared to 1,850

early votes in 2018. Normally there would have been a crowd gathering around the Election Office waiting for an announcement on the final results. Because of technology changes speeding up the final result tally in the past few elections, there was just a handful of people, mostly candidates for office, hanging outside the election

Election for state office holders, including State of Tennessee Representative and Governor, will be Tuesday, November 8th with the last day for voters to register to vote in time for the election on Tuesday, October 11th.

Horse clinician visits Hope and Joy Farms

Melissa LaDuc For the Courier

Hope and Joy Farms hosted a week of clinics and demonstrations with Mark Lyon, the colt starter from

Lyon is the kind of man who travels with his pet raccoon. Occasionally, he'll bring his pet cow, Cowasaki, along with him on his travels. He won the Extreme Mustang Makeover challenge out of Fort Worth Texas in 2008; since then he has traveled around the world helping horses and riders to connect, gain confidence, and overcome challenges. To have him at the farm for a week and sit at our dinner table was a

Subscribe to the Cannon Courier to stay up to date on the latest news in Cannon County

While at the farm, Lyon hosted obstacle and cow clinics, taught private lessons, and worked to reframe the thinking of a 10-year-old horse which had spent its life as a bucking bronco in the rodeo. A local rescue, River Edge Farm Horse Rescue, was sponsoring Silver, the retired bronco, and hoping to find after a few days with Lyon the bucking-minded horse would (somehow) be safe and adoptable.

Although I'm a believer in second chances, I'd seen this horse kick, and I was doubtful. Lyon, though, after putting in some ground work, seemed to think he was up for the challenge. All week long, twice a day, he handled the horse with purpose and revealed his strengths as a trainer. Meanwhile, I soaked up the parenting and teaching reminders which aligned so

Lyon drove his truck up to the edge of the round pen and tied a long lead line to the top of the truck. While he worked, he shared with our small audience the psychology behind his approach. He explained Silver had been taught to buck, and after his rodeo days it had also been reinforced; if he didn't want to work, all he had to do was what he was good at: kick. This simple understanding had kept Silver safe.

However, the colt starter was ready to show Silver who was stronger. By using the truck as the anchor, he was able to hold tight when Silver challenged him. While turning a circle around Lyon as his center, Silver quickly realized the less he pulled and kicked, the easier it was for him. Soon, Silver and trainer were able to communicate without danger, as Lyon picked up and trimmed his hooves, leaned his weight on the horse, and even loped around the round pen. I was amazed at how quickly the horse's entire demeanor seemed to change.

At the end of the long days, when we sat at the dinner table, I loved hearing even more about the philosophy of horse training. Horses respond to pressure; quite simply, they will move away from it. One of the keys to training a horse is to have a sensitive touch and to be able to release pressure at the perfect moment, so the horse can understand the consistent communication.

Strength. Consistency. Confidence. I reflected on the necessity of these traits while working with children. I can't help but apply these lessons as I step back into the classroom for this next school year. I was reminded by anchoring myself to something stronger, I'll be able to tackle the challenges I face daily.

I saw the value of consistency and how small steps can lead to great improvement. I was also reminded to look for cues in my students, just as horses will lick and chew when they are thinking. If I read my classroom calmly and step into the arena with poise and confidence, my students will accept me as the leader.

Mark Lyon is scheduled to return to the farm in November, and we're already looking forward to having him with us again. Oh, and Silver found a home. He had two people ready to adopt him by the time Lyon left.

I'd say the week was a big success.

Losing everything, what or who is important?

Columnist Glenn Mollette

What or who is important to you? The recent devastating flood in eastern Kentucky reminds us all life can he swent away in a moment. Hundreds of families lost everything. One family lost their house, and everything in it, but also lost their family – four children ages less than two up through eight were swept away by the raging flood. One woman, who had also lost her house and everything in the house, stated she and her family were alive and that's all that mattered.

None of us want to lose our houses and everything we've worked for most of our lives. However, it's all junk in comparison to our children and loved ones.

From the fires of California to the floods of eastern Kentucky to the devastation of Ukraine by Russia, loss and devastation can come to us all. We don't want loss. We recoil from natural disasters, invaders or diminishing health.

It takes a lifetime to pay for a house. Today, cars are often financed five years and more. People work hard to accumulate a few things. Little children, spouses and aging parents are not easy to come by. Most of the time we take everything we have for granted. When the floods of life literally wash away all we have and love, the loss is horrific.

We really don't know the full extent of how painful loss is until we have lost it all. Recent flood victims in eastern Kentucky essentially lost it all. Many literally escaped with only the shirts on their backs.

Cancer can eat away at our lives. Other forms of diminishing health can take us down to nothing. Financial losses can make us miserable. A fire can destroy everything. Life can change and in a

Sometimes we have warnings life is on the way to changing. When it rains, we don't automatically think the water will become so deep we will all drown. Some people in eastern Kentucky will never be able to enjoy a long night of rain because of what it may bring.

Overall, people would like to live out their lives quietly and safely. Avoiding floods, fires and other life-threatening crises. Food to eat, something to wear, and the enjoyment of people we love are most meaningful to us. In the middle of life's devastations, we often look to God and ask why? If he is really so great, so good, and so loving, then why would he send or allow eight or nine inches of rain to fall on the hollers of eastern Kentucky and sweep away little children? Did he go to sleep? Does he not care? Is he detached from what happens in the world? Is he really out there? Yet, as many grieve, they will fall upon God as he is all they have left to get them through. An old saint of God who suffered through the storms of life once said, "I didn't realize God was all I needed until God was all I had.

Whatever or whoever you have today, don't take it or them for granted. Be grateful, give thanks. Love on your loved ones and be kind to all. Consider taking some of your stuff and giving it to someone who may have nothing. It will be good for you both.

Money in the attic

A tale of mountain love

Appalachia' in East Tennessee

Meat 'N' Potatoes Mike Vinson

Tom and Bertha Hatfield were both 85 years old, had been married for sixty years, had raised three children, and had lived in the same log cabin ever since they'd been married. Although neither had gone past the third grade, Tom had done quite well for the family with his 'moonshining/ bootlegging' business, having made quite a name for himself as a skillful spiritmaker. (Legend later would have it Tom had shown a young 'Popcorn' Sutton the ropes in making moonshine whiskey.)

Tom and Bertha's marriage was basic '101 Mountain Couple': With Tom being the primary breadwinner, Bertha had pretty much raised the kids, done the cooking, and maintained the household. Also, since Tom's bootlegging business was 'cash-to-hand-only' transactions, he had amassed, over the years, a cash sum of $110,000, a goodly amount in 1970. Of course, since the money was procured by ill-gotten means, Tom had stashed the cash in a secret hiding place instead of depositing it in a traditional bank. Still, over the years, Tom, for the most part, had managed to evade the pesky revenuers and local law enforcement, except for one time back in 1935, when they'd busted him & his still up on 'Rattlesnake Ridge,' and he'd had to pay a hefty fine and do a two-year stint in the state pen.

However, time had caught up with Tom: He was in the latter stages of congestive heart failure; the doctor had told him it was just 'a matter of time,' and he needed to get his affairs in order. Thus, Tom had called over the local Baptist preacher to pray for his soul. After praying with Tom and Bertha, the preacher had assured Tom all his sins had been forgiven, and 'not to worry, because, upon death, Tom would be immediately transported to Heaven.

Although she kept it to herself, Bertha wondered if the preacher had factored in Tom was a life-long bootlegger, had done prison time, had never paid taxes, had drunk enough moonshine whiskey to flood the Tennessee River, and was one of the money-hungriest SOB's she'd ever met in her life!

His troubled soul now somewhat eased, Tom called his devout wife of sixty years to his bedside. "Bertha, darlin'," Tom began, "I want you to bring to me that burlap bag with the $110,000 in it, along with two smaller burlap bags." With doting servitude, Bertha did as her ailing husband requested, and placed the burlap bags on his bed.

Tom further instructed: "Now, I want you to count out the $110,000 and divide it into two piles of $55,000 each. Put $55,000 in each bag. One is for you; one is for me. After you do that, take my bag of money and hang it on that rafter in the

Somewhat confused, Bertha asked, "Tom, why in the world would you want me to hang that money on a rafter in the attic, especially at a time like this?"

"Well, Bertha, you heard the preacher say Ise goin' straight to Heaven after I die, and I can just grab my cut on the way up. You never know, I might talk Moses, Elijah, and Enoch into a game of pinochle."

Now convinced Tom was borderline delusional—albeit money-hungry as ever—and convinced, too, she was making a drastic mistake, Bertha, nonetheless, went about doing as her husband had requested: She placed Tom's $55,000 in one of the smaller burlap bags, carried it to the attic, and hung it on the rafter. After doing so, Bertha dutifully returned to her husband's bedside, to console & comfort him during his final hours.

About three that next morning, Tom's breathing became extremely shallow, and his chest eventually ceased rising & falling at all. Fully aware Tom had passed on, Bertha, even with tears in her eyes, jumped up from her chair at the bedside and made a mad dash up the steps to the attic! Once in the attic, she saw the burlap bag with Tom's $55,000 was still hanging on the rafter.

"I knew I should've put it in the basement!" Bertha silently scolded

More to learning than looking at a screen

Media Matters Larry Burriss

How much time and training do you think it takes to move a mouse pointer around and click on something on the screen? Not much actually. Ah, but how much skill does it take to move that same mouse pointer around and do something useful? Now that's another question entirely. And it's a question more and more child-care experts are starting to ask.

Ask many parents why they are putting children as young as one on a computer, and they will likely tell you so the child can learn how to manipulate the mouse and keyboard. But many educators are now saying those skills can be more easily learned when the child is older and gets into school.

One problem is the world is threedimensional, and spending too much time on a two-dimensional screen can hinder spatial development.

So the American Academy of Pediatrics recommends no screen time before age two, and says children can become discouraged if they talk to a computer monitor and get no response.

Plus, children may be overdeveloping visual senses at the expense of touch, smell or sound.

And everyone should be asking, how much exercise are you, or your children, getting sitting in front of a screen?

Part of the problem here is too many parents are so obsessed with giving their children every educational advantage they think a year lost on the computer will result in the child being permanently scarred.

But more and more experts are saying education is more than sitting in front of a computer screen, or even sitting and reading a book. After all, children at all ages can learn just as well, perhaps better, by simply going outside and experiencing the world around them.

There is no doubt computers can be beneficial to a child's educational development. But parents need to understand there is a lot more to learning than simply sitting in front of a screen.

Working and playing in the old feed barn

Across The Miles Jack McCall

I spent many an hour in our old feed barn. To a boy it seemed vast in its size and expanse. I became intimately familiar with each stable and hallway. I especially enjoyed the large barn loft which provided endless opportunities for exploring. But I suppose the old corn crib stands out most in my memory. Situated on the west side of our barn it featured a 4'x4'

"window" all of 10 feet above ground level. It allowed a man, with corn scoop in hand, to stand on a wagon bed and "pitch" ear corn into the crib. The crib's wooden floor lay two feet above ground. When the crib was filled to the window, it showcased a mountain of ear corn no less than eight feet tall. As the crib filled with corn each fall, my father placed boards, each above the other, at the crib door to keep the corn from flowing out into the upper hallway. As the level of corn was reduced, the boards came down one at a time. Working your way through that door was challenging to say the least. It was important to avoid a corn avalanche.

A crib filled with ear corn had two best friends – barn cats and chicken snakes.

My brothers and I were given strict instructions to leave the chicken snakes alone. They played an important role in keeping rodent numbers down. And any mice the snakes didn't get, the barn cats did

I had a silent arrangement with the chicken snakes – "You don't bother me, I don't bother you." I will admit, though, it's a bit unsettling to be sitting in a pile of shucks while shucking corn and happen upon a snake's "shedding." You knew the snake couldn't be too far away.

Our feed barn always featured a goodly number of barn cats. My father encouraged their multiplying – more cats, fewer rats. Sometimes, to the cats' delight, he provided them with a pan of warm cow's milk. I've watched a throng of cats sit patiently in hopes of getting in on the cow's milk. My father was skilled in the art of milking a cow. He could squeeze a cow's tit and hit a cat's mouth with a stream of milk all the way across barn hallway. To see a cat licking fresh warm milk off its face is a picture I will not soon forget.

I was often sent on a mission to find new egg nests in the mountain of square baled hay stacked high in the barn loft. It seemed the hens preferred the higher elevations. The secret was to find the nests before they had been there too long. A nest filled with eggs (I'm talking two dozen or more) was not always a good find, especially in the summer time. Good, fertile eggs could go bad pretty quickly. I learned to hold an egg up to my ear and shake it gently. A bad egg is a dead give-away. (They don't teach these things in schools these days)

Is there anything that smells worse than a rotten egg? I was sprayed in the face by a baby skunk one time. It was bad. It was nauseating. It was debilitating. But it didn't make me want to lose by breakfast like the smell of a rotten egg.

A feed barn presented the perfect setting for a corn cob battle. The corn crib provided an ample supply of ammunition, and there were plenty of places to hide and stage forays.

I remember one particularly heated battle involving the Ellenburg brothers. That day, I got hit in the head with a wet corn cob. I found out a wet corn cob gathered much more velocity than a dry one. The battle went back and forth until someone discovered a nest of rotten eggs. I was the first casualty.

That brought the corn cob battle to a screeching halt!

Hosford joins the Cannon County Child Advocacy Center

Presley Hosford

"Please join the Cannon County Child Advocacy Center (CAC) in welcoming our new Community Education Coordinator, Presley Hosford," announced Cannon County Coordinator Amanda Hammond.

Hosford, a recent graduate of Middle Tennessee State University's Child Development and Family Studies program, is a familiar face around the CAC. She interned for two semesters and discovered her passion for advocacy. "My experience at the Child Advocacy Center so far has been nothing short of wonderful," said Hosford. "I take pride in the fact that we work hard every day to protect children and help their families."

Hosford is a certified family life educator, and her experience and dedication to protecting children and families made her the perfect new fit for the Center's small team. "I am so proud to work with a team that is dynamic and continuously growing. I want to make Cannon County a safer place for children," she stated.

As the Community Education

As the Community Education Coordinator, Hosford's job is to train adults how to recognize the signs and symptoms of child sexual abuse using the Darkness to Light training curriculum. Education is the first step to preventing child sexual abuse, and Hosford is eager to start teaching adults in Cannon County what they can do to protect their children and grandchildren.

The CAC is a nonprofit agency that works as a Child Protective Investigative Team with the Department of Children's Services, Woodbury Police Department, Cannon County Sheriff's Department, and the District Attorney's Office to respond to child abuse cases, aggressively prosecute offenders, and help child victims and their families heal from the trauma.

Contact Hosford at phosford@ cannoncac.org or call (615) 563-9915 to bring the Darkness to Light child sexual abuse prevention training to your church, school, business, or civic group.

On a beautiful July afternoon, the cast of The Arts Center of Cannon County's production of Rodgers & Hammerstein's Cinderella received quite the surprise guest. Broadway actress Laura Osnes arrives to sit in on their rehearsal. The cast was intimidated but ready for feedback from Broadway's Cinderella.

Giving tips on how to display the magic through movement, as well as acting motivation, Osnes was thrilled to help and was very educational during her Q&A afterwards. This was all made possible by her current student, Francesca Noe who is cast as Cinderella in the Arts Center's production. Noe has big shoes to fill (pun intended), but is highly adept thanks to her natural talent and very capable mentors.

Filling the role of Topher is local MTSU Vocal Music student, Cameron Roberts who masterfully hits every note. The Fairy Godmother, Marie, is played by none other than Suzi Richardson whose grace and goofiness give her the perfect combination for such an important role.

Arts Center favorite Gerald Melton fills the intimidating role of Sebastian, and David Campbell as Lord Pinkelton. Cinderella's Stepmother is played by the always wonderful Stephanie Jones. Alexis Phillips offers an insanely fun portrayal of stepsister, Charlotte, while Stephanie Whiting compliments everyone she is on stage with as stepsister, Gabrielle. Professional actor Gerold Oliver returns to the Arts Center to bring on activist Jean-Michel.

These leads are complimented by a large ensemble of beautiful voices, elegant movements and intriguing background acting. This show will truly

CCMS to kick-off 2022 season Thursday night

Courier Sports

The Cannon County Middle School (CCMS) Lions football team makes its 2022 season debut at home Thursday night, August 11th as they host the Westwood Middle Rockets out of Manchester. Westwood is bringing an experienced team.

CCMS head coach Chris Andrews got a preview of the Rockets during the Cannon Kickoff Jamboree held at Fred Schwartz Field Saturday, July 30th.

"Their quarterback can sling it and they have a couple of good receivers. Stopping the quarterback is our focus. He's got to be on his back a lot; he has to earn everything he gets," said Andrews. "When he runs the ball we have to make sure he knows every time he carries the ball he has second thoughts.'

With an offensive and defensive line averaging 205 and a lot of young talent, it will be the key to how successful the Lions will be in their season opener.

The roster is filled with 7th graders as the coaches traveled from school to school and recruited. The group has many two-sport athletes playing, one of which is basketball prospect Myles Alexander who will be behind center at the quarterback position.

Alexander is familiar with Coach Andrews, having played for him last season when both were together on the senior team of the Cannon County Youth Football

"Myles is a video game kid with the way he moves. You feel like you're playing a video game. He gives us a level of leadership and confidence to run the Wing-T. Kid is athletic...we've all seen it. He plays AAU so he's got the experience of playing against opponents bigger than him," Andrews said.

Incoming CCHS junior kicker Jack Byford was selected to participate in the nation's Top Prospect Camp for high school kickers, punters and long snappers. Byford was one of only 40 selected from over 300 athletes to be invited, and was one of the youngest

During the camp, held in mid-July, he competed against athletes from all across the United States and received the Top Prospect Award. He was also named to the All-American Watch List for colleges.

Byford placed 3rd in field goal accuracy from 56 yards. During the fall of 2021, he attended the Ray Guy Pro-kicker Camp and has been listed as a 4-star

Byard's #20 jersey number to be retired

Middle Tennessee legend and NFL All-Pro Kevin Byard will have his No. 20 jersey number retired on Sept. 30 during a ceremony at the Blue Raiders' home game versus UTSA.

"I am truly honored number retired at MTSU," said Byard. "A lot of blood, sweat, and tears went into making this a reality. Thank you to my coaches, training staff, faculty members, and most importantly my teammates who all played a major role in my success during the five years I attended Middle."

Byard will join Teddy Morris as the only other player in MTSU football history to have his number retired. Morris' No. 14 was retired in 1965.

"Kevin Byard has made a tremendous impact, both on and off the field, during his playing career at MTSU and as a Tennessee Titan," said McPhee. "It is in recognition of his sustained excellence, as a player and true role model that we are elated to announce today his MTSU Number 20 will be just the sixth in the 111-year history of our athletics department to be retired. We are all extremely proud of Kevin.'

Byard, a four-year starter for the Blue Raiders from 2012-15, ended his career as the program's all-time leader in interceptions (19), interception return yards (377), interception return touchdowns (4) and is one of just nine players in school history with 300 or more tackles. A team captain, Byard forced or gained 25 turnovers (19 INT, 5 FF, 1 FR) in 49 career games played.

The Lithonia, Ga., native was a first team allconference selection and an FWAA Freshman All-American, while leading the team in interceptions all four years.

"This is an incredible honor for any athlete to have their number retired," said Head Coach Rick Stockstill. "I am very proud of Kevin in what he accomplished here at Middle Tennessee and how he has transitioned into one of the best players in the NFL. More important than his skills as an elite athlete is how he has represented himself, his family, MTSU football and the Titans in a first class manner. KB is very deserving of this honor of having his number hanging in the stadium

Byard was selected with the first pick of the third round in the 2016 NFL Draft by the Tennessee Titans and is now considered one of the top safeties in the NFL. He is a two-time All-Pro pick and was named the team's Walter Payton Man of the Year winner in 2020 for his work in the community.

From 2017 through 2019, Byard led the NFL with 17 interceptions and in 2020 he led the team and set a career-high with 111 tackles.

Fair returns to Courier sports

Murphy Fair

Murphy Fair, known affectionately across the Volunteer State as Tennessee's high school football guru, may have retired his annual preseason magazine, but is now concentrating his writing efforts on a book, scheduled to be printed in the late fall of 2023.

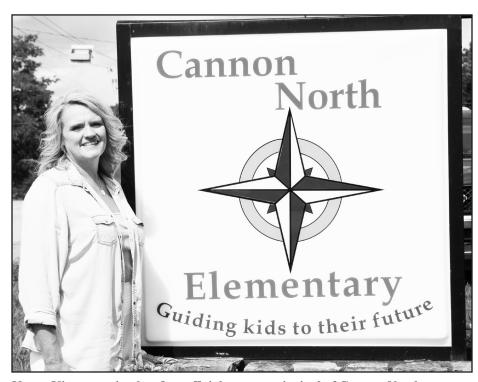

"În the 34 years of publishing my magazine, I've gotten to know more than 500 head football coaches at the high school level," said Fair. "If these guys have one thing in common, they all have great stories to tell about their vocation," he added.

Fair is getting coaches to share with him the story that means the most to them. Several will be the focus of a column he's writing for weekly newspapers across the state. The first column will appear in the Cannon Courier beginning next week.

'I've had coaches tell me stories that made me laugh so hard I could barely get my breath," continued Fair. "I've also had stories that brought tears to my eyes. I'm really enjoying this project."

Compass for Cannon North pointing in the right direction

Keith Ready

Cannon Courier

Many teachers in Cannon County used their summer break in June and July to prepare their classrooms for the change ushered in Monday with the beginning of Cannon County Middle School for the county's 6th-8th graders.

Six grammar schools were consolidated to three as Short Mountain, Auburntown and East Side schools closed in May and students were reassigned to Cannon Elementary, Cannon North Elementary, and Cannon South Elementary.

The principal for Cannon North Elementary is Karen King. King has been a principal in the Cannon County School system for 15 years with 11 of those being at West Side School, now the location for Cannon North.

The change and consolidation have been very emotional for some, including King, who has been affiliated with West Side for quite some time. "I've walked into the doors that have had 'West Side' on it for 35 years of my life, so for me it was sad as well," she reminisced. Moving forward, though, she and the entire staff of Cannon North are very excited about what the future holds for the school and for the students.

The change brings about the opportunity for new school colors and a new mascot. The colors of Cannon North Elementary will be rust, mustard yellow, and a dusty royal blue with gray in the background. The colors signify the colors the current teaching staff at Cannon North came from prior to this year with the all the colors representing West Side, Auburn School and East Side. The logo and mascot is the compass star, and they will be known as the Cannon North Stars

Most classrooms have been moved around, and the teachers have spent the past two months painting, and getting their rooms ready. The entire school has been repainted.

There will be a different feel to the school since it is now an elementary school, and there won't be classrooms for 6th-8th grade students with the school now being a K-5 school.

"I think it's going to be a different dynamic with the younger kids all being in the same building. We have the very same amount of kids we had before when we had the 6th, 7th and 8th graders," King said. As of now the school has around 220 students, whereas West Side had 240 students.

"It's good and bad, we'll have some things that we won't miss, but we'll miss some of the leadership and we'll have to develop leadership skills with the 4th and 5th graders," she explained.

To begin the month of August, the school held a back-to-school bash attracting more than 400 people, and the response of those who attended was very positive. "I wasn't really sure how it would go as it was the first time we had Auburn parents and students in the building," King stated.

While there will be some adjustments, the opportunity of students getting to know new students earlier in life is seen as an advantage of consolidating the schools.

"Kids are kids no matter where they are. Kids will reflect what the adults around them are doing," King pointed out, "So if adults are positive, the kids will be positive. I've seen it over and over again. We have made our society smaller due to technology. A lot of these kids knew each other anyway."

The first week of school will be getting

The first week of school will be getting the students familiar with the various rules. The theme is "S.H.I.N.E." standing for Safe, Honest, Intelligent, Nice and Encouraging. Paperwork will be sent home with parents to explain the rules.

Extracurricular activities will consist of Beta Club, a Harvest Festival, and they will be adding 4th and 5th grade basketball programs, which will play the other elementary schools in Cannon, and a couple of neighboring county schools.

The administration is taking things slowly to give the students time to make a full adjustment before looking at new opportunities.

King says this year is the start of history. "I told the parents at the Back to School Bash that tonight we're making history, so 50 years from now when someone mentions the first year of Cannon North they can say they were a part of it."

The school's mascot is a compass, and by the indications of the excitement and the challenge of making the consolidation work, Cannon North is heading in the right direction.

Quite a few towns have changed their names over the years

Bill Carey For the Courier

A few weeks ago, I wrote a column about how Benton County once changed the person the county is named for without changing the name. This led a reader to ask me about how many towns in Tennessee have actually changed their names.

Quite a few, actually. In fact, here is only a partial list:

Woodbury was originally called Danville, but was renamed Woodbury soon after Cannon County was authorized in 1836. The town was renamed for Levi Woodbury, who was an American attorney, jurist, and Democratic politician from New Hampshire. During a four-decade career in public office, Woodbury served as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, a United States Senator, and Secretary of the Treasury.

The Anderson County seat used to be known as Burrville, but it changed its name to Clinton after Aaron Burr killed Alexander Hamilton. I supposed this makes Aaron Burr one of the early victims of "cancel culture."

Gatlinburg was once known as White Oak Flats. In fact, there's a cemetery in Gatlinburg called White Oak Flats Cemetery, just off the Parkway.

In its preincorporation days, Bluff City went by at least four different names: Choates Ford,

Middletown, Union and Zollicoffer. (Zollicoffer was a Confederate general who was killed at the Battle of Mill Springs in Kentucky, after accidentally riding up to the wrong troops.)

Johnson City also went by at least four different names prior to its incorporation—Green Meadows, Blue Plum, Johnson's Depot and Haynesville.

On my recent trip to the Rhea County seat of Dayton, I saw a display in the courthouse that explained the town used to be known as Smith's Crossroads.

Monterey was once known as Standing Stone because of a 12-foothigh monolith that existed in presentday Putnam County prior to the arrival of settlers. Unfortunately, most of it was destroyed by railroad builders.

In 1961, the Davidson County town of Dupontia (which had originally been named for the nearby DuPont plant) changed its name to Lakewood. Lakewood is now part of Metro Nashville.

The Monroe County seat of Madisonville was originally known as Tellico, or Tillico. I have run across this many times, since Tillico was a frequent stop on advertised stagecoach routes.

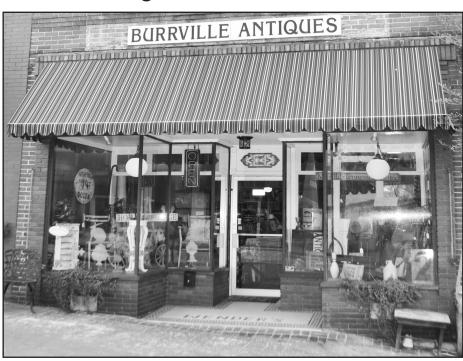

For a while, the West Tennessee town of Jackson was known as Alexandria. In fact, I have found ads for businesses describing the community as Alexandria.

Prior to 1980, Farragut showed up on maps as Campbell's Station.

Here are a few other names I've either found or been told by readers over the years: Dover was called Monroe; Fairview was Jingo; Portland was Richland Station; Dickson was Smeedsville (with an "M"); Watertown was Three Forks; Alamo was Cageville;

was
and there are many others.
So why
have so many communities changed their names? According to Robert Brandt, author of Touring the Middle Tennessee Crossroads, a lot of them did because of confusion caused by other similarly named places. "For example," he tells me, "there was already a Hillsboro, Tennessee, so the village in Williamson County changed its name to Leipers Fork. Crocker's Crossroads sounded too much like Tucker's Crossroads, so the locals picked the name Orlinda from a list the post office made available."

The reason there's a business in Clinton called Burrville Antiques is because the whole town used to be called Burrville.

However, over the years there have been several times where ambitious been several times where ambitious business leaders thought a name change would help the town. Here are a few examples: Mossy Creek changed its name to Jefferson City in 1901. Newspaper articles about the name change indicate officials from Carson-Newman College led the way in changing the name, because (apparently) they didn't think people wanted to send their children to a college in Mossy Creek.

The Coffee County town of Manchester was known as Mitchellsville, but changed its name in an attempt to turn the community into Tennessee's version of the industrial Manchester, England.

The Hancock County seat of Sneedville was originally known as Greasy Rock, which strikes me as a pretty cool title if the place had a microbrewery or rock festival. However, being known as the place where Native Americans used to cut up dead animals didn't strike the residents of Hancock County as a good idea. So, in 1847, Greasy Rock became Sneedville.

Finally, in 1939, the Anderson County town of Coal Creek changed its name to Lake City. Its residents did this because coal mining had declined, Norris Dam was being built, and there was hope a name change would bring tourists. Lake City never really took off, but hope springs eternal.

A few years ago, Lake City's residents changed the name again, to Rocky Top, in hopes the name change would result in the development there of a theme park. The state government changed all the signs along Interstate 75, but still no word about the theme park.

Schools safety meeting conducted

Governor Bill Lee's Executive Order 97 to enhance school safety included a revision to the School Safety Emergency Operations Planning process for all school districts.

Recently, the Cannon County Board of Education held a safety meeting with county law enforcement officials, county emergency services officials, and county emergency management officials to discuss the recent safety audits, district and school emergency plans and safety enhancements made to county schools. Additional safe school grant funding will be used to address areas of deficiencies identified by the local education agency (Cannon County Schools) while conducting the school safety assessments.

Cannon County Schools' staff recently received reunification training and school safety for educators, school leaders, and staff, by the Tennessee State Department of Safety and Homeland Security (TSDSHS). The SafeTN app can be found on the district website at www. ccstn.net.

This anonymous reporting system allows students, faculty, parents, and the public to easily and confidentially report concerns to help prevent violence in our schools and our communities. Tips can be submitted 24/7 through the mobile app from any compatible device. The TSDSHS will review, assess, and then send all submissions to law enforcement, mental health crisis response teams, and/ or school administrators for intervention based on the information received. More information can be found at https://www. tn.gov/safety/homeland-security/safetn.

"Keeping students and staff safe is the number one priority of our school district. We will continue to work together with our community partners to provide a safe and supportive learning environment in a unified community, said Director of Schools William F.

How to choose a 55-plus active adult community

What tips can you recommend for choosing a good active adult housing community? My husband and I, who recently retired, are planning to relocate to an area closer to our grandkids and are interested in buying a house in an agerestricted 55-plus housing community. Active Retirees

Dear Active. If you're contemplating moving into an age-restricted community, finding one that's right for you takes some legwork. While active adult communities generally offer the opportunity for a lower-maintenance lifestyle around similar aged people, they vary enormously. Here's what you should know.

Today's active adult communities come in all shapes, sizes and price ranges, ranging from small city-based apartment complexes, to single-family homes, to sprawling resort-style locations situated on a gated golf course. Most are owned by their occupants, but a growing number are rentals. Typically, at least one occupant of each property must be at least 55.

It's also important to understand 55-plus active adult communities are not the same as retirement or independent living communities, which are primarily designed for older seniors in their 70s and 80s. Active adult communities do not typically include meals or have a central dining area, but many of them do offer a range of recreational amenities and activities.

To help you locate and research active adult communities in the areas you're interested in, the best resource is 55places.com. This is a comprehensive website that provides ratings, reviews and information on activities and amenities for thousands of communities across the country.

Once you find a few you like, here are some questions to ask yourself that can help you choose:

What's our budget?

To help you choose the right active adult community you'll first need to determine what you can afford. Consider the home's purchase price, whether you'll need a mortgage, how much the property taxes and insurance are, and how much the homeowners' association or community fees are.

These fees, which typically run a few hundred dollars per month, go toward lawn care and possibly snow removal, as well as community areas like a clubhouse or pool. However, some communities may require additional memberships or fees for golf, tennis, classes, or other activities.

You also need to consider the area's cost of living for other things like food, utilities, transportation, health care and taxes. Numbeo.com and BestPlaces.net offer tools to compare the cost from your current location to where you would like to move. And Kiplinger's has a tax guide for retirees at Kiplinger.com/links/ retireetaxmap that lets you find and compare taxes state-by-state.

How active is the community?

Some communities provide fitness facilities, swimming pools, tennis courts and more, along with dozens of organized activities, classes and social events. Other communities are much simpler and more laid back with very limited amenities and structured activities. You'll want to choose a community that has the types of people, facilities, activities and vibe that appeals to you.

Will we like the surrounding area?

Will the area around your prospective community serve your needs now and in the future? Ideally, this means having easy access to good doctors and hospitals, and a local airport if you plan to travel much. You'll also want to research how far you'll be from essential services like grocery stores, banks and pharmacies, as well as dining, shopping, and recreational attractions.

Schedule a visit

Once you've narrowed your choices, call to make an appointment and visit them. Be sure to allow plenty of time at each community and, if possible, go back to your favorites more than once. Also be sure to ask questions while you are visiting, particularly about the community rules.

Some developments will let you stay overnight in a model home for a few nights to get a feel of what it would be like to live there. While you are there, try the amenities and activities, and speak with as many residents as you can.

TDOE launches 2022 TCAP Family Portal

On-Demand access to TCAP scores & free resources to support learning

With the 2022-23 school year beginning across the state, the Tennessee Department of Education (TDOE) has launched the "Know More, Learn More TN" campaign to encourage all Tennessee parents and families to log in to the redesigned TCAP Family Portal for on-demand access to their student's TCAP assessment results.

This year, the Family Portal has been redesigned to improve user friendliness, offer clarity of the printed state score report, and provide more actionable resources for families and includes several new features—personalized student video reports in five languages, sample questions, questions for parents to engage with their student's teacher about their scores, and historical data to track student achievement over time.

Parents and families can watch this short video, reference this graphic, or follow these three simple steps to access the TCAP Family Portal:

Find their student's "unique access code" or "USID" on the bottom right-corner of the printed state score report.

Visit the Family Portal at KnowMoreLearnMoreTN.tnedu.gov.

Log in to find information on your student's performance, a personalized video in your home language, questions to ask their teacher, and where they may need additional support.

* To note: If a parent does not have a score report to reference, they should contact their school and ask for their student's state ID number. They will add two zeroes in front of that seven-digit number to create an account.

"This is a great way for parents to be able to look at each students' specific data," said Emily Hancock, principal, Cannon County Middle School. "The TDOE has made this process easy and accessible for parents to support their student's progress."

'Cannon County Schools believe all parents/guardians should have access to their student's record of academic progress and performance. By being a partner with their child's school and teachers, this will provide a key to unlocking academic success. The TCAP-EOC scores availability through the TCAP Family Portal is a major factor in supporting this partnership and empowers parents to advocate for their children's academic needs immediately," said Director of Schools William Freddy Curtis. "The TCAP Family Portal is a fantastic resource to assess the academic progress of "The family portal allows families to have direct access to the TCAP assess ment results for their students," said Supervisor of Instruction Marcia Melton. "Our schools will provide paper reports and will be happy to talk to families about how students are progressing and how we can support learning.'

TCAP measures the mastery of grade level standards and includes summative assessments for English language arts, math, science, and social studies for grades 3-8, high school end-of-course (EOC) exams in English I and II, Algebra I and II, Geometry, Integrated Math I, II, and III; Biology, and U.S. History.

The department will continue to update the Family Portal in the coming weeks. Later this summer, the department will add a Lexile measure to give parents more details about their student's reading progress.

Three parables told by Jesus

The Lost Sheep

One day when many tax collectors and other outcasts came to listen to Jesus, the Pharisees and the teachers of the Law started grumbling, "This man welcomes outcasts and even eats with them!" So Jesus told them this parable:

"Suppose one of you has a hundred sheep and loses one of them — what do you do? You leave the other 99 sheep in the pasture and go looking for the one that got lost until you find it. When you find it, you are so happy that you put it on your shoulders and carry it back home. Then you call your friends and neighbors together and say to them, 'I am so happy I found my lost sheep. Let us celebrate!' In the same way, I tell you, there will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over 99 respectable people who do not need to repent.

The Lost Coin

"Or suppose a woman who has ten silver coins loses one of them — what does she do? She lights a lamp, sweeps her house, and looks carefully everywhere until she finds it. When she finds it, she calls her friends and neighbors together, and says to them, 'I am so happy I found the coin I lost. Let us celebrate!' In the same way, I tell you, the angels of God rejoice over one sinner who repents."

The Lost Son

Jesus went on to say, "There was once a man who had two sons. The younger one said to him, 'Father, give me my share of the property now.' So the man divided his property between his two sons. After a few days the younger son sold his part of the property and left home with the money. He went to a country far away, where he wasted his money in reckless living.

"He spent everything he had. Then a severe famine spread over that country, and he was left without a thing. So he went to work for one of the citizens of that country, who sent him out to his farm to take care of the pigs. He wished he could fill himself with the bean pods the pigs ate, but no one gave him anything to eat. At last he came to his senses and said, 'All my father's hired workers have more than they can eat, and here I am about to starve! I will get up and go to my father and say, Father, I have sinned against God and against you. I am no longer fit to be called your son; treat me as one of your hired workers.' So he got up and started back to

"He was still a long way from home when his father saw him; his heart was filled with pity, and he ran, threw his arms round his son, and kissed him. 'Father,' the son said, 'I have sinned against God and against you. I am his servants. 'Hurry!' he said. 'Bring the best robe and put it on him. Put a ring on his finger and shoes on his celebrate with a feast! For this son of mine was dead, but now he is alive; he was lost, but now he has been 'In the meantime the elder son was out in the field. On his way back, when he came close to the house, he heard the music and dancing. So he called one of the servants and asked him, 'What's going on?' 'Your brother has come back home,' the servant answered,

'The elder brother was so angry he would not go into the house; so his father came out and begged him to come in. But he answered his father, 'Look, all these years I have worked for you like a slave, and I have never disobeyed your orders. What have you given me? Not even a goat for me to have a feast with my but now he has been found.'

Hard to believe it's August...but I'm looking forward to fall

Our community is saddened by the passing of Melba Nichols, age 80. She is the wife of Billy Nichols. Melba was such a sweet and kind lady. Billy and Melba attended our "Gunter Reunions" and always had a great time. She will certainly be missed by so many people that loved and admired her. Please keep her family in your prayers at this sad time.

The home invasion and rape of a 74-year-old woman in Nashville was on the news this morning. The lady was in her back yard doing yard work. She went back into her house and was attacked by the man and raped. The people in this neighborhood were shocked and on high alert about what had happened and as one lady said...you have to constantly be aware of your surroundings. It was reported that the people living in the neighborhood would start locking their doors. I find it hard to believe anyone in this day and time would leave their doors unlocked, especially in Nashville where so much crime goes on day and night. The lady that was raped may not have had the doors locked. They didn't say on TV if she had locked her doors which she was working outside. I always lock my doors when I'm inside our house or outside working. My vehicle is locked, too. Sad, but that's the way life is today. Do all you can to protect yourself and your property.

After the thunder and lightning let up this evening, I enjoyed being on our patio as only a slow steady rain was falling on the roof. So peaceful with a cool wind stirring that made me think of autumn and more times to be spent outside and taking in all the beauty of nature that God gives us. Since we do not have a crystal ball to tell us about how our winter season will be, we need to take advantage of those fall days of quiet tranquility looming ahead, because we all know those days will not last forever. I'm looking forward to the changing colors of the leaves on the trees on the mountain that is behind our house. Hopefully, there will be vibrant colors for us to gaze at. Last year's leaves were not as colorful around here because of dry weather. Fingers will be crossed that we get to experience those spectacular colors this year.

We could have a bitter and harsh winter to endure. I could take a really mild winter myself, because I'm so cold-natured. Mother Nature usually surprises us and messes up the weather people's forecast at times, but I do think most of us would love a white Christmas...I Heard on the news Tony Dow who played Wally on the "Leave It To Beaver" show passed away this week at age "77." He had been battling cancer.

Spotted Marilyn Hale, David Curtis and Matthew, Debby's son, from Short Mountain Market, on Wednesday at Dollar General. After talking with them, I am glad to report that are all doing well. Please keep the following people in your prayers:

Betty Couch, Sepal Pedigo, Charlie Mai Daniel, Dorothy Hobbs, Brenda Hooper and the family of Ola Duggin. God always hears our prayers. Try your best to attend the Lord's house this Sunday most of us have gone out to eat dinner at a restaurant and ordered a steak or hamburger. "And how would you like that cooked," they ask. "Rare, medium rare, medium, medium well, or well done?'

I'll have mine moo-rare

So, let me ask, "Which one are you?"

Have you ever heard of moo-rare? From what I understand, when you are served this moorare piece of meat it's somewhat still moving. It's so undercooked that once served on the table, it starts to eat the salad.

As far as I'm concerned it can be easily compared to swallowing a blender full of raw eggs. Oh, gag!

Well, J. D. and Uncle Festus especially love their steaks moo-rare.

For me, I don't like my steak undercooked, but not overcooked either. I used to order it medium well, but recently learned the hard way. This time it was so brick hard I could have used it for a Frisbee. I showed it to the waitress and she also couldn't recognize it as a food item. I reordered my steak to be cooked medium and all was good.

Maintenance care more effective than symptom treatment

Cannon County Chiropractor Trea

by PLOS ONE on September 12, 2018, documenting chiropractic maintenance care was more effective for reducing the total number of episodes of non-specific lower back pain (LBP) over a 52 week period than chiropractic symptom-guided treatment. When it comes to chiropractic adjust-

A peer-reviewed study was published ments, patients have usually taken one of two approaches. One approach is known as corrective or symptom care. In this approach, the patient begins care with the purpose of decreasing or eliminating pain. Once the pain has been corrected, the care is discontinued until another episode of pain occurs and the patient seeks chiropractic care again.

The second approach involves the patient remaining under chiropractic care after the alleviation of pain. This approach is usually known as either wellness or maintenance care. Most chiropractors promote the continuation of care after symptoms have gone to either help prevent future episodes of pain, or to promote overall wellness.

This study specifically looked at the comparison of what researchers called "symptom-guided treatment" verses chiropractic maintenance care. The narrow criterion chosen for this comparison was to see if patients with "recurrent or persistent non-specific low back pain" had less future episode of their problem if they continued chiropractic care beyond the correction of their symptoms while under chiropractic care for their initial episode of lower back pain. This study was a randomized controlled trial which included 328 patients between the ages of 18 and 65 who sought chiropractic for non-specific lower back pain and had a favorable response to the initial chiropractic care. The study was conducted between the years 2012 and 2016 from the offices of 40 participating Swedish chiropractors with clinics across Sweden.

After the initial chiropractic care, the patients were randomly selected be in one of two groups. One group would continue to receive chiropractic care on a maintenance basis, while the second group, known as the control group, would not receive any additional chiropractic care.

Each week for one year after the initial chiropractic care was completed, the patients in both the maintenance chiropractic group and the control group would send text messages to researchers about any "bothersome days" of lower back pain they may have experienced. The results of the study showed the patients who continued to receive chiropractic care on a maintenance basis experienced statistically fewer days of bothersome lower back pain over the next year than did the patients in the control group. As expected and reported by the researchers, those patients under chiropractic maintenance care received more chiropractic visits than those in the control group.

In their conclusion the researchers reported, "MC (maintenance care) was more effective than symptom-guided treatment in reducing the total number of days over 52 weeks with bothersome non-specific LBP but it resulted in a higher number of treatments. For selected patients with recurrent or persistent non-specific LBP who respond well to an initial course of chiropractic care, MC should be considered an option for tertiary

Town of Woodbury Water Quality Report 2021

Is my drinking water safe?

Yes, our water meets all of EPA's health standards. We have conducted numerous tests for over 80 contaminants that may be in drinking water. As you'll see in the chart on the back, we only detected 10 of these contaminants. We found all of these contaminants at safe levels.

What is the source of my water?

Your water, which is surface water, comes from the East Fork of the Stones River. Our goal is to protect our water from contaminants and we are working with the State to determine the vulnerability of our water source to potential contamination. The Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation (TDEC) has prepared a Source Water Assessment Program (SWAP) Report for the untreated water sources serving this water system. The SWAP Report assesses the susceptibility of untreated water sources to potential contamination. To ensure safe drinking water, all public water systems treat and routinely test their water. Water sources have been rated as reasonably susceptible, moderately susceptible or slightly susceptible based on geologic factors and human activities in the vicinity of the water source. The Town of Woodbury sources rated as reasonably susceptible to potential contamination.

An explanation of Tennessee's Source Water Assessment Program, the Source Water Assessment summaries, susceptibility scorings and the overall TDEC report to EPA can be viewed online at https://www. tn.gov/environment/program-areas/wr-water-resources/water-quality/source-water-assessment.html or you may contact the Water System to obtain copies of specific assessments.

Why are there contaminants in my water?

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791). Este informe contiene información muy importante. Tradúscalo o hable con alguien que lo entienda bien.

For more information about your drinking water, please call Wesley Young at 615-563-2388.

How can I get involved?

Our Water Board meets on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of each month at 7:00 pm at 101 W. Water St. Please feel free to participate in these meetings.

Is our water system meeting other rules that govern our operations?

The State and EPA require us to test and report on our water on a regular basis to ensure its safety. We have met all of these requirements. Results of unregulated contaminant analysis are available upon request. We want you to know that we pay attention to all the rules.

Other Information

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. Contaminants that may be present in source water:

- Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife. Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial, or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or
- · Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban stormwater runoff, and residential uses.
- Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban

Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally-occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA and the Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation prescribe regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. Town of Woodbury's water treatment processes are designed to reduce any such substances to levels well below any health concern. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which must provide the same protection for public health.

Do I Need To Take Special Precautions? Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have drinking water, but food preparation, personal hygiene, and precautions in handling infants and pets from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791). Lead in Drinking Water If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service under-gone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about not only their lines and home plumbing. Town of Woodbury is responsible for providing high quality drinking water but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at http://www.epa.gov/ safewater/lead

Water System Security

Following the events of September 2001, we realize that our customers are concerned about the security of their drinking water. We urge the public to report any suspicious activities at any utility facilities, including treatment plants, pumping stations, tanks, fire hydrants, etc. to 615-563-2388

Think before you flush!

Flushing unused or expired medicines can be harmful to your drinking water. Properly disposing of unused or expired medication helps protect you and the environment. Keep medications out of Tennessee's waterways by disposing in one of our permanent pharmaceutical take back bins. Water Quality Data

What does this chart mean?

- MCLG Maximum Contaminant Level Goal, or the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.
- MCL Maximum Contaminant Level, or the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology. To understand the possible health effects described for many regulated constituents, a person would have to drink 2 liters of water every day at the MCL level for a lifetime to have a one-in-a-million chance of having the described health effect.
- MRDL: Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level or MRDL: The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for the control of
- MRDLG: Maximum residual disinfectant level goal. The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.
- AL Action Level, or the concentration of a contaminant which, when exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.
- Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) explained as a relation to time and money as one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.
- Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter explained as a relation to time and money as one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.
- Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) picocuries per liter is a measure of the radioactivity in water.
- Millirems per year (mrem/yr) measure of radiation absorbed by the body.
- Million Fibers per Liter (MFL) million fibers per liter is a measure of the presence of asbestos fibers that are longer than 10 micrometers.
- Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5 NTU is just noticeable to the average person. RTCR - Revised Total Coliform Rule. This rule went into effect on April 1, 2016 and replaces the MCL for total coliform with a Treatment Technique Trigger for a system assessment.
- III Treatment Technique, or a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

*During the most recent round of Lead and Copper testing, 0 out of 20 households sampled contained concentrations exceeding the action level.

1100% of our samples were below the turbidity limit. Turbidity is a measure of the cloudiness of the water. We monitor it because it is a good indicator of the effectiveness of our filtration system.

²We have met all treatment technique requirements for Total Organic Carbon removal.

³Cryptosporidium is a microbial parasite which is found in surface water throughout the U.S. Although Cryptosporidium can be removed by filtration, the most commonly used filtration methods cannot guarantee 100 percent removal. Monitoring of our source water indicated the presence of cryptosporidium in 0 out of 4 samples tested. Symptoms of infection include nausea, diarrhea, and abdominal cramps. Most healthy individuals are able to overcome the disease within a few weeks. However, immuno-compromised people have more difficulty and are at greater risk of developing severe, life threatening illness. Immuno-compromised individuals are encouraged to consult their doctor regarding appropriate precautions to take to prevent infection. For more information on Cryptosporidium, contact the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).
